WARD'S LETTERS BARE WOOING OF HIS JILTED BRIDE

Lured from Ex-Mate by Judge, 73, Hint.

How ex-Judge Henry C. Ward of Sterling, 73 year old dean of the Northern Illinois bar, wooed the 38 year old wife of another man and so ardently that she divorced her husband and was married to him, was revealed yesterday in a score of letters, the discovery of which, it is said, may balk the aged jurist's attempt to invalidate the marriage.

The messages are replete with endearments, such as "My Dear Heart," "My Darling" and "My Dear Love," and the judge's pen travels on in impatient contemplating of the marriage with observations concerning the time when they will be "curled up on the lounge—locked in each other's arms—looking into each other's eyes—enjoying the nectar from each other's lips"—and dreaming.

The most ardent of the missives adds appropriately: "Oh, Billie, Billie, is this happiness to be ours?"

Wife a Prisoner and Ill.

The recipient of the letters, Mrs. Willie Marshall Ward, a Chicago divorcée who is said to have been known in Washington society, is enduring an enforced confinement in her Sterling, Ill., honeymoon cottage. Surrounded by costly furniture, objects of art, and luxurious wedding gifts, she is ill, penniless, and almost hungry. For the same gesture with which the judge started his annulment suit has driven away her servants, revoked her credit with tradespeople, and set constables at the doors with a warrant for her arrest on a statutory charge.

Through his son, Assistant District Attorney Philip H. Ward, the judge has charged that his bride has lived with him illegally since Jan. 2, 1923. Their marriage on that date, he charges, is illegal because she had divorced Albert E. Marshall of Washington in a Chicago court less than a month before.

May Seek Judge's Arrest.

Whether the offer of a settlement which yesterday reached Mrs. Ward's attorneys, Victor I. Ohrenstein of Chicago, Jacob Cantlin of Rock Falls, and J. J. Ludens of Sterling, will quiet the warrants they will seek for the judge's arrest tomorrow could not be learned.

The trio declare that, in view of his forty-two years at the bar, sixteen as judge of the Whiteside County court and four as judge of the Sterling City court, the jurist must have been aware of the illegality of his marriage. This and his alleged offer to finance his bride's divorce, they say, render him as liable to arrest as is Mrs. Ward.

Showered with Gifts.

The former Mrs. Marshall, it appears, arrived in Sterling last fall as a comely "widow" seeking advertising for a fraternal magazine. It was at that time she made the acquaintance of the mature ex-jurist. He fell, it appears, head over heels in love. In his whirlwind courtship and quick marriage, replete with trips to Chicago, theater parties, flowers, candy, and expensive gifts, Judge Ward dissipated $25,000, according to his son.

"My stepson doesn't know, perhaps, that the money went for a rejuvenating operation," declared Mrs. Ward yesterday. "At first I liked the judge. When I told him I was married he begged me to get a divorce and offered to pay all expenses.

"I relied on his word that it was all right for us to marry immediately after the divorce."

BEFORE THE DIVORCE

In one of his letter to "My Darling Billie," dated Dec. 7, 1922, a week before the then Mrs. Marshall had obtained her divorce, the aged jurist writes: "The 14th is one week from today, and I do hope nothing will interfere with your case. I will arrange to be in Chicago on the 15th and arrange for you to go south."

The couple journeyed to Cedartown, Ala., the home town of Mrs. Ward, where they were married, and continued on a honeymoon trip to Washington, D. C. There the marriage was announced at a dinner given by the bride at the New Hotel Willard.

"Am glad to tell you now that I am some better, but far from well," continues the judge's letter. "Will stay in all day today and must be careful for some days yet. I want to fly to your loving arms, but, my dear love, I can't. I love you truly and would sacrifice much to do so, but at the same time I realize that I belong to you and in protecting myself I am serving you, which is now my highest ambition. I

KLAN INITIATES 700 MEMBERS NEAR ROCKFORD

More than 700 candidates were initiated into the invisible empire of the Ku Klux Klan at a ceremony held in Rocky Cut, five miles northeast of Rockford, early this morning. Hundreds of members of the order from northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin, and some from Iowa and Illinois attended.

Original plans for the open air ceremonial called for a parade here Saturday afternoon, but city officials issued a statement in which it was said that any attempt to hold a parade of masked figures would be stopped. Instead the members gathered at the scene of the evening ceremony, where a national officer spoke and the multitude was fed.

The attendance was said to be more than 10,000.

JAP SAILORS KILL THREE CHINESE IN BOYCOTT CLASH

The trouble started when crowds of students and others attacked a Japanese river steamer, the Wuling Maru.

SWEDES DEMAND RUHR ROW END

Ask King to Urge Action by League of Nations.

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

STOCKHOLM, June 2.—[Tribune Radio.]—The Swedish parliamentary members of the Interparliamentary union today addressed a note to King Gustav requesting that Sweden officially request the general assembly of the league of nations to settle the reparations and Ruhr questions, not only for Germany's and France's benefit but for that of all of Europe.

"The Ruhr occupation," according to the note, "has caused irremediable harm, materially and morally, not only to the conflicting parties but to Europe generally and, indirectly, to the world, and has prevented the execution of a lasting peace and threatens to cause new wars.

"It is the duty of the league of nations to intervene in this case. It will be disastrous if this conflict is left for a final solution to the two powers. The league cannot fulfill its mission unless it undertakes a settlement."

Dynamite Ruhr Railroad.

Dusseldorf, June 2.—[By The Associated Press.]—The main line railroad used by the French for the transportation of coal and coke out of the occupied Ruhr district was cut early today by the explosion of bombs. Both tracks were torn up for a considerable distance and traffic will be interrupted for some time.

A coal train was derailed by the damaged tracks. In two other cases contact bombs were exploded when struck by locomotives, both engines being derailed.

Four Krupp Employes Convicted.

Four employés of the Krupp works today were sentenced to varying prison terms and fines of one million marks each upon conviction by a French court martial of making plans of French barracks and reporting the movements of troops and trains for the benefit of the sabotage gang headed by Albert Schlageter, recently executed by the French.

Expel Women and Children.

COLOGNE, June 2.—A boat load of women and children, families of German railway workers who have been expelled from the Ruhr, arrived here today from Bonn. They were escorted to a special train and sent into the unoccupied territory, where they will be cared for. They were preceded by their men, who had received shorter notice to move.

SWISS TO VOTE ON MONOPOLY OF HARD LIQUORS

[Copyright: 1923: By New York Times.]

LAUSANNE, June 2.—Switzerland will vote tomorrow on a project calling for state monopolization of all production of strong alcoholic liquors and placing a big import duty on foreign liquors. The production of cognac, kirsch, and other drinks with large alcoholic percentages is now free in Switzerland. The official purpose of the proposed law is to add to the revenue, but it originated with temperance organizations and really is intended both to restrict the production of strong drink and to make it easier finally to abolish it. The making of wines is not involved in the referendum.

WISCONSIN TO FOLLOW N. Y. IN WAR ON DRY ACT

Smith Alters Tenor of 1924 Race.

Madison, Wis., June 2.—[Special.]—The effort to repeal the Wisconsin prohibition law was started in the lower house of the state legislature today.

Assemblyman Herman Tucker of Milwaukee succeeded in taking the Tucker bill from the table and having it placed on Tuesday's calendar for action. The bill repeals the Severson law, which is the state statute providing for enforcement of prohibition.

Assemblyman Sixtus Lindahl of Superior announced he would introduce a resolution congratulating Gov. Al Smith of New York "on his fearless stand for personal liberty."

Refers to Dixie's Attitude.

Assemblyman Tucker today pointed out that the only consistent position for those opposed to prohibition was to agitate for the repeal of the state enforcement laws and of the Volstead act.

Then, said Tucker, the eighteenth amendment will be in the same class with the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments, which never have been enforced by any Republican or Democratic administration.

"A constitutional amendment like the dry amendment is not self-enforcing," Mr. Tucker declared. "It has no effect until enforcing legislation such as the Volstead and the Severson act are adopted. Consequently, with the repeal of these acts the dry constitutional amendment automatically becomes a dead letter."

POLITICS ENTERS MAZE

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

New York, June 2.—[Special.]—Repeal of the New York prohibition enforcement law and Gov. Al Smith's bold bid for elevation to the presidency on a platform of the right of states to restore beer and light wines, have completely upset all political calculations pertaining to 1924.

At Democratic and Republican headquarters today discussion of the political future revolved about the profound significance, infinite possibilities and far reaching effect of the movement visualized by the event at Albany yesterday, which the foes of bone dry prohibition everywhere are hailing as their declaration of independence.

Leaders of the wet forces are convinced that modification of the Volstead act will be the paramount issue of the 1924 campaign, while the drys reluctantly concede the possibility if the Democrats should nominate a wet and write a platform of the character suggested by Gov. Smith.

Liquor—Paramount Issue.

There is no disputing the fact that prohibition is already the paramount issue in the Democratic party in which from now until the nomination is made a year hence there will be a desperate struggle between the dry faction captained by William Jennings Bryan and the wet faction of which Al Smith has become the logical leader.

From now on the tactics of each faction will be directed to the selection of delegates to the national convention who may be relied upon to stand without hitching on the question of a beer and light wine plank in the platform.

If the wets succeed in their efforts they will write a platform not only declaring for state option in the definition of intoxicating liquor but raising the whole question of states' rights more pointedly than since civil war days and inviting a general reaction against the growing centralization of government.

Whether the rebellion against the Volstead act will create a disturbance in the Republican party remains to be seen. It is not an issue in that party now, and with President Harding apparently assured of renomination, although he has made not the slightest concession to wet sentiment, the drys are confident it never will be an issue.

G. O. P. May Get Infection.

If, however, the movement initiated by Al Smith should grow to proportions promising to gain control of the Democratic party and dictate a wet Democratic nomination and platform, it is not unlikely that Republican leaders would wax restive and give grave consideration to the advisability of heaving an anchor to windward. Senator Johnson, who loves to extol the light wine of California, might find an issue besides that of the world court on which to contest the renomination of the President.

A contest between a bone dry Republican candidate and a wet Democratic candidate manifestly would furnish a clear cut test of national sentiment on prohibition after a four year trial

Illinois Wets Seek an 'Al' for Governor

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Encouraged and enthused by the action of Gov. Smith of New York, Chicago and Illinois "wets" propose to have a moist brand candidate for governor next year.

This announcement came yesterday from Anton J. Cermak, president of the county board but more widely known as leader of the personal liberty contingent. That candidate will be of such a character as to appeal to the "damps," "drippers" and all other brands of wets. The most likely choice in the opinion of Mr. Cermak, who heads the wet department of the local democracy, is Carter H. Harrison, but he admits there are others from down state who will in all probability be considered before a final selection is made.

Some Downstate Timber.

One of the most prominent of these is Martin Brennan of Bloomington, a member of the court of claims during the Dunne administration of state affairs. Arthur Roe, state representative from Vandalia, has recently been given some publicity because of his attitude on the liquor question and may have some elements of strength which would appeal to pickers of a wet candidate.

Another, whose name as well as his public expressions give him a claim for consideration, is A. B. Lager, Democratic representative from Carlisle. Then also the down state wets have Lee O'Neil Browne [Dem., La Salle], who is an effective talker.

"But that is not all," said Cermak. "We will have candidates for the legislature in every district. We are going to make a fight on every man who has failed to follow the instructions given him by his constituency.

Recalls State Wet Vote.

"The voters of Illinois last fall, on a public policy question, said decisively that they favored light wines and beer. The house gave a vote last week on the bill of Representative Michael L. Igoe [Dem., Chicago], which proposed that Illinois should follow the federal government on the prohibition question, which means that if congress modifies the Volstead act Illinois will automatically adopt the same law without further legislative enactment. Some representatives, whose districts voted for light wines an beer, cast their ballots against the Igoe bill.

"In the last campaign we made no contest against any candidate for the general assembly. But now we have a record, the roll call on the Igoe bill. We have sown the seed and propose to reap the harvest. You can be certain there will be lots of trouble in the next election. We know now who's who on this question and shall act accordingly. Our program is mapped out. The news from the east only emphasizes the correctness of our plans.

His View of Smith's Action.

"Gov. Smith's action in signing the Cuvillier bill reflects the sentiment of the American public throughout the nation. His statement is a forcible presentation of the question involved. His assertions, statements and characterizations will have a pronounced influence and will put to rout hypocritical, fanatical and paid agents of the anti-saloon and kindred organizations, whose sole purpose is to foist tyrannical and oppressive laws locally and nationally."

Representative Igoe said that the action of Gov. Smith indicates that the centers of population favor light wines and beer. "They are opposed to prohibition," he went on, "and want to show that opposition. While opposed to the saloon, which they do not want to ever see reëstablished, the people of New York and of Illinois are unable to understand why the workmen cannot have a glass of beer."

Similar Bill in Senate.

Senator John Dailey [Rep., Peoria] has a bill pending in the senate which is similar to that of Mr. Igoe. He may call it up for consideration this week, but the Chicago wet leaders do

SURPRISE MOVE BY TRACK MEN PERILS SERVICE

Expect Electricians Join Strike.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Late developments last night threatened a tieup of Chicago's street cars by next Tuesday night or Wednesday morning. Announcement came from the track layers and repair men's union that tomorrow night it will vote to strike and that its 2,000 members—foremen, pavers, grinders, laborers, and watchmen—will walk out Tuesday morning.

In itself this would not stop the cars from running. But as part of the program, the substation electricians are reported to be considering a "sympathetic" walkout. There are only 150 of these, but they control a vital part of the traction system. If they walked out, by merely "pulling the plugs" they would leave the surface cars without "juice."

Similar to 1920 Strike.

It would duplicate the performance of July, 1920, when street car transportation was tied up overnight because of the "whim" of Michael Boyle, business agent of the electrical workers, in calling the men out in what was known as a "one man strike."

The cars were all manned and ready to run, but there was no juice in the wires, and early morning Chicago was hung up at the street corners wondering what had happened. The electricians have not said they will join the trackmen, but in union circles last night the word was passed around that Tuesday night or Wednesday morning will see a "juiceless" surface system unless meanwhile there is a change in program.

Grievances of the Men.

In deciding to beat the car men's union to a strike vote the repair men declare they are impelled by the failure of the surface companies to give them a hearing on demands for wage increases. They say the companies have insisted that the track men must wait until the wage controversy with the car men is settled.

The track men, who are affiliated with the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor, maintain that they are skilled workers, on the same plane as building craftsmen, whose wages are now up to peak period points. Their demands are for double time on Sundays and the following wage advances:

WAGES—CENTS PER HOUR.

	New.	Asked.
Section foremen	67	94
Paver	60-63	87-90
Grinders	54	87-90
Laborers	54	81
Watchmen (per day)	$3.16	$4.00

"Can't Hold Men Back."

"The men cannot be held back," said Samuel P. Luzzo, president of the tracklayers' union, last night. "Monday night they will vote to strike and they will go out Tuesday morning. The companies insist that our requests for wage increases must be sidetracked until they finish with the car men.

"This has incensed the men, who are building craftsmen but who are getting only about half the wage rate paid in the building trades outside. All indications are that by about Wednesday the street cars will be tied up."

Tomorrow morning the tracklayers will ask assistance from the metal trade machinists, the shoe-brake men, the blacksmiths and sheet metal workers on the surface lines, of whom there are about 1,000.

STRIKE STATUS ACUTE

The threatened strike of street car and "L" motormen, conductors, and guards is now at a critical stage. W. D. Mahon of Detroit, international president of the street car men's union, arrived yesterday. He is invariably called in when the situation is regarded as "in extremis." He participated in two conferences with the mayor and will attend others today and tomorrow.

Mr. Mahon's coming precipitated much talk that urgent moves would be made for arbitration of the wage controversy without subjecting the riding public to a transportation blockade. He is listed as a staunch advocate of conciliation, and the rules of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employés of America, which he founded, make arbitration practically compulsory where the traction officials evince a willingness to abide by mediation.

Unions Sometimes "Run Away."

The unions, however, have sometimes broken from his guidance and called a strike that has not been given the sanction of the international. The companies are declared to be ready for arbitration, but the unions are reported to be against mediation or compromise.

The next chief development is the meeting tomorrow night, at which the car men will decide whether to take a strike vote. Union leaders declare their belief that the employés will vote overwhelmingly to take a vote on the question of a strike, and that when the ballots are taken more than 90 per cent will be marked in favor of a strike.

Four Parleys Futile.

A series of four conferences yesterday left the situation just about where it was before. First, a parley between officials of the surface lines and "L" roads and the union chiefs blew up within an hour, both sides standing pat, as they did at the break in negotiations last Monday. The men insist on 10 cents an hour increase in pay. The companies say they can stand no pay boost.

Later Mr. Mahon and William Quinlan, William Taber, Joseph Kehoe, John J. Bruce, and L. D. Bland of the unions went to the city hall and talked affairs over with the mayor. After this Henry A. Blair, head of the surface lines, had a conference with the mayor. Later in the afternoon the six union chiefs returned to the city hall for further talk with the mayor.

There will be other conferences today. Mr. Mahon announced that tomorrow morning the board of operation of the surface lines is to hold another meeting. Further parleys will follow.

Mayor "Registers" Hope.

Mayor Dever at the close of the day declined to say anything concerning the status, but his countenance registered hope. He has been insistent that transportation must not be stopped. In administration circles views were expressed that even if a strike is voted for, processes may be set in motion looking for a settlement on a retroactive basis, a wage increase, if any, to be dated back to June 1, without having the cars stop running.

It may be said, however, that no spirit of optimism pervades either the company officials or the union leaders. Yesterday both sides still seemed to regard a walkout as inevitable.

So far no counter offer has been made by the companies. Both sides assert this and no headway has been made towards any definite compromise. They said last night that the deadlock is as tight as ever. Whether anything tending to loosen it will come out of today's and tomorrow's conferences is regarded skeptically by the companies and unions and hopefully by the city administration.

Week to Get Ballots Ready.

Under usual procedure, if the men decide tomorrow night to take a strike vote it would take almost a week to get out the ballots, count them, submit the results to a special meeting and set a date for a walkout. This interim it is pointed out would give opportunity to put mediation machinery into operation and to bring about conferences in which the state commerce commission might be sounded on the subject of fares, for the controversy apparently involves both.

One unknown factor, however, is the suddenness with which the street car employes sometimes act, and the short notice sometimes given of a walkout. Once a tieup came practically overnight.

VERSE IN YELLOW ENDS "FAGS" IN HYDE PARK HIGH

A dash of vivid yellow, four lines of poetry, and Lucy Page Gaston, foe of cigarets, have blown the smoke away out at Hyde Park High school. It was less than two weeks ago that Miss Gaston turned poet and made herself responsible for the following anti-nicotine quatrain:

Since cigarets seem less provoking
Unto the ones who do the smoking,
O, won't some power please compel 'em
To smell themselves as others smell 'em!

Miss Mildred Moore, Spanish teacher at Hyde Park High school, copied the lines on the blackboard in room 247. She chose bright yellow chalk, because, as Miss Gaston advised, "color psychologists declare that orange-yellow acts as a mental stimulant, especially on the imagination."

Yesterday the class entertained Miss Gaston in honor of their 100 per cent victory over the fag.

Hyde Park students will speak this evening at an anti-cigaret meeting at St. James Methodist church, 46th street and Ellis avenue. Many other Chicago churches are today observing Anti-Cigaret day.

"LIFE SAVERS" TO RAISE FUND FOR CAMP ALGONQUIN

Start Drive to Help Poor Mothers and Kiddies.

THE TRIBUNE announces this morning the formation of a summertime band of kind-hearted people of the sort who at Christmas are Good Fellows. The new organization is to be called the Order of Algonquin Life Savers and the members are to be life savers. The purpose of the organization, as the name indicates, is to save the lives of Chicago's poverty stricken mothers and babies during the heat of the summer months.

So, then, this is the first call for Life Savers, and every man and woman of Chicago who has a little money left over after each pay day accounting should pay strict attention. The call is sent to every one who has more than enough money to live—to the millionaires, to the great number of mediumly wealthy people, to those who must watch their pennies. In short, the plea is directed to every one above the poverty line.

Here's the Necessity.

Now to explain the necessity for Life Savers. The heat that descends upon Chicago every summer is more than well known. Of course, to those who can get to the lake, who can motor, who have summer homes in the country, the heat causes no worry. But, Mr. and Mrs. Life Saver, think of the thousands of mothers and babies in Chicago who are unable to move out of their blistering tenement flats for even an hour. Think of the terrible heat of the great west side flats. Think of the babies who die every summer for want of ice. Think of the kids who never see green grass in the country.

The Life Savers—and you are all going to join this new order—are to back THE TRIBUNE free ice fund and the Algonquin hospital project. Both of these are institutions old and tried. They have been running in other years, and the help and comfort they gave Chicago's poor mothers and children can only be properly told by those who benefited.

1,241 Persons Made Happy.

In one year 1,241 women and children fled from the torrid streets of Chicago to the quiet, cool, healthful countryside at Algonquin. There, in the hills on the banks of the Fox river, the mothers won back some of the health they had lost in the city and the kids thrived, grew fat, and were exceedingly happy.

The fund to which the Life Savers will contribute will be handled by THE TRIBUNE. The Algonquin hospital will be supported by this fund. To it every two weeks will go 100 or more mothers and children who have been selected as most needy. They will for the two weeks reap the benefits provided by the Life Savers.

Money Needed for Ice.

Meanwhile, in the city, the Life Savers' ice fund will be growing, and from it will be purchased ice, which will be distributed throughout the city to poor mothers who cannot supply their children with cool milk.

So, Mr. Life Saver, do as your brother, the Christmas Good Fellow, did in December and give something to the poor of Chicago. Send in your checks—send in as much as you care to give. You know a little money will go a long way in brightening up the faces of the poor mothers and kids in this city.

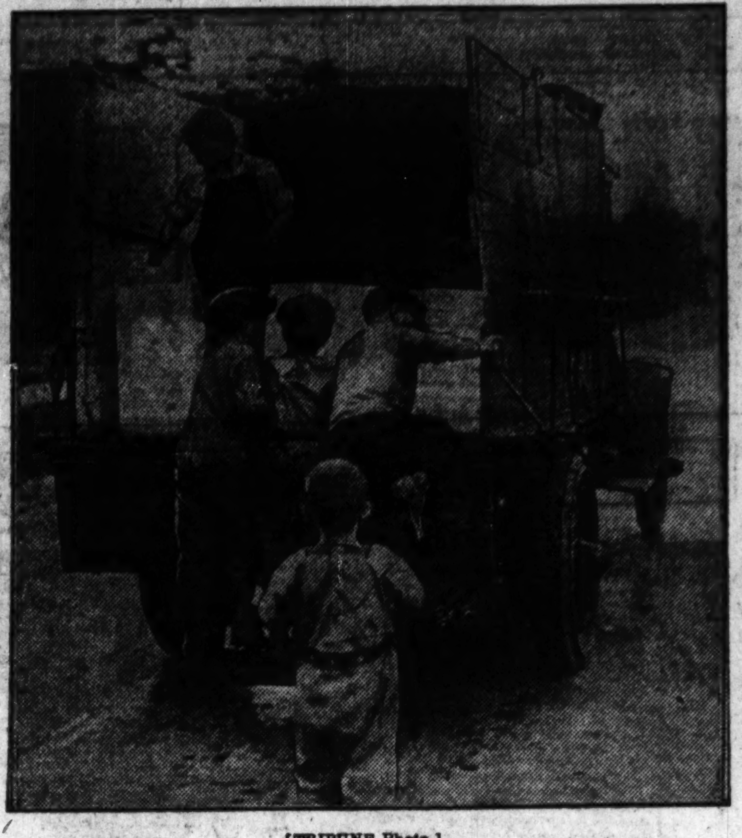
The weather of the last two days reminds us all that summer is coming—if not already here.

Four Killed, One Injured When Train Hits Auto

Buffalo, N. Y., June 2.—Four persons were killed and one was hurt today when an Erie train hit an automobile at the Erie railroad grade crossing near Gowanda.

HAVE YOU TRIED THIS TO KEEP COOL?

Hundreds of children kept cool while the mercury was hovering around 85 degrees by playing at the Oak Street beach. Virginia Barnett (left) and Helen Stone found the lake the coolest place in town.



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

These children had an advantage over their elders yesterday. Whenever an ice wagon hove into view there was no sense of dignity to keep them from a mad rush and a scramble for bits of ice.

WARM WAVE DUE TO BLANKET CITY FOR ANOTHER DAY

Lake's Temperature Now Around 60.

No break in the heat is seen for today though yesterday's short shower of rain may be repeated. This is the prediction of Prof. Henry J. Cox, government forecaster.

"I can see no change for several days," he said. "Yesterday the temperature rose close to Friday's mark of 86 degrees. The heavy shower in the middle of the afternoon yesterday was caused by the rising of air to colder strata, where its vapor condensed and was precipitated. Showers tomorrow may result from the same conditions."

Clouds Lower Temperature.

The same explanation was given for clouds hovering over the city yesterday afternoon, which brought the temperature down at 2 o'clock from 85 to 84 degrees.

Thousands visited the beaches yesterday to enjoy their first lake breeze without the discomfort attending cold winds and heavy garments. Scores of bathers appeared, but usually after a chilly plunge were content to sun themselves on the sand.

Lake Warms Up.

Practical assurance that the lake will be considerably warmed by June 16, the official opening date of the beaches, was given by Prof. Cox, who said that, barring unexpected cold weather, the normal for June, 66 degrees, should be reached.

Reports from several beaches yesterday gave the average temperature of the water at from 58 to 60 degrees, an increase of almost ten degrees in three days.

In an obituary of Mrs. Natalie Hryniewiecka, published in Saturday's TRIBUNE, it was stated erroneously that Mrs. Hryniewiecka had been a leader among Lithuanians of Chicago. She was in reality prominently identified with the Ukrainians of this city, and was widely known for patriotic service during the war.

U. S. Buys British Horses; London Sees a Mystery

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, June 2.—[Tribune Radio.]—Lord Riddle's News of the World tomorrow will make a great mystery over the alleged recent activity of American military agents in England, who are stated to have been "closely studying British cavalry methods, buying up all the horses they can find, provided they are suitable for cavalry purposes." An average price of $400, it is said, is being offered.

RUMOR OF UPHAM RESIGNATION IS NOT BELIEVED

He's Europe Bound, but Friends Deny It.

Frederick W. Upham of Chicago treasurer of the Republican national committee, sailed yesterday for Europe with Mrs. Upham. During the day there developed a rumor in New York that Mr. Upham had resigned or was about to resign from the national committee treasurership because he opposed the policy of John T. Adams, the committee chairman, whose recent statement denunciatory of other nations was said to be displeasing to Mr. Harding and Secretary Hughes.

Friends Deny Rumor.

Mr. Upham, of course, was not reached last night, but others of the committee said they were sure he had no intention of resigning. The theory on which the rumor in New York developed was that Mr. Upham would resign, thereby forcing a meeting of the committee and a showdown, and the possible retirement of Adams.

One of Mr. Upham's Chicago friends said he had heard Mr. Upham say he thought the treasurer should be an eastern man, but others said he had given no hint of a resignation.

To Return in September.

Mr. Upham does not expect to return to America until September. The question of plans for the next national convention does not arise regularly until next December.

VIENNA, June 2.—Andrew Lachman and his wife were murdered and buried in the garden of their villa outside of Budapest, the police discovered this morning. Mr. Lachman, a rich baker, who had lived for many years in the United States, is supposed to have been the victim of the anti-Semitic feeling.

CORNER STONE OF CONVENT WILL BE LAID TOMORROW

Solemn high mass will be celebrated at 10 o'clock with a sermon by the Rev. George Beemsterboer. The corner stone will be laid following mass. A dinner will then be served for the visiting and invited clergy. Father Dondanville was ordained in 1898 by the Rt. Rev. James Edward Quigley, bishop of Buffalo, later archbishop of Chicago.

IMMIGRANT LAW KEEPS CANADIAN BRIDE FROM U. S.

Toronto, June 2.—All but three of 100 passengers on a Toronto and Hamilton train to Buffalo were held by American immigration authorities at Bridgeburg, on the international border, last night.

Among the passengers barred from entry to the United States were many women, including a Toronto girl bound for Rochester, N. Y., to marry a resident of that city, and a mother with two children who was going to Pittsburgh to join her husband.

Exhaustion of the British immigration quota was the reason ascribed for the detention of the passengers by American immigration officials.

"BULLET PROOF" MORO PROPHET AND 52 KILLED

Filipino Fanatics Are Beaten in Battle.

BY WALTER WILGUS.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MANILA, June 2.—Acbara, "bullet proof" prophet of the Moros, and fifty-two of his followers were killed in a battle with the Filipino constabulary on the island of Pata, hotbed of Mohammedan uprisings, on May 30, according to a telegram received today by Governor General Leonard Wood. Thirty of the fanatical Moros were also killed in a battle on May 19.

The death of Acbara is expected to end the religious uprisings which have menaced the island for three years.

Following the killing of their chief, 806 of the Moros surrendered to the United States force. About 200 of the fanatics, including three leaders, are still at large.

Col. Ole Waloe, district inspector of the department of Mindanao and Sulu, has sent an ultimatum to the remainder of the Moro band, demanding their immediate surrender.

Acbara, according to constabulary officials, was a trader until he began preaching religious warfare. He claimed Mohammed appeared before him from out of a cloud, and told him it was the divine wish of Allah that he drive all the Christian Filipinos into the sea. He said Mohammed demanded that he establish in the Sulu archipelago a government responsible only to Allah.

Acbara built a fort on a high hill on the island of Pata, where he claimed to hold daily communion with Allah. He gave his followers charms, which he said would make them immune to hunger and thirst, turn aside the spears of their enemies, and cause hostile bullets to fall to the ground like raindrops.

Civic and Busines Leaders Protest Small's Road Bill

Letters were sent yesterday to members of the house of representatives at Springfield by William G. Edens, president of the Associated Roads Organizations of Chicago and Cook County, giving the names of twenty-four business, civic and automobile organizations that have gone on record against the proposed $100,000,000 road bond issue. Advising that all these organizations were in favor of the "pay as you go" plan of building roads, Mr. Edens asked the members of the house to vote against the measure.

"France's Black Legions" Cause Stir in London

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, June 2.—[Tribune Radio.]—Under the headline "France's Black Legions" the News of the World tomorrow publishes a long article describing the French activity in enlisting 100,000 Negroes, Arabs, and Asiatics from Indo-China in the French army. The French headquarters staff, declares the News of the World, reckons upon being able to draw upon these forces to the number of 1,000,000 highly trained men in the event of future European conflict.

CROSS COUNTRY FLIGHT OF BABY PLANE ON TODAY

Barbot Plans Exhibition Trip of Air Flivver.

New York, June 2.—[Special.]—Aeronautical authorities and persons interested in the mastery of the air will have a second opportunity to witness an exhibition of "power soaring" by a flying flivver tomorrow, when Georges Barbot ascends from Roosevelt field in the Dewointine "moto-aviette." Barbot will make several flights over Long Island, and unless bad weather or mechanical difficulties prohibit, will start on his first cross country trip shortly after 1 p. m.

Barbot was to have flown to West Point on Friday. But after two test flights over Roosevelt field, both of which surprised experts who attended the exhibition, the young Frenchman announced that the propeller was not given sufficient power to permit a cross country flight.

"I deeply regret it," said Barbot, "but until I can put on a new propeller I do not believe it safe to attempt even so short a cross country flight. I am sorry to disappoint the authorities at West Point."

Barbot's purpose in flying to the seat of America's military school is to give the future officers of our army a correct idea of soaring and to convince them that flying can be accomplished at a low cost. His airplane flies about eighty-five miles on a gallon of gasoline, depending, of course, upon the wind.

But tomorrow—if weather permits—he will make the journey. The difficulty with the propeller was adjusted today.

'Mosquito' Army Advances on Oak Park; Citizens Flee

"Armies" of mosquitoes left their breeding grounds along the water of the Des Plaines river late yesterday and launched an attack on unsuspecting residents of Oak Park and River Forest, forcing them into their homes and screened porches. The Oak Park fire department used oil of citronella to keep the pests away.

LUNDIN TRIAL TO OPEN WITH MOVE TO FREE PIQUETT

State Plans No Contest on "Minor Angle."

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

One of the first actions at the opening of the school board conspiracy trial in Judge Charles A. McDonald's court tomorrow morning will be a motion which is expected to free Louis Piquett, former city prosecutor, who is named in the coal "rakeoff" counts of the blanket indictment under which Fred Lundin and twenty-one co-defendants are being tried.

Attorney Patrick H. O'Donnell will make the motion, urging that, as Piquett was named in another indictment for the same offense, and as that indictment was made void by failure to bring him to trial during four terms of court in which he sought trial, Piquett cannot again be placed in jeopardy. The state will not oppose this plea and Judge McDonald is expected to grant the motion. This will free Piquett forever.

Feared to Peril Main Case.

"We could not try Piquett in advance of the main conspiracy because practically the same evidence and several of the same defendants were involved," said Assistant Attorney General Marvin Barnhart yesterday. "We felt that this might endanger the main case and that the people demanded of us that the responsible school board members be tried first. This Piquett indictment was a minor affair and we wanted to keep on the main track. We feel that under the law we cannot oppose the motion to strike his name from the blanket indictment."

The first indictment against Piquett was permitted to lapse Feb. 3 last under the four term act. He had made four demands for trial in four successive terms of court and had been refused. Under this indictment Piquett was charged with seeking and obtaining a rakeoff of 50 cents a ton on coal sold the board of education. The second indictment is less specific, but links his name with those of Lundin and Edwin S. Davis in demanding and obtaining for themselves and others "divers large sums of money from the said Charles Coal company."

Says He "Gambled and Won."

Before the grand jury Piquett explained his possession of large sums of money by saying that he had gambled and won. In this connection the prophecy of the late A. B. Seelenfreund, who was secretary of the special grand jury until his death a few weeks ago in Memphis, is recalled. Speaking Feb. 25 before an open session of the grand jury in Judge M. L. McKinley's court, Mr. Seelenfreund said:

"We do not know the intricacies of the law. We do not know the lanes and pitfalls and many obstacles that the lawyers and the court and the prosecuting attorneys have to contend with, but these men of the grand jury, what must they think when one man, who is indicted, and who, in open grand jury session, confessed that he is a professional gambler, willing to run to that shame and disgrace so as to have a means of explaining how he obtained sums of money, and a man like that is indicted by the grand jury, it is somebody's fault, in the minds of the laymen and the grand jury, that his case was stricken from the calendar and he was to be no longer prosecuted for that offense.

Prediction Is Cited.

"We have been told by the attorney general's deputies that that was a necessary move, that he is to be included in that blanket indictment, to which your layman now replies in open court, your honor, even daring to do so in the presence of such high lights of the legal profession, that the same charge, being contained in that first indictment against that man as it is contained in the blanket indictment, I hardly believe he can be tried again under the blanket indictment."

When the Piquett matter is disposed of tomorrow, Assistant Attorney General Hobart Young will outline the theory of the prosecution. He will be followed by Mr. Barnhart, who will tell the facts the state expects to prove.

On Tuesday Mr. O'Donnell will open for the defense, and Attorney Clarence Darrow will close. This is the first time that Mr. Darrow has made an opening statement in ten years, and peculiar importance attaches to his statements and those of M. O'Donnell. It is anticipated that their statements of what they expect to prove may result in shortening the case, heading off the introduction of certain evidence.

Juror Inquiry Lags.

No action is expected to result at present from the disclosures regarding the attempt to influence the family of Carl Gauck, former juror in the case. No investigation has been demanded from any source. It was learned that the original motion to release Gauck from the jury came from Attorney Ben Short, who learned after the man had been accepted that there was a possibility that his own family and the family of the juror were distantly related.

Mr. Darrow said yesterday that he had issued strict orders to his investigators some time ago not to go near the families of jurors in their search for information regarding connections and habits and political leanings.

CRIPPLE GIVEN $30,000 FOR ODD RAIL ACCIDENT

Joseph Woods, 1826 Belmont avenue, was awarded $30,000 damages by a jury in Superior court yesterday. He had sued the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad after he had been injured in an accident which made him a cripple for life.

The trial of a week was taken up by testimony by some twenty experts who discussed the probability of an accident such as that in which Woods was injured. Woods, a switchman, was working in the company's yards when a coupling between two cars broke and hurled a heavy iron bar against his back.

At the first trial, a verdict of $16,500 was reached. The Appellate court ordered a new trial, with the $30,000 verdict the result.

WARD'S LETTERS BARE WOOING OF HIS JILTED BRIDE

Lured from Ex-Mate by Judge, 73, Hint.

may be able to be in 'our home' by Feb. 1.

"I am now writing on my knee, where I wish you were, darling. I have no temperature, which is a good thing, and thinking of the future and of you, dear heart, keeps me in good spirits.

"I bought a steamer trunk. Had it initialed. Should get my clothes from Chicago not later than today. I presume my little purveyor looked after my white vest, did she?

"Everybody is lovely (i. e., the family), and are ready to receive you as they receive me, and I just know all is well and am so happy.

"This is an awful dull day, but how pleasant it would be if we were alone in your little home at 805 Sunnyside avenue [Chicago], curled up on the lounge—locked in each other's arms—looking into each other's eyes—enjoying the nectar from each other's lips—and dreaming???? O, Billie, Billie, is this happiness to be ours?"

"MERRIE CHRISTMAS!"

Again on Christmas day, Dec. 25, 1922, the judge wrote: "Darling Billee, Merrie Christmas—no mail delivery today, so I went to the P. O. hoping to hear from you. I received your wire that you had written and, oh, sweetheart, it brought the prayer that you may always be so.

"Now, dearie, about our trip after the supreme event. I'm going to be just as nice about it as I can be and let you have your own way about it. At the same time I will say for myself that I don't care a cent about the New York City trip.

"I stopped writing to attend the Knights Templar Christmas exercises. Very pleasant, indeed; they are mighty nice fellows, I tell you, and I hope you will meet them. Say, darling, they seem to be all agog to see what Christmas time is going to bring me. . . .

"Just think, one week from today we will be together. I am just thrilled with the thought. And, by the way, you speak of thrills and thrills (won't you please, sub rosa, save a few thrills for me)?

"I Love You! I Love You!"

"You wanted a clock and I sent you a watch. Did not send a fancy one for style only, but one for use so you can keep watch on me. I always carry one for the same purpose, so look out. I live in anticipation of the time when I can say, 'The world go hang,' when you are wholly mine and we can experience that oneness which above all else spells content, love and happiness.

"I'll be supremely happy. I feel as if I could tell you how I love you all day; but wait, I'll tell you that all the rest of my life. Home, the dearest local word on earth. House, love, contentment.

"Oh, I love you, I love you, I love you! Au revoir, darling. Your Harry."

A Word About Expense.

Just before their marriage Mrs. Ward received this letter of caution:

"Dear Billie Girl: Don't order our announcements made until I see you. I wish to know what I'm doing in pretty much all matters of expenditure. I want you to believe I love you and within my limitation will do everything you desire. I love you, Billie, I love you. Harry."

TALKS TO HER SON

"My Dear One: Nothing to write of interest except to reiterate I love you, but as the expression as well as the sentiment never grows old it will bear repetition, just as long, however, as the recipient reciprocates," reads one of the letters written by the jurist at the height of his courtship, after he had returned from a visit to the then Mrs. Marshall in Chicago.

"I took Charles (her 19 year old son by a former marriage) back up town, where he took the elevated. I think he is becoming a little more reconciled. I can't see why he should have any just cause for alarm, as you can love him just as much as ever and love me, too.

"He is quite young and doesn't appreciate the demands upon a young man looking into the future. Girls, theaters, and dances will eat any man's salary, be it much or little. Now, darling, I have nothing to write about except to say I miss you and long for you, but it will not be for long. All my love, sweetheart. Your Harry."

"AS TO MY MUSTACHE"

"My Dear One.—Yes, dear, I shall also be glad when we are in our own home, living in accord and full confidence without which life together would be but a mockery.

"As to my mustache, now, I know it does not show up well on my photo. I just went in off the street and sat for it. There is a professional cut for a lawyer's mustache that I will have; in fact, it is already in that shape. I will not ape Charlie Chaplin on the one side nor Buffalo Bill on the other. There is a certain dignity which I shall try to maintain.

"You speak of not being demonstrative. Yes, I notice you are not. But I recall that you were at first. Very much so, in fact. I have also noticed a sudden change and called your attention to it on several occasions. I have also noticed your apparent desire not to be alone with me. Perhaps this was only apparent and not real, at least I hope so. But so it was that we have had no opportunity to have those heart-to-heart talks we should have had and which I desired.

"Now, my own dear wife-to-be, don't think I am scolding or finding fault. I know that 'life is real, life is earnest' and must be considered. Will certainly be happy when we are once to ourselves, just you and I, where each will be to the other the main object in life, where no discord may arise that love will not promptly dissipate. Keep well, sweetheart, and continue to love irrespective of views on certain discussed subjects. That is the test. With all my love, your Harry."

"BEHAVE YOURSELF"

In another letter which preceded their journey to the Alabama rendezvous where they were married the jurist said:

"My Own Darling: Am sending you a check for carfare. I know how attractive you are, so behave yourself. Of course we will be getting acquainted all the time.

"Surely you won't object to my getting a room under the same roof. I'd like to be in the same car. Perhaps you might get frightened at something and need me.

"O, this is all tommyrot and bosh! We'll just let things drift. Did you ever notice two pieces of driftwood in a calm lake? Unless they are too far apart they always reach shore side by side at least.

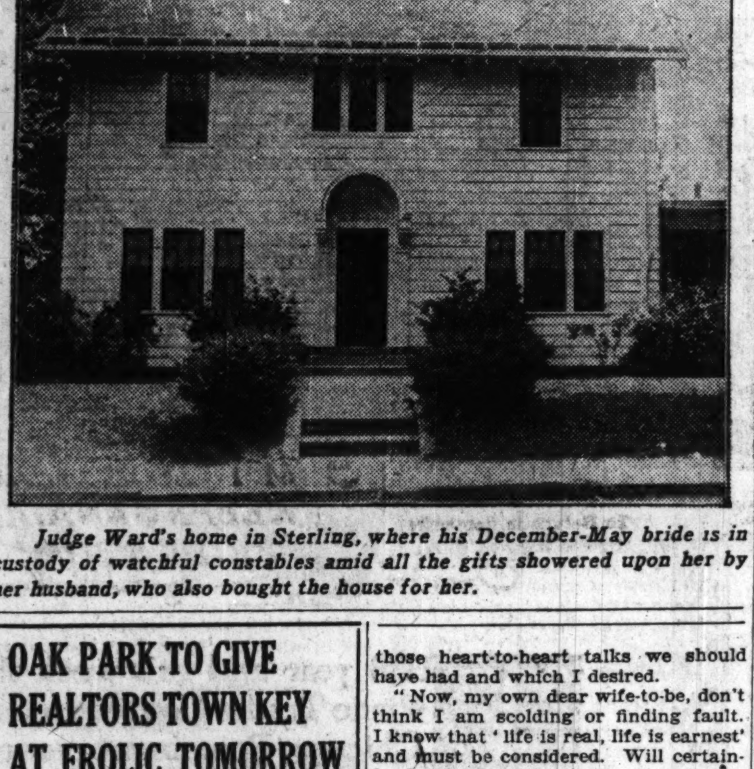
"With all my love, expressed and unexpressed, your lover, HARRY."

CLOUDS PILE UP

Difficulties encountered early in March were overcome when Mrs. Ward's displeasure with the judge, which caused her to threaten to leave him, was assuaged with the following: "For God's sake, Billie, stop and think what you are doing. I know I have acted like a fool, but just think all your leaving me would mean. Please, for God's sake, think of my children and the humiliation it would bring upon me."

Later, exasperated at Mrs. Ward's alleged extravagance, the aged jurist is said to have offered her $500 to leave him and seek a divorce or allow him to do so. The offer was refused by Mrs. Ward, who admits she had authorized her attorneys to seek a $3,000 settlement.

The judge's son, Philip Ward, then is declared to have ordered her to leave Sterling. When she declined the annulment petition was filed and the warrant sworn out charging her with marrying before a year after her divorce.



Judge Ward's home in Sterling, where his December-May bride is in custody of watchful constables amid all the gifts showered upon her by her husband, who also bought the house for her.

Milk Consumption in Cities Increases; Declines on Farm

Washington, D. C., June 2.—Persons living in cities in the United States consumed on an average of two gallons more milk in 1922 than the year before according to figures announced today by the department of agriculture. Decreased consumption of milk in the rural communities last year, however, pulled down the increase to one gallon per capita for the country.

300,000 SHRINERS EXPECTED; GALA WEEK IN CAPITAL

Washington, D. C., June 2.—[Special.]—The festivities attending the national Shrine convention will begin early tomorrow when it is estimated that 30,000 members will gather at Union station to greet James S. McCandless, imperial potentate.

Shrine headquarters estimated tonight that there were already 50,000 visitors in the city. Prediction was made that within another twenty-four hours fully 100,000 more would arrive by motor and rail. Estimates of the maximum size of the crowd vary from 300,000 to 500,000.

President Harding will review the parade, starting at 8 o'clock Wednesday night. The President, himself a Shriner, tomorrow afternoon will dedicate the Zero milestone on the ellipse just south of the White House.

The principal features of Monday's program will be a pilgrimage to Mount Vernon and the arrival of the transcontinental caravan under the leadership of Capt. Bernard S. McMahon. Early Tuesday there will be a parade of uniformed bodies on Pennsylvania avenue. Pageants, exhibitions and parades will then follow in almost unceasing succession through the remainder of the week. Crack cavalry regiments and airplane squadrons will give exhibitions.

SHRINERS STOP IN CHICAGO.

There was an unwonted color about the loop district yesterday as Shriners from the north and northwest, many of them in their uniforms, arrived in Chicago on their way to the national convention at Washington, D. C. Among them was Imperial Potentate McCandies of Aloha Temple, Honolulu, accompanied by members of Islam Temple of San Francisco. Other temples represented were Aad Temple, Duluth; Abu Behn Temple, Sioux City, Ia.; El Zazel Temple, Fargo, N. D.; El Riad Temple, Sioux Falls, S. D., and El Kader Temple, Portland, Oregon.

The Chicago party, numbering 1,000, leaves for Washington today, on four special trains on the Pennsylvania railroad. With them will go the Medinah Oriental band and the famous Medinah chanters. A brass band of 110 pieces and a headquarters company of 72 nobles will complete the party.

INDIANAPOLIS K. K. K. WORKS TO FOIL TOLERANCE

Efforts to stop the publishing of the names of 12,208 alleged members of the Indianapolis chapter of the Ku Klux Klan were made last night by Attorney Charles G. Palmer, representing the klan, who said he had information that the G. B. Williams company, printer, had been ordered by officials of Tolerance, anti-klan magazine, to print copies of the list of names to be scattered throughout the state of Indiana.

Attorney Palmer sought Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson at his home in Glencoe, and got him to issue an order to the United States marshal seizing and impounding all lists and printed matter in the hands of the printing company, which also prints the magazine.

Judge Wilkerson last week impounded a copy of the list of names filed in a petition asking the court to dissolve a temporary injunction restraining Tolerance from disclosing them.

50 Reptiles Escape and Hold Up Fast Mail Train

Scotts Bluff, Neb., June 2.—Snakes held up the Denver to Alliance mail train this morning when fifty reptiles, part of a carnival menagerie, escaped from their cage on the train between Sterling and Bridgeport. The train was held up for nearly half an hour while the carnival attendants worked to recapture the rattlers, bull snakes and other species in the collection.

BUSINESS, SPORT JOIN IN DEMAND FOR EXTRA HOUR

Outdoor Life Spoiled if Daylight Saving Ends.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES.

Chicago business men, athletic associations, and neighborhood groups yesterday joined the city's widespread protest against the Wright bill, now in the lower house at Springfield, which purposes to legislate the sun down officially at the same hour all over the state. Representative Chicagoans insist upon making this municipality safe for that extra hour of daylight which is obtained by the daylight saving plan.

The Chicago Association of Commerce, through George W. Rossetter, chairman of its daylight saving committee, issued a statement to the effect that "Chicago's citizens are justly aroused over the attempt being made in the Illinois general assembly to pass a law that will prohibit municipalities from adopting daylight saving."

"We're Enjoying It."

Chicago, the statement points out, is now enjoying its sixth summer of "new time," and, "if it were so bad and unpopular as some would have us believe, we would have discovered that fact by this time."

Nor is the city's business suffering because it punches a time clock that jerks ahead an hour for five months each summer.

"Of course," declares Mr. Rossetter, "the chief beneficiaries of daylight saving are the hundreds of thousands of employés in our stores, offices, and factories. They have an extra hour of light for recreation. It seems remarkable that any one should advocate a state law to deprive them of this privilege."

The report concludes with the hope that "we will be able to convince the members of the house of representatives that this is a local issue which should be decided by the people of Chicago for themselves."

Boon for Athletics.

The twilight of amateur athletics, due to the extra hour of daylight, has brought thousands of recruits into the field of athletics, according to the Amateur Athletic federation, which urged the defeat of the Wright bill.

"Save the daylight saving!" demands a message which the federation forwarded to Springfield. The federation is composed of the following nineteen organizations: Chicago Boys' club, Chicago Sunday School association, Illinois Turnbezirk, Industrial Athletic Association of Chicago, International Gymnastic union, Federation of Settlements, Lincoln park commissioners, municipal playgrounds, Normal School of Physical Education, Polish Falcons' alliance, district 2; Social Center league, Sokol Union of America, south park commissioners, west park commissioners, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., board of education playgrounds, and Boys' Brotherhood Republic.

The federation committee, composed of V. K. Brown, superintendent, south park playgrounds; T. J. Smergalski, superintendent, west park; J. S. Andresen, Y. M. C. A., and Dr. R. A. Allen, federation president, urged Springfield to consider "the social rather than the selfish, economic aspects of daylight saving."

Blow to Healthful Sport.

Business and working men's twilight athletics and games, they maintain, would virtually disappear from hundreds of outdoor fields if the clock goes back.

"Since daylight saving time was inaugurated hundreds of tennis courts, several golf courses, dozens of baseball diamonds, and acres of boat harborage have been added to Chicago's public play equipment in the parks alone."

Railway workers, according to their representatives, have never made an issue of the oldtime-new time schedule under which they operate.

Four Kiwanis clubs, those of Hyde Park, Woodlawn, Englewood and Garfield boulevard, adopted resolutions indorsing daylight saving. They forwarded copies of the indorsement to Gov. Small and every member of the legislature.

RUM GENII MAKES DOG CATCHER'S SON AN ALADDIN

Hip! Hip! Then Comes Gold Knob Palace.

Joliet Nights, a tale of a dog catcher's son who rubbed the prohibition law and became possessed of a mansion with gold door knobs, was in preparation yesterday for an afternoon's reading to the federal grand jury.

As A. C. Earnshaw, head of the government's special intelligence unit, expects to relate the story, it centers about Mr. Lawrence Crowley of Joliet, who prefixed the "Mr." to his name when he discarded his youthful title of "Butch." The genii began building his castle, buying him automobiles, and easing him into evening clothes right after he stumbled upon a certain magical open sesame formula, "Anti-Volstead! Hip! Hip!" Mr. Earnshaw learned.

Listen, My Children—

As pieced together from the gossip of admiring fellow townsmen, who marvel at the rise to fortune of Lawrence "Butch" Crowley, Mr. Earnshaw is able to present this present day Who's Who and Wet or Dry:

"Butch Crowley was the humble son of Joliet's best dog catcher. Ambitious to rise in life, he began his after-the-army career as a chauffeur and garage hand, earning about $100 per month.

"Driving trucks gave him an insight into the beer running business. He learned there was no more danger in hauling his own beer than in delivering some one's else to some one else, thereby proving his adaptability. He was on the road to the gold door knobbed home.

Troubles of an Aladdin.

"He acquired first a truck, then some beer, later a brewery or two. He couldn't drink all his own beer nor could he spend all his own money. That's where his first troubles began.

"Evening clothes, sport suits, snappy togs, took the place of overalls. The $45,000 home on Raynor avenue, in Joliet's most exclusive residential section, took the place of his former abode.

"He also sought a change in companionship, and proposed himself for membership in the said Commercial club, but was rejected.

"He bought the club house, intending to oust club members and all. He paid $70,000, it is said.

He Becomes "Town Topic."

"Then he became the 'town topic.' Joliet people just loved to talk about him and his ways. For instance there was the time of the picture sale. Works of art, more than Joliet needed, were offered. The art salesmen were referred to Mr. Crowley.

"'My Chicago interior decorators tell me pictures are not in vogue this year,' he told them.

"Then there were the police dogs at $1,000 each, folks said."

Earnshaw's story ended. Action started. The talk of the Joliet folks led him to two breweries, one in Elgin, the other in Pekin, Ill., said to be the sources of Crowley's prosperity. Raids were made. The directors' list did not contain the name of Crowley, but the quiet work that has been done since is said to be the basis for Earnshaw's desire to tell the story all over for the benefit of the grand jurors.

FIND DEATH OF WOMAN IN FIRE WAS ACCIDENT

A verdict of accidental death was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury at the inquest over Mrs. Julia Sack, 27 years old, who was burned to death in her home at 2400 South Spaulding avenue, on Friday night when her clothing was ignited by fire in the kitchen. George Sack, her husband, who was out when the fire occurred, was released after the inquest.

REALTORS' SAFE FACES RAID IN HUNT FOR GRAFT

McKinley Acts to Unseal Lips in Inquiry.

Aroused by the continued refusal of certain witnesses appearing before the special grand jury investigating city hall graft to answer questions put to them by assistant attorneys general, together with the refusal of one real estate "expert" to reveal the combination of a safe in which are books deemed of importance to the inquiry, Chief Justice Michael McKinley yesterday took steps "to get what the jury wants."

He ordered subpœnaes duces tecum for all the books and records of the real estate concern of Koch & Co. at 2603 South Halsted street. Frank Koch and Arnold J. Brautigam, partners in the company, recently were sentenced to the county jail for contempt of court, following their refusal to testify.

Seek Books of Concern.

The day after the men were sent to jail it was brought to the attention of Judge McKinley that the books of the concern probably would show the jurors some evidence of alleged graft payments to city hall politicians.

Louis Koch, brother of Frank, was asked for the combination to the vault in which the books are stored. He told the judge he did not know the combination, but would get it from his brother. He returned a short time later with the statement his brother had refused to give it to him.

"I am tired of having these men try to slow down the investigation by refusing to give us what we want," Chief Justice McKinley told Assistant Attorney General Frederick Brown, in charge of the investigation. "If Koch doesn't give up the combination I will issue orders to my deputies to blow the safe and bring in the books over Koch's protest."

Pair Released on Writ.

Shortly before the issuance of the subpoenas Koch and Brautigam were released from jail on a writ of supersedeas issued by the state Supreme court. It was said that the grand jury intends to call them again in a day or so.

It was also learned that investigation of the $30,000,000 traction fund set aside during the Thompson administration might be hampered by a shortage of funds to keep it alive. When the jury was sworn in for the June term during the day, it was announced by Mr. Brown that of the $50,000 appropriated for investigation of city hall affairs, $29,240 had been expended.

A letter addressed to Martin J. O'Brien, city comptroller, by Mr. Brown was delivered to the office of the former shortly before noon. It makes a demand in behalf of the grand jury for information as to the status of the fund.

The report will be presented to the grand jury as soon as it is received, according to Mr. Brown.

MOIST GOVERNOR, LIKE AL, HOPE OF ILLINOIS 'DAMPS'

Cermak Lists Some Timber for 1924 Battle.

not favor any further attempt at legislation at this session.

The Anti-Saloon league, on the other hand, has three bills pending in which it is interested and hopes they will be passed by the general assembly.

F. Scott McBride said yesterday that the referendum which was said to have showed that the people of Illinois want light wines and beer had no particular significance. "We did not make any fight on that question of public policy," said Mr. McBride. "We went along supporting candidates for the legislature who would vote upon the question, and it is quite evident that the legislature does not agree with Mr. Cermak's view of the situation.

Pictures Handicap for New York.

"The New York repeal of the state prohibition law means that that state will be without any state law with which to enforce prohibition and receive the fines for such enforcement. It will not, however, affect the Volstead act, the national legislation, which, under the state constitution and the national constitution, will be enforced in New York the same as in other states. It means that the state will be handicapped in doing its duty in relation to the federal constitution, however.

"The chief purpose of this repeal on the part of the wets, controlling as they do the legislature and the governor being wet, is to initiate wet propaganda to carry out their program of breaking down enforcement within the state. This encourages the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment in its program to go into other states and repeal legislation.

Points to "Gains."

"We gained more in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts than we lost in New York. Both of those states enacted prohibition legislation at the late session of their legislatures. The net result in the entire country is now that only two states, New York and Maryland, are without state prohibition.

"The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment has announced that its next objective is Illinois. It was decisively defeated in the legislature last week, but it is its purpose to go into every legislative district of the state in the primary which will be held in April, 1924, and win enough members, if it can, to repeal the Illinois prohibition act, as it has done in New York.

League Girding for Battle.

"The Anti-Saloon league is now getting ready for this battle and others before us on law enforcement. The statement in the press that the league is quitting is incorrect. One of the agents quit, that is all. The fight is just reaching a climax. Enforcement is not what it should be and the league will never quit until it is as it should be.

"We are enlarging our work, especially in Chicago and other wet centers. We have three superintendents in Chicago now, while a few years ago we had only one. At an early date we will add another attorney to the two who now devote their entire time to league work. We have nine district superintendents throughout Illinois and a field force of between twenty-five and thirty."

"There will be no wet governor elected in Illinois and no men standing for nullification of any constitutional provision or lessening of law enforcement will enter the White House."

Some of League's Bills.

The league's bill, dubbed "murder moonshine," has passed the senate by a vote of 39 to 0 and has been reported out of the house judiciary committee with a favorable recommendation. This bill makes a man guilty of murder who sells wood alcohol or other poison for a beverage.

Another bill seeks to create a powerful weapon with which county and city officials may be readily pried out of office if they fail to enforce the prohibition law. This is a bill which permits the attorney general, the state's attorney or ten electors to petition the Circuit court to remove any official for misfeasance in office. It is patterned after the Iowa law on this subject. The bill has passed the senate and is now pending in the house.

Still another bill on third reading in the house gives to the attorney general the fines where the prosecution was on evidence obtained by that office, but the fines must be used for law enforcement. It also encourages law enforcement by county officials by a like process.

CITY COUNCIL "WET"

The Washington announcement of Congressman Fred A. Britten that he will present a bill at the first opportunity to legalize the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer, with all the revenue therefrom to be devoted to paying soldiers a bonus, was indorsed by the Chicago city council Dec. 28, 1921. The vote was 52 to 6.

Many of the aldermen claimed that the local city council originated this idea. The request was sent to the United States senate and house and to the governor of Illinois.

The resolution adopted reads as follows:

"Resolved, That it is the sense of the city council of the City of Chicago in meeting assembled, that the congress of United States of America and the State of Illinois, amend and modify existing prohibition laws under their respective jurisdiction and within their proper powers which will permit the manufacture, sale, and distribution of wholesome beers and light wines, and that all governmental revenue derived from such permission be set aside as a separate fund for the payment of bonuses to ex-service men."

The preamble recited a number of opinions criticising the prohibition act which were indorsed by the aldermen.

Other views of Chicago aldermen were expressed on Jan. 11, 1922, when Ald. Lyle presented a resolution praising police work in enforcing the liquor law.

Mr. Cermak presented a substitute urging congress to amend the Volstead act and it was adopted, 52 to 4.

Kept Mails Moving for 51 Years

Resigned Months Ago

After serving fifty-one years in the postal service, Thomas Kenny, superintendent of the Chicago Lawn postal substation, retired yesterday, when his resignation, tendered several months ago, became effective. Mr. Kenny is 72 years old and resides at 5730 Princeton avenue. He was twenty-five years in charge of the newspaper inspection department of the main postoffice, and has since served as superintendent of five postal substations, his service in each averaging five years. Mr. Kenny was 10 years old when the civil war began and he left his home in Peoria and enlisted in the army as a drummer boy. He was later sent back because of his youth.

CLARA, NO. 37,944 IN PRISON, VOWS GOOD BEHAVIOR

Won't Try to Escape; Says Attempt Was a Mistake.

San Quentin, Cal., June 2.—Mrs. Clara Phillips entered the gates of San Quentin prison at noon today and officially became prisoner number 37,944. She maintained her poise and other than a passionate farewell hug bestowed upon her sister, Mrs. Etta Mae Jackson, she displayed no emotion.

Mrs. Phillips was turned over to Myron T. Clark, captain of the guards at the penitentiary, by Deputy Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz, of Los Angeles county. The deputy sheriff and Mrs. Biscailuz brought Mrs. Phillips more than 6,000 miles from Honduras, where she was sought after her escape from the Los Angeles county jail.

Mrs. Phillips was taken to the women's quarters where Bertillon measurements were made.

Spirited From Train.

San Francisco, June 2.—[By United Press.]—Clara Phillips arrived in San Francisco today and to avoid the throng of curious people and the newspapermen and photographers, assembled at the station, was spirited from the train in the railroad yards, placed in a taxi and dashed across the city to the ferry for San Quentin penitentiary.

"Although I am going to San Quentin I have not abandoned hope," Clara said as her train sped toward San Francisco.

"I will be a model prisoner at the penitentiary. They need have no fear that I will escape. I have made a series of mistakes and my escape to Honduras was one of them and my flight to Arizona was another. I shall not make another."

Cold to Her Husband.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 2.—[United Press.]—"I will tell everything of my relations with the dead girl, Alberta Meadows. I will bare my entire life to save Clara."

That was the anguished cry today of Armour Phillips as Clara, his wife, with her last hope gone, sped toward San Quentin, after a half hour with him here last night. Only an hour before her arrival the "hammer murderess" learned that the Appellate court had denied habeas corpus proceedings for an appeal.

Armour petted, kissed and hugged his wife who treated him with what appeared to be indifference.

"Good by, dear. Be sure and write often," was his final parting as the train pulled out. Clara did not answer him.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 2.—Edward L. Patterson is under arrest today charged with manslaughter following the death of Bennie MacInnis, 8 years old. A car driven by Patterson struck the lad as he was playing in the street.

ASSAIL FLETCHER FOR REPORT ON SANTIAGO PARLEY

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, June 2.—The La Prensa in an editorial more than two columns long today bitterly attacks the report made by Henry P. Fletcher, head of the American delegation, on the Pan-American conference, charging him with untruthfulness, exaggeration and blind optimism in face of the failure of everything the United States had planned to accomplish at Santiago.

It says the incomplete and untruthful reports circulated in the United States by the American delegates to Santiago require rectification in the interest of the future success of pan-Americanism.

The article says the opposition to the American program did not come from the large republics, but from those small ones "like Cuba, Haiti, Domingo, and Venezuela, whose internal affairs are under military and financial domination of the United States." The efforts of these smaller republics, it says, to reorganize the Pan-American union is due to a determination to relieve themselves of American domination if possible.

Liner America, One Cabin Ship, Sails for Europe

New York, June 2.—The liner America of the United States lines, refitted at a cost of $1,000,000 as a single cabin ship, sailed today for Bremen. The ship was reconditioned at the Brooklyn navy yard, and is now able to carry 692 cabin passengers and 1,056 steerage. It is the largest liner of this type, it is said.

MOTHER WINS COURT FIGHT FOR BABY GIRL

Marjorie Gunn, 5 years old, was placed in the custody of her mother, Mrs. Ethel Gunn, 4183 Grand boulevard, yesterday by Judge Harry Lewis. The decision followed a habeas corpus hearing which was instituted by the mother against Mrs. Charles Haskins, 208 South Western avenue.

Mrs. Haskins, who has supported the child for three years, fought the mother's attempt to obtain the little girl. She attacked Mrs. Gunn, who is a chorus girl, on the ground that she was not a proper custodian for her child.

According to the story told by Mrs. Gunn, her husband deserted her and kidnaped Marjorie, giving her to Mr. and Mrs. Haskins for keeping. For financial reasons, she said, she was unable to claim her child until recently.

"French Business Envoys" Are Welcomed to Russia

AMENDMENT 18 MUST PREVAIL, GOVERNORS SAY

Executives Give Views on N. Y. Dry Law Repeal.

New York, June 2.—[Special.]—In response to a request for an expression of their opinion on the main phases involved in the repeal of the Mullan-Gage act and the action of Gov. Smith, the following telegrams have been received:

GOV. PINCHOT [Pa.]—Whatever any other state has done or may do, Pennsylvania will stand by the constitution and laws of the United States. Pennsylvania not only will maintain her partnership with Uncle Sam, but has strengthened it and proposed locally, steadily and confidently to live up to the obligations of that partnership.

GOV. BLAINE [Wis.]—So long as the eighteenth amendment is a part of the law of the land I believe in upholding the constitution and the laws enacted under it. But the eighteenth amendment is not the only law of the land. There are other provisions of the federal and state constitutions as sacred as the eighteenth amendment, and the rights of citizens thereunder should be protected.

Harks Back to Civil War.

GOV. DAVIS [Kas.]—Gov. Smith's attitude creates a divided allegiance to the state and to the nation only paralleled in American history by the nullification doctrine of Calhoun. State and national government should coöperate in law enforcement. No state should do less than required by the federal constitution and the law of congress.

GOV. SWEET [Colorado]—The Democrats of New York cannot put the Democratic party on a wet basis. The action of the governor in repealing the New York prohibition law and urging the return of light wines and geer is only local.

GOV. DENNY [Del.]—I accord to the constitution the fullest measure of devotion, believing that the eighteenth amendment should be honestly fortified by effective federal and state legislation.

Arkansas for This Amendment.

GOV. McRAE [Ark.]—I do not agree with the action or quoted statement of the governor of New York on the prohibition situation. Arkansas is determined to keep her face to the future on prohibition, both state and national, and that there shall be no backward step thereon.

GOV. PARKER [La.]—I have never believed in blue laws and have always advocated temperance and common sense. I have not seen the full text of Gov. Smith's decision, but New York is to be congratulated on having a governor with a backbone, strong convictions, and the manhood to tell the American people exactly where he stands.

GOV. TEMPLETON [Conn.]—This is a New York law, one which concerns New York state alone, and comment by me would not be appropriate.

BRITISH MUSEUM GETS COLLECTION OF CARNARVON

LONDON, June 2.—The Earl of Carnarvon's private collection of antiquities will be presented by his widow to the nation for the British museum, says the Daily Mail.

Lady Carnarvon thereby sacrifices the prospect of greatly adding to her wealth, for the earl's will stipulated that if she decided to sell the collection the British museum should be accorded the first chance to refuse it for £20,000 (about $92,000). This sum is said to be far below the real value of the treasures.

The newspaper asserts that the prospective gift will include whatever part of the treasure found in Tut-Ankh-Amen's tomb is allotted to Lord Carnarvon's estate by the Egyptian authorities.

N. Y. Court Refuses to Act on Arrest of "Wet" Citizen

New York, June 2—Gennaro Celonginoni, arrested last night charged with possessing 110 gallons of wine, was discharged today by Magistrate Goodman on the ground that the court had no jurisdiction since the arrest was made after Gov. Smith signed the repealer. He ordered the policeman to take Celonginoni before a federal commissioner.

David Rosenberg, arrested for alleged violation of the Mullan-Gage act two hours before the governor signed, was held in $1,000 bail for examination.

Boy Burglar Sought as Slayer of Society Woman

Lansing, Mich., June 2.—Authorities investigating the killing last Sunday of Mrs. William T. Britten, society woman, reverted today to their original theory that the crime was committed by a boy burglar. Clews included small footprints around the Britten home. Thus far the investigation has revealed that only a diamond ring was missing. Four suspects have been questioned.

WISCONSIN WETS LAUNCH WAR ON STATE DRY LAW

Smith Puts Politics of 1924 in Turmoil.

of the institution and doubtless would bend if not shatter party lines.

Millions of wet Republicans presumably would support the Democratic candidate, while millions of dry Democrats would vote the Republican ticket. Each party would figure that it had more to gain and less to lose in this respect than the other. As a result of these considerations it falls out that politicians are concerned more, right now, with the shaping of the issues than with individual candidates.

If the wets gain control of the Democratic convention they would be in a strong position to nominate either Al Smith or Senator Underwood of Alabama.

If the drys should be in the saddle the advantage would be with such candidates as William G. McAdoo and Senator Ralston of Indiana.

What Deadlock Will Mean.

If there were a deadlock there would be a chance for John W. Davis of West Virginia, for example. Numerous Democrats would like to know where Henry Ford stands on the issue raised by Al Smith.

In the menatime, the fortunes of factions and candidates are likely to be profoundly affected by conditions produced in New York by the abrogation of the state prohibition enforcement act. Liquor never has been scarce in the metropolis and the general expectation is that it will flow pretty freely now, despite Washington's efforts to enforce the law. The drys will endeavor to put a new enforcement law through the next legislature, despite the prospect of a veto by Smith, and to elect a governor next year who would sign a new bill.

Col. William Hayward, United States district attorney for the southern district of New York, expressed deep disappointment over the action of the governor and dwelling on the futility of the public hearing at which he urged a veto. Col. Hayward is a prospective candidate for the Republican nomination for governor next year, with the indorsement of the drys. One of his opponents may be young Theodore Roosevelt, in whose attitude on the prohibition question there is much interest.

Many Cases to be Dropped.

More than 1,000 persons awaiting trial in the state courts for violation of the state prohibition law are expected to go scot free because juries, it is assumed, would not convict them since the repeal of the act under which they were indicted. Scores arrested for violation of the law after 6 o'clock last night, when the repealer was signed, were turned out of the magistrates' courts, when they were arraigned today. The magistrates instructed the policemen making the arrests to take their prisoners to the federal courts.

Police Commissioner Enright said that the police probably would revert to the procedure in vogue before the enactment of the state prohibition law which was not to go out of their way to enforce prohibition, but to make arrests when violations came to their notice and to aid the federal authorities when requested.

The wide open liquor traffic which both wets and drys prophesied as soon as the repealer was signed has not yet been realized, so far as could be seen tonight. Despite the jubilation of the wets, there did not seem to be any greater supply of liquor, any heavier drinking or any lower prices than before.

The opinion in drinking circles, however, was that with only a comparative handful of federal men in the state New York will soon be very, very wet.

CAPITAL IS BEWILDERED

Washington, D. C., June 2.—[Special.]—A dry drive on congress for increased appropriations to enable the federal government to enforce the Volstead act is in prospect as a result of the action of Gov. Smith of New York, yesterday, in signing the bill repealing the state prohibition enforcement law.

Federal authorities here frankly admitted that it would be difficult, if not well nigh impossible, for the national government, with the funds and forces now available, to cope effectively with the situation presented in New York. The problem may become much more serious if several other states with wet leanings follow New York's lead.

At present congress is appropriating about $10,000,000 annually for the prohibition enforcement unit, headed by Maj. Roy Haynes. This enables the prohibition unit to employ 2,300 agents who are distributed in various parts of the country, according to the degree of wetness.

More Money Is Required.

The appropriation does not include additional funds, which congress has found it necessary to allow the department of justice to handle the thousands of prohibition cases which are swamping the federal courts. During the last hearings before the house appropriations committee, Representative Gallivan [Dem., Mass.], a wet member, estimated that the federal government was spending approximately $15,000,000 to enforce prohibition, practically all of it in communities where local sentiment was admittedly wet.

Any effort to increase this appropriation will be bitterly contested by the wets. Congress has shown an increasing tendency during the last year or two for tightening the purse strings on prohibition enforcement and the wets are confident that they will be able to block any attempt to raise the outlay above the present average annual figure.

Drive on Dry Act Ready.

The wets are not quite so confident, however, that they will be able to accomplish much in the direction of modification of the Volstead act, as suggested by Gov. Smith, during the next session. Bills to permit a more liberal alcoholic content than that now allowed by the Volstead act have already been drafted and will be ready for introduction both in the house and in the senate when congress reconvenes.

The signing of the dry repealer by Gov. Smith, although not unexpected, appeared to have rendered Washington authorities speechless. Haynes declined to talk. E. C. Yellowly, chief of the prohibition agents, will go to New York and lay the facts before Secretary of Treasury Mellon and Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair at a conference early next week. It is expected that this conference will develop the New York policy of the federal government.

Expect Little Aid in New York.

Although Gov. Smith, in the memorandum explaining his action, took occasion to warn the state police authorities that it was still their duty to enforce the Volstead act, it was generally believed here that in the future virtually the whole burden of enforcement would fall upon the federal government.

But concentration in New York in any degree is believed to be of doubtful value because it would immediately leave many other moist places unguarded and would result in even less enforcement in cities other than those of New York state.

Concentration, however, is even less practicable at this particular time, when the prohibition unit is straining all its energies with questionable success in drying up Washington during the Shrine convention, in accordance with President Harding's orders.

The signing of the Mullan-Gage repeal act by Gov. Smith is the latest and most important step in retracing the path to the constitution, and points the way to ultimate modification of the more drastic provisions of the Volstead act, Capt. W. H. Stayton of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment declared today.

Back to Sanity Trend Seen.

"Nothing is more remarkable or of greater encouragement to the real supporters of the constitution than the trend of sentiment throughout the country within the last fifteen months," said Capt. Stayton. "And the highest comfort is obtainable from the fact that legislative, judicial, and executive acts during that period have set the seal of their confirmation to the sanity of the sentiment so expressed.

"In his able statement of the reasons which swayed him in signing the repeal act, Gov. Smith has performed a patriotic duty of the highest order in serving to clear up the confusion and misapprehension regarding the whole situation which has been so sedulously spread by the fanatical prohibition organizations, and particularly the Anti-Saloon league.

"Defeated in Maryland in its recent attempt to put through the harsh enforcement legislation it had there espoused; effecting an empty victory in Pennsylvania through the refusal of the legislature of that state to furnish appropriations for prohibition enforcement; checkmated in Massachusetts, and now repudiated in New York, the Anti-Saloon league is approaching the end of its rope. The reign of the organized minority is over."

Worried Diplomats Awaiting U.S. Ruling on Liquor at Sea

Washington, D. C., June 2.—In the apparent belief that the treasury will apply strictly the supreme court edict against liquor on foreign ships, despite representations from abroad, diplomatic representatives of the maritime powers here are anxiously awaiting a decision as to the date on which the new regulations are to become effective.

Some of the diplomats appear convinced that treasury officials will not adhere to the original decision to put the regulation into effect June 10. In some quarters the hope even is expressed that they may not be issued until congress has had an opportunity to take some action to meet the objections of the foreign powers.

Hope to Gain Delays.

The impression has been gained that the administration itself is disposed to recommend legislation amendatory of the Volstead act and exempting foreign ships in some respects from its application.

Two separate notes, it became known today, have been submitted by the Netherlands legation. One deals with the general principles of international maritime law and the extent of jurisdiction of a state over foreign vessels within its territorial waters, as well as with the principles of comity which have applied from time immemorial to visiting vessels in a foreign port.

Define Rights of Cargo.

The other deals specifically with the right of a foreign vessel to carry any kind of cargo it desires to territorial waters of another state, provided the goods are merely in transit between two foreign ports.

Portugal is the latest foreign government to present representations along practically the same lines as the other nations. It is recalled that Portugal, single handed, was successful in inducing the Norwegian government to lower the bars it had erected against the importation of foreign wines, threatening to retaliate by excluding from importation into Portugal the very large amount of Norwegian dried and salted fish which forms a large part of the diet of the Portuguese.

RECOGNITION OF U. S. OF MEXICO NEAR—OBREGON

Says Both Sides Are Seeking Peace.

BY JOHN CORNYN.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Mexico City, June 2.—President Obregon today, in his first interview since the opening of the international conference, expressed himself to THE TRIBUNE as hopeful of an amicable continuance of the work of the commissioners who are seeking an agreement between the United States and Mexico.

The commissioners on both sides, he said, are inspired with a strong desire to come to an understanding and have found means to avoid difficulties wherever possible. He saw no real reason to justify a prolongation of the interruption of relations between the United States and Mexico.

Explains Catholic Row.

Referring to the struggle in the state of Durango between the Roman Catholics and the government, he said the governor had only carried out one of the provisions of the federal constitution, which authorizes the restriction of the number of priests in each state. This constitutional provision was not framed to hit the church, but to protect the people.

The vast majority of the people in Mexico are very poor. Yet these are called upon to help support an unnecessary number of priests. Restriction of the number of priests of all creeds therefore is in the interest of the public, especially of the lower classes, Señor Obregon said. Neither the government of the state of Durango nor the government of the nation desires to hinder the Roman Catholics or any other church from exercising its functions.

Strive to Aid Masses.

The bill of restriction of the number of priests in Durango aims purely at a social end, the lifting of the burden of maintaining an excessive number of priests from the shoulders of the masses, who scarcely are able to support themselves.

SMITH 'DEAD' FOR PRESIDENCY, IS ANDERSON'S VIEW

New York, June 2.—Gov. Smith's signature has killed his chances of nomination for the presidency, but has strengthened his political standing in the state, William H. Anderson, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, declared today.

Anderson declared that as a result of the gubernatorial action, "the reactionary, young, so-called leaders of the Republican party, including such eminent beer wets as Speaker Machold, U. S. Senator Wadsworth, Theodore Roosevelt, the little, and Ogden L. Mills, found themselves caught in a jam."

SHOTS FROM AUTO KILL ONE WOMAN, WOUND ANOTHER

Los Angeles Faces New Murder Mystery.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 2.—[Special.]—Mrs. Florence Wilcox was killed and Miss Dorothy Miller probably fatally wounded early this morning when they were shot while riding in an automobile. The shooting occurred at about 2 o'clock at Grand avenue and Jefferson boulevard, when, according to Clarence Ogden, driver of the car, another auto drove alongside and several shots were fired from it.

"I didn't think any one was hurt," Ogden told police, "so I stepped on it. It wasn't until some minutes later that I found that the women had been hit."

Finds Companion Still.

He said he was driving down Jefferson street when he noticed that a car which had been following him drove up and that some shots were fired.

After speeding up for a few blocks he said he then noticed that Mrs. Wilcox, who was in front with him, was leaning over the door.

"I told her to sit up straight," he said, "but she didn't answer, so I shook her. She didn't move. I saw that my hands were wet and red. It was not until then that I knew she had been shot."

One Occupant Flees.

Ogden drove from there to the University police station and the women were taken to a receiving hospital, where Mrs. Wilcox lived but a few minutes. Miss Miller is suffering from a wound in the head.

Courtney Stubbs, married, and owner of a pool hall, was also in the car with the women. Following the shooting he disappeared, but was apprehended this afternoon. He tells a story similar to Ogden.

OHIO PROSECUTOR OFFERS FEDERAL AIDS TO HAYNES

Columbus, Ohio, June 2.—State Attorney General C. C. Crabbe today sent the following telegram to Federal Prohibition Commissioner Roy A. Haynes at Washington:

"Ohio still is against secession. If you need the federal prohibition officers now in Ohio to help enforce the law in New York since Al Smith seeks to nullify the constitution, I am confident that our state, county and municipal officers will redouble their efforts and see that the law is enforced in this state and make available all federal officers for New York."

BUCKETEERS FLIT AS STATE QUIZ SNARES SIX MORE

Victims, One Amid Tears, Reveal Their Losses.

With more victims of Chicago's forty-odd bucket shops flocking into the state's attorney's office yesterday to report their losses and file complaints, detectives under orders from Assistant Prosecutor George E. Gorman started out to serve officials of six additional loop concerns with subpœnas for books and records. The offices of two of the concerns were found apparently deserted. Ten brokerage houses so far have been involved in the investigation.

Warrants charging the operation of a confidence game were issued during the day for P. W. Friedlander and Henry T. Saither, heads of Arthur & Co., an eleventh concern, which has offices in the Transportation building.

Six Get Subpœnas.

The six concerns served with subpœnas were Redmond & Co., Winton & Co., Lea-Fairbanks & Co., all of 166 West Jackson boulevard; Perdue & Co., and M. R. Kauffman & Co., 10 North Clark street, and A. E. Slone & Co., 159 North State street, in the Capitol building.

While the subpœnas were being served the victims were telling their stories to Assistant State's Attorneys Robert McMillan and Milton D. Smith.

"They induced me to invest $800," said A. L. Nichols, engineer for the University of Chicago. "I bought some stock and that's the last time I saw my money."

Weeps as He Tells Losses.

Stephen Mikolajczak of 1724 West 18th street, proprietor of a small automobile accessory store, wept as he told how his life savings were taken from him.

"At first I invested a little," he said. "Then they promised to put my money in safe investments. They talked of 'good, solid' paying stocks. Finally they had all I could raise, $5,000. Now I will lose my business and all."

Clyde H. Dugan of Brookfield, Ill., and William Ruzin, 836 North Robey street, told similar stories; each lost $1,500. Otto Fieburg, 1408 Milwaukee avenue, gave Winton & Co. $8,000. Theodore P. Walters, 2131 Bradley place, was another who lost heavily in this company. And so on with dozens of others.

Find Offices Deserted.

To add to the dismay and clamoring of the "suckers"—to use the "bucketeers'" designation for them—were the deserted offices found by the detectives.

At the offices of Winton & Co. and A. E. Slone & Co. the officers found evidences of a hasty departure—a litter of papers, no books, no records, no "brokers." Officials of the Capitol building did not know that Slone & Co. had "gone out of business."

"Why, they owe us a month's rent," said a man in charge of the collections.

M. R. Kauffman & Co. occupied offices with Perdue & Co. at 10 North Clark street, an office within an office, it was found.

In cases where subpœnas were served, attorneys representing the concerns at once telephoned Prosecutor Gorman and agreed that, if he would allow the books to remain, their clients would allow state's attorney's auditors to examine them at will.

Get Warrants for Brokers.

The warrants for Friedlander and Saither of Arthur & Co. were obtained by Detective Sergeant Anthony Gentile of the state's attorney's staff under orders from Assistant State's Attorney Thomas Peden. The later asserted he had complaints that the two men obtained a list of stockholders in a department store and solicited them to sell the department store stock and invest in other stocks, through which they lost their money.

Prosecutor Gorman will confer tomorrow with Assistant State's Attorney Thomas Marshall, indictment expert, concerning what specific charges can be brought against the "bucketeers" when the case is taken before the grand jury some time this week.

Bare More Kriebel Deals.

Ross O. Hinkle, a patent lawyer at 53 West Jackson boulevard, and Everett W. Cort, 4420 Greenview avenue, told a jury during the day that they had purchased stocks from Kriebel & Co., paid for them in full, and never received either stocks or money in return. Fred L. Kriebel, former head of the company, which failed in March, 1922, with reported liabilities of $4,000,000, and Henry Pommery, the concern's New York representative, are on trial before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, charged with using the mails to defraud.

PARTY STARTS AT ENTERTAINERS', ENDS IN COURT

Seized in a raid on the hotel owned by W. E. Thomas at 3321 Cottage Grove avenue, two men and two girls, all under 21, were arraigned yesterday before Judge William E. Helander in the Morals court, charged with being inmates of a disorderly house. Livingston Graham, alleged to have arranged the "party," was fined $200 and costs. Robert L. Baker of Chattanooga, Tenn., was fined $25 and costs. Myrtle Lutke, 3512 South California avenue, and Pearl Du Maulin, 223 East Ohio street, were placed on probation. Graham testified the girls had become intoxicated at the Entertainers cafe.

Assistant State's Attorney Frank C. Souhrada and Assistant City Prosecutor B. J. Kanne, prosecuted the case. Attorney Souhrada asked for a jail sentence for Baker and Graham. Graham is a taxicab driver.

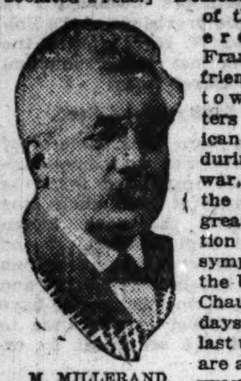
The Chicago, Aurora and Elgin electric railway has scheduled special trains, leaving Chicago at 8, 9, 10 and 11 a. m., and returning at 4, 5, 6 and 7 p. m. An automobile section will leave Michigan boulevard and Washington street at 9 a. m.

CHAUMONT HOLDS "GREATEST HOLIDAY" TO HONOR AMERICA

CHAUMONT, June 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—Dedication tomorrow of the monument erected "to Franco-American friendship" in this town, headquarters of the American general staff during the world war, is to be made the occasion of a great manifestation of French sympathy toward the United States. Chaumont's "fete days," which will last until Monday, are already in full sway.



M. MILLERAND. [U. & U. (C.) Photo.]

President Millerand, who is to officiate, arrived at 6:30 o'clock tonight and expressed surprise at the magnitude of the demonstration. Prefect Basin replied that it was "one of the greatest holidays in the history of Chaumont."

Throughout the day people from the surrounding towns, and many from Paris, were constantly arriving, while the roads leading to the town were filled with peasants in carts and other vehicles.

Other notables to be present include Premier Poincare, Minister of Justice Colrat, Marshals Petain, Fayolle and Joffre and Gens. Gouraud and Mangin. The American ambassador, Myron T. Herrick, is motoring here from Paris. Much regret is expressed at Gen. Per-

IOWA BONUS BOND ISSUE SOLD TO N. Y. SYNDICATE

State Pays 4 1-4@4 1-2 Pct. on $22,000,000.

Des Moines, Ia., June 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—Iowa's $22,000,000 soldiers' bonus bond issue was sold tonight to a syndicate headed by Estabrook & Co. of New York, State Treasurer Burbank announced. A block of $12,345,000 will draw 4¼ per cent interest and the remainder will draw 4½ per cent interest.

Bidding on the bonds was spirited. The Continental and Commercial Savings bank of Chicago late today made a bid to take the bonds at 4¼ per cent for the first fourteen maturities and 4¾ per cent interest for the last six maturities.

Two Issues at Low Rate.

The Guaranty company of New York offered to buy the $22,000,000 issue at 4¾ per cent interest except the first two maturities, for which they offered 4¼ per cent.

The state executive council, which is required to approve the sale, went into executive session immediately following the last bid.

May Get Bonus This Week.

While no statement could be obtained as to when the first bonus checks would be mailed, it was unofficially reported that the bonus board hopes to have the first 10,000 checks in the mail by Wednesday or Thursday of next week.

Bond men who attended today's sale expressed the opinion that Iowa received a premium of about $185,000 as compared to the rate obtained by Illinois in its recent sale of similar bonds.

YOUTHS 17 THIS YEAR ELIGIBLE TO CUSTER CAMP

Every youth who attains the age of 17 on or before Dec. 31, 1923, is now eligible for the basic red course at the citizens' military training camp at Camp Custer, Mich., which opens on Aug. 1. This new ruling follows instructions to that effect received from the secretary of war by Maj. Gen. Harry C. Hale, commanding general of the Sixth corps area.

The ruling opens the camp to a large number of high school students who have not previously been eligible owing to the fact that they were required to be 17 years old on the date the camp opened. It is expected that many of them will immediately take advantage of the opportunity.

RAID CASE IS CONTINUED.

Samuel Jacobson, 309 Logan street, Hammond, and eleven women arrested Friday in a raid on the Speedway inn, near Burnham, were arraigned before Judge John Boyer in Evanston yesterday on charges of keeping a disorderly house and being inmates. The case was continued until June 12. Nine men arrested in the raid were each fined $5.

DOUBLE HEROISM WINS POLICEMAN TRIBUNE AWARD

Slays Lone Wolf Bandit, Nabs Wild Speeder.

THE TRIBUNE'S $100 hero prize for May, 1923, goes to a policeman who out-Hectored Hector by performing two acts of bravery, each of which would have merited recognition, within the thirty-one days of the month.

The double hero is Patrolman Bernard Gannon of the west park police. He is the first member of that force to win the $100 which THE TRIBUNE has given each month for more than three years for the bravest act involving personal danger performed by policemen, firemen, and life savers.

Patrolman Gannon first merited the prize when he captured a drunken speeder during a gun battle in which Leo Skora, on parole from Pontiac, drove at the rate of fifty-five miles an hour in an effort to escape the policeman who was pursuing him on a motorcycle. Skora was later fined $175 and sentenced to the house of correction for sixty days by Judge Walker.

Ends "Lone Wolf's" Career.

The second act of valor came at midnight on May 18, when Gannon, with a brother patrolman, interrupted three colored men in the act of holding up Peter Glomski of 1809 Hervey street, in an alley between Warren avenue and Washington boulevard. In the mêlée Gannon fired three shots, one of which fatally wounded Russell Gregory, known as the "Lone Wolf" bandit, who had a long record. Gregory died on the way to a hospital.

Gannon tackled Skora and a companion single handed when he found them exceeding the speed limit at 35th street and Western avenue. Skora was intoxicated and, when driven to the curb by Gannon, stepped on the throttle as the policeman dismounted from his motorcycle and drove away at a speed of forty miles an hour. Gannon again overtook him at the Chicago & Alton viaduct, but was cut off by a truck, and the speeder tore away, driving through a crowd waiting for a street car.

Prisoner Makes Bolt.

Gannon then shot twice at the tires and when Skora, with bullets zipping past him, refused to stop, fired at the car. One bullet grazed Skora's head, making him unconscious. The car ran a block before it stopped. Gannon grabbed Skora and put him in a taxicab directing the driver to go to a hospital.

Skora came to life, jumped out of the cab and ran down an alley. Meanwhile Gannon arrested Skora's companion, Charles Walantas, and later Skora was rearrested in a saloon.

In interrupting the holdup of Glomski, Gannon ordered the three bandits to put up their hands. George Wright surrendered and the other two ran, firing three shots and starting the battle. At Warren avenue and Ashland boulevard Gannon came across Gregory, the "lone wolf," prone on the sidewalk. He died a few minutes later. Fred Hodge, the third member of the bandit trio, was soon captured, cleaning up the case. Wright and Hodge were each sentenced to one year in Pontiac.

Six Get Honorable Mention.

Six others, all policemen, performed acts of bravery during May which deserve honorable mention. They are:

PATROLMEN CHARLES AGEE AND HARRY BINGHAM—Rescued Mrs. Katherine Mueller and two grandchildren from burning building at 847 West 59th street; later saved Joseph Mueller, father of children, by catching him in their arms when he leaped from second story window.

PATROLMAN WILLIAM E. McEVOY—Stopped automobile in which seven men were riding, searching all and finding pistols on four; landed all seven in Brighton park station.

PATROLMEN ROBERT SALMON AND HENRY F. WENHOLZ—Arrested Elmer Green, who robbed Alfred Hallers of $477 at 6 a. m. on May 14 in rear of Haller's restaurant, 1312 North Clark street.

PATROLMAN EDWARD R. HEALEY—Arrested James Johns, convict wanted for violation of parole, after Johns had fired two shots at Healey, who found him in cab at Lawrence avenue and Broadway at 4 a. m. on May 24.

TWICE A HERO

Patrolman Bernard Gannon of West park police, who wins Tribune $100 award for two heroic feats during May.

WIFE TAKES POISON.

Following an argument with her husband yesterday, Mrs. Sarah Bevard, 21 years old, of 2305 West Van Buren street, swallowed poison. She was taken to the county hospital, where physicians said her condition was not serious.

SWISS PURCHASE RAILWAY LINES; PROFITS VANISH

Paid 6% 20 Years Ago; Deficit Now.

BY RAYMOND FENDRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

BERNE, May 22.—[By Mail.]—The report of the state-owned and state-operated Swiss railways for 1922 shows a deficit of 45,513,679 Swiss francs, [roughly, $9,102,735-.

This railway system today is 1,800 miles in length, has 36,000 employes and consists of five privately built lines which were paying 6 per cent on their preferred stock and 4 per cent on their ordinary stock when taken over in 1901, 1902, and 1903. The Gothard was actually paying 7 per cent and the Central railroad 8 per cent. The people of Switzerland believed, however, that unified railroad control would mean more economical operation and therefore reduced passenger and freight tariffs. The five lines could not reach an agreement to combine and the government purchased them.

The deficit for 1922 had a narrow escape from being as bad as 1921, when it amounted to 72,000,000 francs [$14,000,000]. In December the Swiss government paid the state railways 30,000,000 francs [$6,000,000] additional for transporting troops in 1914 and 1915.

Actually, the operating revenue of 344,215,499 francs [$68,843,000-, left a surplus of 30,502,582 francs [$6,100,500- above operating expenses in 1922, but this was swallowed up by the interest on the debt, amounting to 93,356,309 francs [$18,671,000]. The deficit was finally squeezed down to forty-five odd millions.

Blame War for Deficit.

The council of fifty-five state functionaries, just reduced to fifteen, who manage the railways, blame the deficit last year on the effects of the war. The total deficit for 1914-1922 is 210,757,282 francs [$42,151,000].

Government ownership and operation of railways in Switzerland has been a tremendous failure as shown by every annual report. This failure is all the more striking because the Swiss railways not only enjoy heavy passenger and freight traffic originating in the country, but profitably transport an enormous number of international trains because the country is the crossroads of Europe. The Swiss people are hard working and thrifty and there is very little political strife. The country suffered from the war, but infinitesimally compared with the rest of Europe.

The government purchased the railroads twenty years ago for 1,183,004,889 francs [$236,005,000], and the amortization period was to cover sixty years.

Only 38,000,000 francs [$7,600,000] have been amortized and so the period has had to be extended to 100 years.

Shows Poor Management.

An even worse showing of the state management is that the coefficient of operation, obtained by dividing operating expenses by operating revenues, has risen from an average of 53 per cent under private management in 1900 to 96 per cent in 1921 and 91 per cent in 1922. The first is highly efficient management and means high returns. The percentage for the last two years shows bad management.

The passenger and freight rates, which the people of Switzerland hoped would immediately be reduced, are higher today than ever before.

The first class passenger rate is 16.5 Swiss centimes a kilometer, which is almost 5 American cents a mile, while in France the first class passenger rate is 21 French centimes a kilometer. The Swiss rate is more than double the French rate at the present exchange. The second class fare in Switzerland is 10.2 centimes a kilometer, and the third class fare 7.5 centimes.

Number of Employés Increase.

From 1903 to 1922 the number of railway employés increased from 25,000 to 37,000, and today the majority are political employés. The number of passengers carried annually has increased from fifty to eighty million, but this increase is primarily served by larger coaches and trains than by more employés.

The wages of the employés now account for 70 per cent of the total operating expenses, an almost incredible proportion.

The original debt of 1,183,004,889 francs has been increased by new constructions, and the lack of substantial amoritization, to 2,384,000,000 francs [$476,800,000]. The new constructions were covered with new bonds guaranteed by the Swiss government.

Hursen Is As Near As Your Telephone

Before the days of the "Hursen revolution" in funeral direction, the "nearest undertaker" would usually be called. In those days there was no use going beyond the immediate neighborhood. Service, such as it was, was the same everywhere. Charges were excessive everywhere. There was little or no choice between undertakers.

Neighborhood acquaintance means little today when the people demand something better than they have ever before been able to obtain—and at a lower cost than they have ever been made to pay. Hursen, and Hursen only, has been able to supply this demand from the people of Chicago and vicinity—in all things pertaining to funeral direction.

As a result, "Hursen's" is today the largest and most highly esteemed institution of its kind in America. There are 3 Hursen establishments in Chicago, each built like a mansion. Does Hursen elegance of service, unsurpassed beauty of automobile equipment, and unexcelled quality of everything furnished, mean anything to you? A call from anywhere to any one of the 3 Hursen establishments will bring service within 30 minutes. Call Hursen, of course!

HOW TO REGROW OUR VANISHED FORESTS.

"Regrow Our Vanished Forests." THE TRIBUNE has carried this plank in its platform for the middle west for a long time. In that time it has seen and assisted in great strides in the education of the public on the vital importance of this issue. Constructive ideas have been developed and constructive action taken. Still destruction of our forests continues at a rate much faster than their regrowth. There must be more effectual measures and more vigorous and persistent support for reforestation.

In these circumstances we thank the Michigan Forestry association for a circular letter which has helped to clarify our ideas into a thoroughly practical program of forestation and reforestation. This program, we believe, shows how to regrow our vanished forests. It does so by providing direct incentive for such regrowth; by making reforestation profitable alike to individuals and to the state.

The letter reveals a shocking condition in the forestry of Michigan. Although it shows Michigan as an especially distressing example because of the contrast of its present condition against its once great wealth and glory of timber, the findings apply to many other states. Not only are the vast timber resources almost exhausted but through that exhaustion the productivity of farm clearings has been seriously reduced. That loss is proved by the fact that twenty-three northern counties of Michigan have lost more than 10 per cent of their population within the last ten years. Several have lost more than 30 per cent. Nearly 2,000 farms have been abandoned. The great area which was once the state's chief pride and asset is now a liability.

Similar conditions may be seen, perhaps to a lesser degree, in many states. The public must realize, as Michigan is realizing, that unrestricted devastation of forests not only means a tax upon all business and all individuals through increased cost of building, but has serious ill effects upon climate, soil fertility, etc. That being realized, we must face the fact that correction of such evils is a task too large and slow of accomplishment to be left entirely to private enterprise.

Few men will plant forests and maintain them for a crop of trees which will not be directly profitable for thirty years or more. Such planting requires an incentive which only the state can provide. Provision for one's children can supply that incentive, but not while a system of taxation prevails which would destroy all the accruing values of growing timber.

The state's part in such practical incentive should be through abatement of taxes on land actually devoted to reforestation and proving it through scientific care and maintenance of patrols against fire and other destructive forces. Graduated taxation could begin as the growing value of the timber justified, but with strict care not to remove the incentive for growing. Much cleared land, of course, is more valuable for agriculture than for reforestation. Such value would automatically eliminate it from reforestation and nontaxation.

In cases where no thought of a future generation would provide incentive, and cutover or otherwise nonproductive land is left barren and idle, there should be escheatment to the state under statutory arrangement for reforestation under state supervision. Within fifty years the state would find that a tremendous source of income. In cases where the state might decline to reforest such land, provision should be made for it to revert to the federal government for reforestation and control as a national asset. The federal government is already earning excellent return on its limited area of national forests.

Such a program will regrow our forests because it will make reforestation profitable. It offers three simple methods. Between the three our forests can rise again in continuous productivity and future generations will give thanks.

TEACHING AMERICANS AMERICANISM.

The American Bar association cannot perform a more important service than to carry out energetically and intelligently its proposed campaign of education in constitutional principle. Such a campaign is needed not merely by our youth but by adults, not merely among the foreign born but also among the native. There is many a foreign born American who knows more about the American constitution and American history than many an American of colonial descent.

During the war we heard a great deal about Americanism and Americanization. But war is a time for action rather than consideration, and some part of the effort expended in the name of patriotism was ill-judged and worked mischief rather than good. We can concede that without any sympathy with the sneers of radicals and alien minded critics at 100 per cent Americanism; and in spite of such critics we may recognize that the effort at Americanization which now in calmer days ought to be made should be well considered, practical, and consistent with its own principles.

What is needed is a clear exposition of our constitutional system, not as a sacred dogma, but as an evolution of human experience. In spite of our long words, this means something comparatively simple. It means that our people, and especially our youth, should be told not only what American principles are but how and why they were adopted.

We believe essentials can be intelligibly taught not merely to high school pupils but even to the eighth grade, and it is important that it should be tried in the latter grade because so many pupils do not reach the high school.

To educate American youth in basic Americanism is, of course, of greatest importance, but the ignorance of the grownups should be attacked, for most Americans of this age take their Americanism for granted, and know surprisingly little of our basic laws and principles. Obviously this is dangerous. It makes us easy prey for invading ideas. We cannot protect what we have not grasped. Any plausible proposal that purports to better a condition may be swallowed, though a knowledge of our own history would discover its fallacy. In short, gradual deterioration of the American system is the danger, not the violent subversion preached by a handful of visionaries and fanatics. Only the intelligent grounding of all our people in American principles and the significance of American institutions can prevent this deterioration.

HARMONY, FALSE AND REAL.

It is said that Republican party leaders in Illinois, not unnaturally disquieted by the course of events in this state, are talking harmony.

A good subject, an important subject. Battles are seldom if ever won by an army divided against itself. Faction in both parties in Chicago, and especially in the Republican, has a lot to account for to the people of a city looted and misgoverned.

But there is a harmony that wins battles and a harmony that loses them. If a surface and merely mechanical harmony is contrived by the Republican leaders at the expense of realities important to the people, it will be worse than futile. There are issues in the party which the decent people of this state do not propose to have whitewashed over in the name of harmony or party loyalty. Any harmony that is built on a compromise with the remnants of the régime which has misgoverned Chicago and the state would be a fraud on the people and a futile fraud which they will not swallow.

There is only one kind of harmony which will justify the retention in office of the Republican party in Illinois and that is harmony in the interest of good government.

If the exposed and discredited régime which the people of Chicago swept out of power is not repudiated by the party, the party will be and ought to be repudiated by the people. The issue of misgovernment is what interests the independent intelligence of Illinois and is paramount to any other issue. The organization owes it to the state and to the party to clean up, set its house in order, and offer the people securities for good government.

If it does not accomplish this vigorously and thoroughly, it will go to certain defeat at the polls in spite of the fact that Illinois is Republican. For the misgovernment we have suffered and are suffering is not Republican and no Republican voter is bound to accept it as such. On the contrary, it is the duty of Republican voters to prove at the polls that it is not Republican by repudiating it.

The Republican organization in this state has a heavy handicap and it can win only by clearing itself of the forces that fastened it on the party. That is the basis and the only basis for a harmony that will reach the voters or be respected by them.

WHERE DOES YOUR MONEY GO?

The confidence of the loyal mass of American citizenship in the soundness and security of American institutions inclines public opinion to discount evidence of subversive activities. At times and in special districts alarm springs up and is capable of hasty violence. But it quickly dies down and the general current of our optimism flows on undisturbed.

But the subversive influences also flow on and they ought to be better known than they are. Without exaggeration, the revelations of the recent trial of the communists in Michigan presented phases of the revolutionary movement which deserve wider and more serious consideration by the American people than they are receiving. The activities of revolutionists are not alarming at this stage, but they ought not to be ignored. We have a large population which is not well grounded in American principles, which is alien-minded, which came to America not guided by any intelligent sympathy with American ideas but as a land of material opportunity, an escape from poverty, not a new responsibility or a new allegiance. We hope that in due time this alienism can be absorbed, but the process of true Americanization is being deliberately retarded by a persistent propaganda hostile to American ideas.

Loyal Americans know next to nothing of the wide ramification of this anti-American activity. We know something of the Socialist party and of the I. W. W. and our observation of the futility of the former in politics or the sporadic mischief of the latter does not impress us much. We dispose of the one as impracticable theorists and of the other as self-defeating nuisances, but we do not know of the extent to which the movement of which they are only phases is in operation.

This state of uninformedness ought not to continue. We think government information, and private, should be given publicity. The boring of radicalism in the labor movement, the spreading of revolutionary ideas among the Negroes, and among farm laborers and tenants, the infection of teachers with the more idealistic prentenses of radicalism, all should be surveyed and disclosed. For two or three generations a persistent attack upon American ideas and institutions has been carried on almost without refutation or response, and while our system is best defended by the conditions it has produced, a perpetual propaganda of one-sided criticism, distortions and fallacies is bound to have its effect when an extra strain is placed by circumstances upon our institutions.

There is one duty which we believe is innocently neglected. It is for well meaning and liberal Americans to know how and by whom and for what ends their contributions are spent. A good deal of support for propaganda is found among people who have no idea who or what they are helping. Radicalism, anti-Americanism, is found in unsuspected places. Respectable doctrinaires and vague idealists are helping, directly and indirectly, consciously and unconsciously, to place foreign conceptions in minds not prepared to set them off against American conceptions. The fact that college professors, authors, clergymen, prominent women, social workers, philanthropists, and officials figure as sponsors, patrons or directors of an organization appealing for funds is no assurance that your money is going to be used in a way you would approve. On the contrary, the interrelations of radical propaganda are sometimes surprising, and it is, of course, highly advantageous to revolutionists to be able to work through liberals and under cover of a harmless humanitarianism.

It is the duty of Americans, while the country is infiltrated with all varieties of propaganda, to know where their money goes.

THE COMMUTER'S TICKET.

In the calendar of days the trillium turns from white to pink and the lilac blossoms. The hawthorn breaks into white and oaks which have been as ruddy in spring as they were in fall, give June the half leaf of their reluctant confidence.

The cloth of gold which dandelions have spread across the fields goes into white, the early seeding decay of life which finds its perpetuity in its end. The brown thrasher is still singing in the voice of spring and already there are seeds which say that this year is done and another must be in sequence.

The dryad has hardly sensed the warmth of the sun on a back not yet browned but the mortician with his plumes and his mutes has been along the way. Wild phlox is where the hepatica bloomed and the helianthus will come where the phlox has disappeared. The clip travels the ticket edge and the blossom is of a moment. The death of a day is the life of a year.

LA FOLLETTE, DICTATOR.

For years La Follette has been dictator of Wisconsin. With political shrewdness and persuasiveness he maintains that hold and constantly has a majority which he can bend with his ideas. It is probably the most remarkable political dictatorship in recent American history. Nearly every other boss, whether demagogue or aristocrat, of approximately La Follette's time, has passed away.

Bryan has had many ups and downs, but he never had an unswerving state behind him, constantly under the dictation of his opinions and words. Part of the time Bryan was an iron mace in politics and part of the time a door mat. Penrose, at the aristocratic extreme of political dictation, ruled a highly organized state, but not by ideas. He was the best leader of a disciplined mass.

Thompson in Chicago, a resounding demagogue, prevailed for a while, but his structure was crumbling. Small, a timid trencherman, has success with terrorism, constantly astonishing observers by the outrageous daring which emerges from his very timidity and desperation.

La Follette, in his gloomiest days—they are a lot brighter now—ruled in Wisconsin by the bitter perversion of his ideas, and a rich, comfortable state has followed him consistently. There is hardly a state in the union better illustrative of the well being which can be produced by the American scheme of social and political organization, and none in which socialism and even communism with their attacks upon that organization have such deep root growth.

La Follette's sour reflections upon the American system, under which the state has flourished, have built him a comfortable and secure dictatorship under which the majority intelligence is controlled. Radicals, too extreme even for his temperament and opinion, find comfort in him and give him support. People whose real prosperity has no possible relation to his social or economic ideas are his blind followers.

He is the most secure dictator over his chosen area in the United States. It is possible that he will increase that area and take in other states. Political moods in the country are welcoming his gloomy prophecies of evil. Bitterness in many quarters is accepted as truth merely because it is bitterness.

THE BUYING POWER OF FARMERS.

[Breeder's Gazette.]

Whether the "buying power of the farmer's dollar" is 69 cents or more may be academically interesting to a few government officials and those statisticians whose business in many instances at present apparently is to prove a "case" for or against agricultural "prosperity." Few farmers are interested in this official estimating and guessing contest, conducted at an enormous cost to taxpayers.

One of the vicious uses to which the low "guesses" concerning the "buying power" of the "farmer's dollar" are put by calamity howlers and demagogues is to "oversell" and exaggerate "the deplorable condition of farming." An equally unwarranted use to which "boosters" and "prosperity" statisticians put the high "guesses" concerning the "buying power of the farmer's dollar" is to "oversell" and to exaggerate the present financial status of American farmers. The obvious truth is that agriculture is comparatively prosperous in spots, less prosperous in spots, "hard up" in spots, and temporarily bankrupt in spots, and that, on the whole the industry is slowly recovering, especially those branches of it which involve the production of live stock. It is not, however, receiving its deserved share of the prosperity which other major industries are enjoying.

In each "spot" there are individuals, as in the past, who represent many degrees of "financial condition," from a considerable measure of prosperity down to insolvency and worse. Some regions, however, are and long have been either more prosperous or poorer than others, due largely to climatic and soil advantages or handicaps. American farmers as a class are neither prosperous nor insolvent: they are passing painfully through an unprecedented maze of complicated, trying conditions, which are destined to effect important changes in farming as a vocation and life, and in the nation's commerce and domestic and foreign policies.

Many a farmer does not possess any kind of dollar, whether its "buying power" be 69 cents or $1.02. Farm "buying power" is both actually and potentially low, compared with normal. When it was "normal" farmers bought many things which they did not need; whereas now they are not buying some of the things which they need but could not afford to buy. They are necessarily using their "buying power" discriminatingly and critically.

Selling power is much more important than "buying power" to farmers. Whenever they can sell at a profit they will buy liberally. All recent developments and tendencies in industrial business and in American farming clearly indicate higher prices for staple farm products.

BABY: A HEAT MACHINE.

ONLY 25 per cent of the energy values of the food a baby eats goes into such work as growing, playing, crying and moving about. The remaining 75 per cent goes to make heat, or to put it a little differently, if one calculates the calories in a baby's daily allowance of milk and other foods, and then calculates the amount of heat produced, it is found that about 75 per cent of the fuel values of the food go to making heat.

The heating engineer who will invent a boiler that will convert 75 per cent of the calories of coal into steam, if he is any sort of a business man, could make John D. Rockefeller and Henry Ford look like a couple of beggars.

The fact is, the body of a baby is a superlatively effective heat making machine. In his "Nursery Guide," Dr. L. W. Sauer, speaking of the care of babies in hot weather, says: "Sleeplessness, fretfulness, colic and diarrhoea are often the result of excessive heat or too much clothing. Many of the ills of summer can be avoided by proper diet, clothing and care. On hot days, the amount of food must be reduced and plain, boiled water should be given several times daily. A hot day may cause a decrease in food tolerance and an 'overstepped' tolerance is very slowly restored; in fact, skill and patience are necessary to avoid a further decline."

If a baby is being fed on cow's milk, he requires about one and a half ounces of milk a day for each pound of his weight. A newly born baby should get six to ten ounces of breast milk a day. Older babies need about two ounces of breast milk for each pound of weight. Babies older than six months of age need no more than one ounce of breast milk or not to exceed one and a quarter ounces of cow's milk per pound of weight a day because they get some nourishment from other sources.

The proper way to decide quantities is by a careful weighing of the baby once or more times a day, including weighing before and after one meal at least. In hot weather these food allowances are not permissible. Sauer says: "On hot days the amount of food must be reduced and plain boiled water should be given several times daily. If, in spite of the reduction in food, the baby gets a little bowel trouble, the first step taken should be to wholly substitute boiled water for milk for a few days."

TOO MUCH MILK.

Mrs. N. B. C. writes: I have a 10½ month old baby and I give him six bottles of milk each day, and I should like to stop one and give him gruel in place of it. I give him orange juice in the morning and between two afternoon bottles I give him two ounces of beef broth or lamb broth.

I know how to make the gruel, but do not know how much to give him in place of the bottle.

Also, could you suggest something else in place of gruel for a change every other day?

REPLY.

You are giving your baby too much milk and too little other food.

In addition to milk and fruit juice, give cereal, bread, vegetables, and soup. He should gnaw hard bread and meat bones.

Begin with very thin, well cooked cereal. Next, add strained soup; then finely mashed well cooked vegetables. Begin with small portions.

DIET TOO RICH.

Mrs. H. writes: Replying to "Mrs. H. C." who complains of an ammonia odor to her baby's night clothes, I wish to tell my experience.

My baby was troubled the same way and I gave medicine under the doctor's directions. Nothing helped until the doctor told me to leave sugar out of his food. This cured him.

REPLY.

When ammoniacal odor is not due to soap in the diapers, it means that the diet is too rich in something.

The food element, of which there is too much in the majority of cases, is grease.

In some cases, the trouble is too much sugar.

SHOULD SLEEP 13 HOURS.

Mrs. A. R. S. writes:

1. How many hours' sleep should an 18 months' old baby have?
2. When are the best times to put him to bed?
3. How many teeth should he have?
4. What harm is there in giving a bottle to a baby 16 months old?

REPLY.

1. Thirteen hours.
2. At this season of the year, 2 p. m. and 8 p. m.
3. 12 to 14.
4. None except that it perpetuates the bottle habit. Nor is there any health objection to giving a bottle to an adult.

MUST BE NATURALIZED.

Chicago, May 28.—[Friend of the People.]—I am an American born woman and married a foreign born man eight years ago. Last January he took out his first papers to become a United States citizen. I want to know if I am a citizen or whether I can vote, or must I take out naturalization papers, too?

E. F.

An American born woman who married an alien eight years ago and whose husband was not naturalized before Sept. 22, 1922, will have to file a petition for naturalization, verified by two citizens of the United States who have known her for at least one year. A form for that purpose may be obtained at room 776, Federal building. The wife is not a citizen and therefore should not vote.

INSURANCE RATE RISES.

Evanston, Ill., May 27.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—After carrying an insurance policy with a fraternal organization for more than eighteen years have they a right to advance the dues on me from $30 to $120 a year, for the same amount and for the same policy?

I do not wish to lose all the money I have paid in on it, but I don't feel able to carry the insurance now at the advanced rate.

E. M. B.

Obviously the only fund out of which losses can be met is the reserve built up out of previous assessments. If those assessments were too small the order must either default on death losses or increase the present assessments. We can suggest no legal remedy.

PAVING BEGINS NEXT FALL.

Chicago, May 27.—[Friend of the People.]—Can you tell me when the city is going to pave the alley from Fremont street west, between Willow and Clay streets? At present it is in a very dirty and unhealthy condition.

M. J. M.

We have an ordinance passed for paving, with concrete, the alley between Willow, Clay, Fremont and Bissell streets. We will hurry the proceeding along as rapidly as possible, and may be in a position to have the improvement made early in the fall.

LET EACH PAY HALF.

Chicago, May 29.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Please advise if a divorced woman can be legally made to pay a clothing debt contracted with her husband's written consent and approved during her married state, or is the divorced husband responsible for such debt?

They are both liable if, as appears to be the case, the debt was a family expense.

APPLYING LA FOLLETTE-BROOKHART THEORIES TO THEMSELVES.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 25.—Senator Brookhart of Iowa and Senator La Follette from Wisconsin are eagerly and persistently trying to evolve a scheme by which the property of the small railroad stockholder may be taken for public use at an absurdly inadequate figure. In other words, they do not want the small investor in railroad stocks to get therefrom anything like a fair return on the investment.

Let us see how the shoe would fit on the other foot. Brookhart has a large farm in Iowa that is successfully run. Let us assume that the authorities of the county in which the farm lies desire to acquire by condemnation proceedings this farm, so as to secure land on which to erect a county institution. Would Brookhart be willing to let this farm be taken at the price of farms of twenty-five years ago, or would he insist on a price equal to the present price of other farms in that vicinity? Can any one doubt which price he would insist on? Or again, would he be content to get a bare 5 per cent return from his farm based on the value of it back in 1910, say? He would laugh at any one who proposed it. Yet now with insolent effrontery he says to the small railroad stockholder, "You must be content with 5 per cent return on the value of the railroad as shown by the stock market values. I know we have deviled the railroads until the market values are about one-third of the real values, but that is none of our business; you shall get a return only on the values shown by the price of the stock."

Or take La Follette, the chief agitator against the railroads, who has had a grudge against the people of the United States since they punctured the balloon of his presidential aspirations some years since. I am told he has saved a little money. Does any rational creature believe that if he saw a chance to get 7 or 8 per cent return thereon he would refuse it or that if he owns a house rented to others he would be content with 5 per cent on what it was worth in 1910?

Or take Capper of Kansas. He owns a periodical that is a very profitable investment. He would fill the air with his clamorous howling if he were limited to a bare 5 per cent return on it after its value had been depreciated to a 1910 basis.

We shall never be rid of demagogues in this fair land of ours, of course. But it does seem to me that the railroad executives, trustees as they are for the small stockholders, are derelict in their duty in not showing to the constituents of these demagogues the injustice and inconsistency of the position taken by these politicians and the dishonesty of their attack on the railroads. If the great American public allows buncombe from politicians to fill their minds and sway their judgment to the exclusion of common sense and honesty and fair treatment, then we surely are headed for a seat on the bench with Russia.

JAMES MCKIRDY.

FROM A CHINESE ABOUT CHINESE BANDITS.

Muskegon, Mich., May 27.—May I offer a few plain facts about the activities of the Chinese bandits.

First, politics schemed the outrage so that pressure may be brought to bear on the Peking government. Second, the reason the bandits kidnaped the foreigners is because their governments pay high respects to the Peking government. Third, the bandits are armed with foreign ammunition. Fourth, why the Chinese government is not having an easy time in suppressing the bandits generally is because they are usually under foreign protection.

The outlaws hold big accounts in foreign banks, amounting to millions and outside of Chinese control. After the bandits get rich they domicile in foreign quarters, thus escaping Chinese law. In this way, banditry is encouraged and protected. The bandit leader, Chang Tsao Lin, is an example.

I am glad to read that steps will be taken to forfeit their banking accounts and that the American ambassador expects to take the lead in this matter.

THE RETORT CONDUCTORISH.

Chicago, May 26.—Now is the right time to tell of an incident that occurred to me on an Irving Park car the other day. Got to the rear end of the car a block before my stop; mentioned the name of the street I wanted to get off at, and, due to the conductor's carelessness and gossip with passengers on the platform, I was taken past my destination. When I asked him what the idea was, here is the reply I got: "How the hell did I know you wanted to get off? I thought you came out here to find out whether or not it was snowing." Quite a clever remark from Conductor No. 5636, Irving Park car line. Should he get an increase in wage? My opinion is he should get a thrashing.

WHY JOIN A SUIT CLUB?

Oak Park, May 27.—Something should be done to inform the public of the tactics of the so-called suit clubs which are sending men around the city making false promises and getting money under false pretenses.

The usual story is that they have picked you out as a person who will help them sell their suits and that by paying in anywhere from $5 to $10 at the rate of $1 per week your name will be drawn and you will be notified to come down and select your suit. After the amount has been paid in you find their claim is false and that if you want to get out of the proposition without losing what you have already put in you will have to continue until you have paid from $40 to $50. The city authorities should investigate these firms who use the public this way, as it is fraudulent.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

PSALM XXIV.

The earth is the Lord's, and the fullness thereof;
The world and they that dwell therein.
For he hath founded it upon the seas,
And established it upon the floods.
Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord?
Or who shall stand in his holy place?
He that hath clean hands,
And a pure heart;
Who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity,
Nor sworn deceitfully.
He shall receive the blessing from the Lord,
And righteousness from the God of his salvation.
This is the generation of them that seek him,
That seek thy face, O Jacob.
Lift up your heads, O ye gates;
And be ye lift up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of glory
shall come in.
Who is this King of glory?
The Lord strong and mighty, the Lord mighty in battle.
Lift up your heads, O ye gates;
Even lift them up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of glory
shall come in.
Who is this King of glory?
The Lord of hosts, he is the King of glory.

WATER CURE QUIZ GIVES SUPPORT TO WILLIAMSON BILL

Provides a State Watch Over Private Asylums.

Investigation by state and Dupage county authorities into the conduct of Dr. G. E. Boffenmeyer's sanitarium where garden hose baths are said to have been part of the "cure" has aroused an effort to obtain the passage by the legislature of the Williamson bill providing state supervision of private sanitariums and asylums. It was introduced by Representative Williamson [Dem. Champaign].

The bill has been permitted to slumber undisturbed in the house committee on charities and corrections since Feb. 15. Representatives are now seeking to get it out of committee and pass it during the next two weeks.

What Bill Would Do.

The bill applies only to privately owned and operated institutions for the care of mental cases. It requires the proprietors of such private institutions to obtain licenses from the state department of welfare, and to submit quarterly reports.

Senator Dunlap [Rep., Champaign] and Barbour [Rep., Chicago], spoke favorably for the bill and said they hoped Mr. Williamson would push it before it is too late to enact some such legislation at this session.

Follmer Approves Bill.

Strong approval of the Williamson bill was expressed yesterday by Inspector John W. Follmer of the state department of registration and education, who is aiding to investigate the Lombard sanitarium.

"Such a measure is badly needed to give us the right to put a stop to such methods of treatment as appear to have been followed by Dr. Boffenmeyer," Mr. Follmer declared. "At present we have little or no means of supervision other than through the revocation of the physician's license."

That revocation of Dr. Boffenmeyer's license would be asked before the state medical board has already been announced by Mr. Follmer.

INSULL SEEKS TO BUY $30,000,000 INDIANA UTILITY

Indianapolis, Ind., June 2.—Negotiations are under way for the purchase of the property of the Northern Indiana Gas & Electric company, operating throughout northern Indiana and southern Michigan, by the Interstate Public Service company, according to G. H. Geist, who controls the utilities company.

The Northern Indiana Gas & Electric company is capitalized at $30,000,000. It is one of the largest utilities in the state. The Interstate company is controlled by the interests headed by Samuel T. Insull.

The consolidation of the two companies and the other Insull interests will give Insull control of the biggest public utility concerns in the midwest.

The planes will also carry a dozen roasting ears of corn to the President.

'JAY HAS MOTHER, NEEDS A FATHER,' MRS. LEEDS SAYS

Refuses Fifi's Offer to Take Child.

BY FRANK GETTY.

[Copyright: 1923: By United Press.]

New Caanan, Conn., June 2.—"Little Jay has a mother. What he needs is a father."

From the seclusion of a tiny Connecticut farm house, where she sought solitude, Florence Leeds today made this answer to the proposal of Mrs. Anne U. Stillman to take Jay and bring him up with Guy, "his half brother."

"Never will I give up my boy," Mrs. Leeds cried, when she read of Mrs. Stillman's offer, which stipulated that Jay must separate from his mother. "He is all I have to live for. It is fine and noble of Mrs. Stillman to suggest it, but I'm his mother. What he needs is a father, the father who has cut him off without provision for his future.

Made Home for Jay.

"My one ambition is to pave a way in this world for my boy," she said. "I have made a home for him, wherever we have been and it is in order to keep it that I want his father to make some provision."

Mrs. Leeds reiterated her previous statements that there is question of contemplated legal action against Stillman being dropped.

"It will come out in court," she declared.

"I cannot surround Jay with the same things of this world he would have in Mrs. Stillman's home," she said, "but I can give him the most precious thing of all—mother love.

Says Love Is Selfish.

"My love for my baby is the sweetest thing I have ever known," she said, "but perhaps that love is a very selfish one.

"Jay may not thank me later on for having deprived him of all Mrs. Stillman has to offer. I realize that with me a far different road stretches ahead for him. His father has tried to slam the door of life on him. But I shall open it again.

"It is wonderful of Mrs. Stillman to make her offer, but can't every one see that it is Mr. Stillman who should be doing something? He has not come forward and offered one thing for the boy—not a toy at Christmas or a bunny at Easter."

Hundreds of strangers have interested themselves in the case, however, Mrs. Leeds said. Each day she receives scores of letters, offers of assistance, proposals, requests from people who ask to be allowed to provide for Jay, and queerly scrawled missives from servant girls. "I, too, have had a baby," one wrote.

The letters come from all parts of the country. One South American wrote to Mrs. Leeds, proposing marriage, giving her two days to reply, as he was leaving for Buenos Aires.

Convicts Place Dummies in Cells to Conceal Escape

Marquette, Mich., June 2.—No trace has been found today of Casimir Wilwis and Philip Salanardi, convicts who escaped from the state prison here last Friday. The two men kept their escape concealed for a time by placing dummies in their screened punishment cells, Warden Corgan said today.

STORY OF OTHER WIFE WILL FREE GLADYS HIGHT

Judge to Annul Marriage to John Wineke.

Severance of the marriage ties of Miss Gladys Hight, society dancer, was assured yesterday when Superior Judge Timothy D. Hurley indicated he would grant an annulment of her marriage to John Wineke. Wineke wooed and won her, she said, by representations of wealth and affluence as a broker, and left her in their honeymoon apartment at the Edgewater Beach hotel to settle for bad checks and debts strewn in the wake of his expenditures.

Tells of First Wife.

Existence of another wife was the ground on which Miss Hight's plea was based. She testified, in response to questions by her attorney, Murphy O. Tate, that subsequent to their separation she had learned Wineke had been married before, in May, 1916, to Miss Josephine Homar, and that no divorce had been granted to either.

Wineke's signed confession, admitting the existence of the first Mrs. Wineke, was introduced by Attorney Tate, with a certified copy of the marriage license he obtained to marry Miss Hight, in which he swore he had never been married.

Judge Harley asked why Wineke had not been prosecuted for bigamy, Miss Hight said he had settled his difficulties with the police, who had arrested him for passing bogus checks, and then left the city for parts unknown.

Paid for Gifts.

Miss Hight charged that Wineke had given her many gifts of flowers, candy, books and jewels, which had to be returned or paid for out of her own funds when he deserted her.

At the time she summoned him in a telegram suggesting reconciliation and when he left the train had a deputy sheriff and a policeman on hand to serve him with a subpœna in the annulment case and arrest him on the bogus check charge.

MUMMY REVEALS CIVILIZATION IN ANCIENT ANDES

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, June 2. — A mummy several thousand years old, surrounded by objects indicating that it was a high authority in the Inca dynasty, has been unearthed at an altitude of 1,800 feet on Mount Licanaur, situated in the extreme northwest corner of Argentina, almost on the Chilean border.

Like all Inca corpses, it was buried in a sitting position, its high station being indicated by its burial in a pottery jar, whereas ordinary persons were buried in rope baskets. The hair, teeth, and nails were intact, but the strangest feature is the perfect preservation of all the internal organs in a petrified state.

Father Dearborn's Old Man of the Sea

Like the old man of the sea is the profiteering undertaker, except that no matter how ravenously he gorges himself upon illicit profits he never becomes glutted.

Last week a group of wholesale florists co-operated to protect the public against extortion by retail dealers in flowers for Memorial Day by issuing in advance a list of fair and reasonable prices. The newspapers lent their aid by publishing this fair price list and for one day the people of Chicago were saved from exploitation.

But for every dollar thus saved by buyers of flowers to decorate graves hundreds of dollars have been and are being lost to grafting undertakers by purchasers of burial caskets and funeral supplies.

Why does it take Chicago so long to rise up and throw off this vicious, lecherous creature—the overcharging undertaker? Simply because its people have carried him and supported him so long that they no longer realize they are being robbed. They do not know what prices for caskets and funeral supplies are fair and reasonable, or how much less the clients of Skeeles-Biddle Company and the people of other cities are paying for funeral needs.

And thus far ours has been the only voice raised to warn them. Hundreds of those who have read our previous advertisements have visited our two funeral establishments and verified for themselves our claim that other undertakers are charging as much as $250.00 for the same casket we sell for $110.00 and that our $25.00 casket is being sold all over Chicago as high as $65.00.

Don't say that you are not interested. You do not know at what hour you may be able to render a friend the greatest possible favor by advising him to investigate our prices and service before dealing with some disreputable funeral shark.

Bear in mind that the distance between our establishment and any home in Chicago or suburb adds nothing to the charge for auto service to any cemetery, and that no charge is made for removals from any part of the city to either of our two beautiful free chapels.

THREE INJURED IN AUTO CRASH; ONE MORE DEAD

Woman Hurt When Struck at Loop Crossing.

Three persons were seriously injured yesterday when two automobiles collided at Randolph and Marengo streets, Forest Park. Simpson Daniels, a passenger in one of the cars, driven by Martin Allers, 1121 Madison street, Oak Park, was taken to the Oak Park hospital suffering from internal injuries. Allers himself was badly cut about the head and body, and Miss Grace Kunst, 1131 Madison street, Oak Park, was taken to hospital with a broken shoulder.

Dr. Charles A. Hay, 5200 Washington boulevard, driver of the second car, was taken into custody by the Forest Park police, but released after questioning.

Boy Dies of Injuries.

Bruno Laverino, 14 years old, 1440 West 49th avenue, Cicero, died in the county hospital yesterday from injuries received when the motorcycle on which he was riding was struck by an automobile driven by Albert Jeglia at 14th street and 51st avenue, Cicero, on April 22. Jeglia was arrested at the time and later released on bonds.

Struck at Loop Crossing.

Struck by an automobile at State street and Jackson boulevard in the afternoon, Miss Betty Becker, 19 years old, 1905 South Springfield avenue, was taken to the Iroquois Memorial hospital suffering from internal injuries. William Balbin, 4734 South Elizabeth street, driver of the car, was not held. He declared that the young woman stepped in front of his car as he drove west in Jackson boulevard.

Shrubbery in the parkways, which cuts off the view at street intersections, has been put under a ban by the Oak Park authorities. This step follows the statement of the safety commission, which holds the shrubbery as the chief cause of motor accidents.

HANDS OF DEATH

FORCIBLE CURE OF VICTIMS OF VICE RAIDS HIT

Women Disagree with Plan of Bundesen.

Forcible examination of men and women taken in raids on disorderly houses is a step toward regulation of prostitution, in the opinion of fifteen leading Chicago women, and is therefore to be condemned.

The attitude of the women became known yesterday when Dr. Rachelle S. Yarros, joint chairman of the social hygiene committees of the Chicago Woman's club, the Woman's City club, and the Illinois League of Women Voters, received from Health Commissioner Bundesen a reply to a letter from the fifteen women sent to the commissioner a week ago.

Those Backing Program.

Besides Dr. Yarros the following have subscribed to the program of action in dealing with venereal diseases: Grace Temple, Mabel L. Sippy, Jean Leslie Stephens, Caroline S. P. Wild, Laura Maples McMullen, Anna W. Ickes, Kanny McMasters, Louise De Koven Bowen, Mary Langworthy, Adena M. Rich, Willa B. Laird, Flora S. Cheney, Dorothy W. Douglas, and Jessie F. Binford.

The point of difference between the health commissioner and the women is the commissioner's policy of examining as suspects women taken in raids on disorderly houses and his announced intention of examining the men as well when health department facilities admit of the additional work.

The women insist that such examinations should not be made before a court conviction. Dr. Bundesen, in his reply to the women's letter, quotes a rule of the state department of health which he says not only justifies his course but makes it mandatory upon him and the department.

Text of the Law.

"Any person known to be a common prostitute or reasonably suspected or believed to be such, or any inmate of a house of ill fame, or any man consorting with a common prostitute or inmate of a house of ill fame . . . . shall be deemed to be a suspected case of venereal disease or an infective carrier," this rule reads.

The women make the following points in their letter to the commissioner:

"We stand for the abolition of prostitution, and not for any steps toward regulation, as for instance, the forcible examination of men and women taken in raids.

"We do believe in the physical and mental examination and treatment of persons found guilty and sent to penal institutions.

"We are definitely committed to the repeal of section 363, chapter 23, Illinois revised statutes, which gives judges the power to order examination of unconvicted persons 'on suspicion' of being venereally infected."

The letter notes improvement in municipal clinics under Dr. Bundesen's administration and recommends that free hospital facilities be established for all persons who "need, desire, and voluntarily request examination and treatment." They agree with Dr. Bundesen that "education in the large sense of the word is the most effective measure to use in venereal disease control."

Mr. Bundesen's Stand.

After referring to the state rules, Dr. Bundesen in his reply continues:

"I have no more right as commissioner of health to turn a case of syphilis free, whether it be in a man or a woman, than I have to turn a case of smallpox loose in a community.

"Unfortunately, for centuries there seems to have been one law for the man and another for the woman. Men have insisted upon it and women seem to have acquiesced in it, and now there has become imbedded in our social fabric the idea that men may do with impunity what women dare not do without shame, dishonor, and disgrace."

On the question of education as a factor in venereal disease control, Dr. Bundesen says that "Laws to enforce morality will not create righteousness; that must come from the heart and an enlightened mind."

Open New Department.

A new department for women has been opened at 72 East Randolph street by the Public Health institute as an added weapon in its fight for the elimination of social diseases.

The announcement follows publication last week of the discovery of a specific for paresis, developed by Drs. A. S. Loevenhart and W. F. Lorenz under grants from the institute.

APPROVE CURZON STAND ON HUNT FOR POCAHONTAS

LONDON, June 2.—Lord Curzon's protests against the search for the bones of Pocahontas, being made by Edward Page Gaston of Chicago, brother of Lucy Page Gaston of the Anti-Cigaret league, is indorsed by several London newspapers. The Daily Mail says that the excavations at Gravesend constitute an offense against good taste.

EDWARD PAGE GASTON.

The Westminster Gazette remarks at the inconsistency of affecting to be shocked over the Pocahontas incident in view of the exhaustive plundering of Tut-Ankh-Amen's tomb. The newspaper nevertheless sees no useful object to be obtained in finding Pocahontas' remains, and adds:

"Remembering the civility she showed in Virginia, we are glad her bones now are likely to be left undisturbed."

The Evening Standard says:

"Pocahontas was a daughter of the race against which generations of Americans waged a war of extermination and expropriation. Why the Americans should want her bones is a puzzle. It is not easy to understand the kind of reverence which desecrates what it seeks to honor."

ONTRA

It would seem that there is something about the Ontra Cafeterias to appeal to men and women of every walk in life.

At breakfast and luncheon times, in the two downtown Ontras, there is an atmosphere of activity that appeals to business people. This is less noticeable in the Wilson Avenue Ontra, where there is always a large proportion of people, resident in uptown Chicago, who find in the Ontra a very welcome alternative to the preparation of meals at home. There the general environment is more suggestive of leisure.

And so, too, at the evening meal in all three Ontras. After the stress of the day there is solid comfort in an Ontra dinner. The dainty display of highest quality food in ample portions at very moderate cost is productive of satisfaction that tempts women to linger for pleasant conversation while the men folk enjoy their cigars.

BANDITS FREE 4 MORE; ENTER CHINESE ARMY

Expect Release of 8 Other Foreigners Soon.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

TSAO CHUANG, June 2.—The Chinese bandits released four more foreign captives today. They are J. A. Henley, an American, whose home is in New York; Manuel Verea, a wealthy Mexican; Theodore Saphiere, and Edward Elias, British subjects, who are brokers in Shanghai.

The eight other foreigners, including John Powell, Shanghai correspondent of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Maj. Roland Pinger of the United States army, and Leon Friedman of Chicago, who have been held prisoners in a mountain fortress, since the bandits wrecked the Shanghai-Pekings express train at Lincheng nearly a month ago, are expected to be released within three days.

However, a serious difference among the bandits regarding their release was announced this afternoon, and this may yet rob them of liberty. Bandit Leaders Kuo Chiti Sai and Hnu Kang Ching, the latter an elder brother of Sun Mai Yao, head of the band, visited Tsao Chuang to tell the deputy tuchun of the opposition to further releases and also the objection of these elements to joining the army.

Enroll Bandits in Army.

Representatives of the Chinese government began today enrolling members of the bandit band in the army. Groups of bandits were brought into a village in the neutral zone, six miles from the Paotkuku mountain fortress, where the army oath was administered. The government finally consented to take into the army every bandit who appeared with a rifle or a revolver as well as to enlist any others who desired to join. The remainder of the bandits will be granted full pardons and returned to their homes.

Villagers who joined the bandits and whose homes were destroyed by Chinese troops, have been granted full compensation.

Chinese Left in Lurch.

The bandits demanded separate ransoms for the twenty-six Chinese captives still held. The Chinese chamber of commerce is expected to furnish funds for their ransom.

Sixty Chinese children and five other adults are also held for ransom by relatives.

This means that the Chinese government is meeting the terms of the bandits for the release of the foreigners, while leaving the Chinese prisoners to shift for themselves.

The international military commission has decided to await developments before making reconnoisances. The split among the bandits worries the consuls.

WIN N. U. HONORS

MISS MARY BARTHELL.

JIMMIE PATTERSON.

Miss Martha Zaring, 5612 Kenmore avenue, Chicago, was pronounced the most beautiful girl in the senior class at Northwestern university, and Miss Mary Barthell, 1567 Ridge avenue, the most popular girl, at senior chapel held on the campus Friday. According to the statistician, Larry Hall, Miss Zaring was also voted the most perfect class Venus. Both this year and last year she was a winner in the annual beauty contest.

Miss Barthell's popularity was proved by the number of things she was voted "best" in. Besides being the most popular girl in the class, she was called the most aristocratic, the best dresser, and the biggest "fusser." She admitted in her own questionnaire that the most foolish thing she ever did was to refuse a proposal. Jimmie Patterson, president of the graduation class, and this year's football captain, received the most honors among the men. He was presented with a gold medal by President Walter Dill Scott for being the most capable athlete and at the same time maintaining the highest scholastic standing.

IOWA YOUTH DROWNS.

Iowa Falls, Ia., June 2.—John Ford, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Ford, was drowned in the Iowa river west of here while in swimming. Richard Romaine, a companion, nearly drowned attempting to rescue Ford.

BAYONET RULE LOT OF RUSSIA AS LENIN GOES

Others Reaching for His "Crown."

BY GEORGE SELDES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

STOCKHOLM, June 2.—"What will happen when Premier Lenin dies?"

"A revolution," say a majority of the people outside of Russia. "Nothing," say the bolsheviks.

The elements abroad in opposition to bolshevism believe that a grand crash will follow the death of M. Lenin, as almost always follows the fall of any autocrat. At the time of the crash anything may happen. The bolsheviks' answer is that M. Lenin is one of a group of dictators. The dictatorship rests in the hands of the comunist party. The party's executive committe elects a council of commissars, about twelve men, who share in the dictatorship. The party committee and council will continue to function no matter what happens.

Army Holds Russia's Fate.

One thing is certain, that a revolution in Russia today only is possible if it comes from the army. That is why Gen. Maximoff's plot at Moscow made the government nervous. It was a plot of a few czarist officers whose loyalty the soviets had proved in the Polish war and who, therefore, were unchallenged.

The excitement, however, which lasted only a moment, served further to rush the plan for relieving the old officers by trained communist workingmen officers, the product of Minister of War Trotzky's Kremlin school.

From none of the discontented factions of Russia—the bourgeoisie, social revolutionaries, intelligentsia, Socialists, or anarchists— is any violence feared.

The silent terror of the cheka and the power of the armed workmen, as well as the army, make a coup d'état impossible. The Russian emigrés in Paris, Berlin, Constantinople, and elsewhere are the last hope of the discontented peasantry. Every peasant, bandit-raid-battle is seen as the forerunner of a peasant uprising.

Lenin Appeased Peasant.

The Russian peasant, thanks to M. Lenin's far sighted policy, however, is "appeased." The peasant became unruly every time the cheka or army came to collect taxes, most of which were paid in produce. The peasant must deliver 15 or 17 per cent of his crop. This irritated him and he protested and sometimes resisted. Like many Americans with their income taxes he often tried to hold out. But M. Lenin reminded the peasant that he paid 30 or 40 per cent of his crop to the czar and warned him that he would have to do likewise again if the nobility returned.

Another element believes that the Russian workingman finally will see the hopelessness of the proletarian dictatorship which does not pay enough for decent clothes, food, or housing. The only time that the Russian workingman rebelled was at Kronstadt. There M. Zinovieff put down the uprising with terrible bloodshed.

These workmen who "revolted," however, merely wanted another form of sovietism.

Future Full of Doubt.

The collapse of the social revolutionary party, the long series of executions of all opponents, the present exiling of the intelligentsia, and the terrorization of the present bourgeoisie, plus the communization of the army and the absolute control of the cheka, lead to the opinion that there will be no revolution following M. Lenin's death.

It would be equally untrue to say that nothing will happen. Something already is happening: the guiding hand of M. Lenin is paralyzed figuratively and literally. The course of the communist dictatorship is not running with its former smoothness.

It is generally believed in Moscow that the execution of Vicar General Budkiewicz would not have happened if M. Lenin had control of his faculties and had remained at the helm of the ship of state.

The second incident was a communist party split. The significance of this was greatly exaggerated abroad, the same as were previous party splits. A most important fact to remember is that these differences are all among communist factions, who, being thoroughly disciplined, unite in a common front against any common enemy.

Until recently, however, it was M. Lenin alone who was able to make the factions coalesce.

The party split is triple. M. Krassin, a big, broad minded and experienced man, believing that Russia's economic salvation lies in doing business with the world, fought against the new economic policy. He argued for the elimination of bolshevik politics from business and pleaded for more concessions to foreigners, more guarantees and even recognition of war time debts under certain conditions.

M. Ossinsky and M. Larin, attacking from a different angle, represented the extremists. M. Larin favored putting the screws on the peasants and relieving the workingmen from taxation, while M. Ossinsky attacked private business and favored the withdrawal of the new economic policy regarded as the retreat from communism.

Russia Going Backward.

MM. Trotsky, Kameneff and Zinovieff, claiming for themselves M. Lenin's mantle and claiming that they represented M. Lenin's views, pushed their program successfully against both. They claim that the center faction, or Leninism, triumphed, but it was in reality a victory over M. Krassin.

Under the rule of M. Trotsky, Russia today is retrogressing. M. Krassin's hopes of salvaging the remnants of Russian trade and industry have been shattered. The left wing communists rule.

The communist congress proved that M. Lenin, dead or alive, is the idol of the communists. Critics of Leninism, the same as critics of Karl Marx, are not allowed. The Trotsky group does not possess M. Lenin's broadmindedness, objectivity and capability of reconciling the peasantry and labor. The Trotsky group rides roughshod over the progressives. This is significant of the communist spirit.

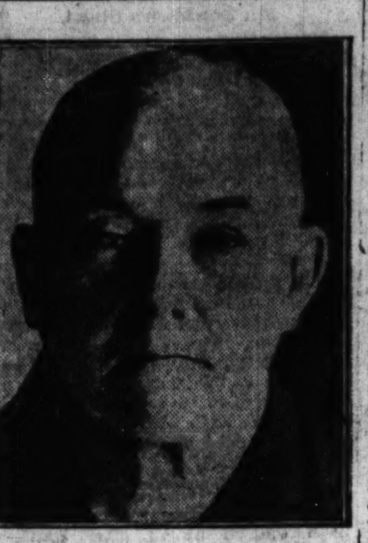
With its external and internal opposition gone, Russia faces the world unrecognized and morally boycotted yet haughty. Russia is terribly sensitive of any one questioning its actions. The leaders are confident of pulling through.

Crops Hold Political Key.

Russia's two greatest problems are industry and the peasantry. The latter question, the leaders believe, can be solved this year with the crops approaching normal.

In fact, Russia's stability and future are bound up with its crops. Col. William Haskell, head of the American relief administration work in Russia, reports that there will be at least an 18 per cent, and perhaps 25 per cent, bigger crop than last year, which was only a third below normal. In two years its crops will make Russia the leading Euripean food exporting country and end the danger of peasant discontent.

HONORED



PROF. FREDERICK STARR.

Former students of Professor Frederick Starr of the University of Chicago are coming from all parts of the country Tuesday to attend the farewell dinner to be given him at the Hotel La Salle on the occasion of his retirement from the university. Already more than 500 reservations for the dinner, which is being given under the auspices of the Kongo 13 club, have been received and it is expected that more than a thousand will be present.

Professor Starr, who is 65 years old, intends again to go to Japan and devote his retirement to the furtherance of his researches into hte ancient culture of that country. He expects to write a series of four books as the result of his observations.

On his visits to Japan he wears the native clothing, eats the native food and generally lives as the inhabitants do. The dinner being given him is the first of its kind ever given for a University of Chicago professor.

KANSAS STUDENTS INSURE AGAINST CLASSROOM ILLS

Lawrence, Kas., June 2.—[Special.]—A student "insurance" company has made its appearance on the campus of the University of Kansas, issuing a policy which insures a student from "financial loss and mental anguish caused when a student falls short along the highway of precedent or sinks in the mire of procedure or loses his way in the labyrinth of pleading."

Each student who accepts a "policy" will pay $3 for every month that he sits at the feet of the teachers in the school of law.

If a flunk compels him to withdraw at the end of the semester he will receive a scholastic death benefit of $250. If he fails to pass the bar examination after receiving his LL. D. he will receive $200.

Lightning Strikes Downtown St. Louis Building; 6 Hurt

St. Louis, Mo., June 2.—Six persons were injured, some probably seriously, when lightning struck the cornice on a downtown business building late today. The heavy cornice fell to the street, pulling part of a fire escape with it and smashing several automobiles parked in the street.

'DIAMOND JOE' SURRENDERS ON BOOZE CHARGES

"Diamond Joe" Esposito, café owner and politician, surrendered to United States Marshal Robert R. Levy yesterday and was arraigned before United States Commissioner James R. Glass on a charge of selling and possessing intoxicating liquors. He was released on $1,000 bond and his case set for June 8.

The charges followed a raid on Esposito's Bella Napoli café at 850 South Halsted street last Thursday night by agents from the office of A. R. Harris, chief general prohibition agent. Several thousands of dollars' worth of whisky, wine, and champagne were seized, and Esposito's manager, Alex Cotillo, and three waiters, were arrested. Director of Prohibition William R. Moss predicted a prison term for Esposito.

Judge Elmer Little arrived in Chicago from Washington yesterday to take charge of a new permit revocation court. Heretofore only one court has been held, that of Judge Charles Burgess, who has been pressed to dispose of an increasing number of violations by druggists.

NAVAL EXPERTS DENY AIRPLANES SHELVE WARSHIP

Urge Greater Air Force as Auxiliary Craft.

BY GRAFTON WILCOX.

Washington, D. C., June 2.—[Special.]—The navy department is giving serious consideration to the growing issue over the airplane and its relative importance in the future of the sea power of the United States.

Particular attention has been given to the claim advanced by many that the airplane is the all essential weapon and has made the battleship an obsolete weapon of the seas. The navy department has taken definite action to determine the merits of the controversy between the plane and the fighting ship and to the framing of a modern naval policy that will be sound.

Completes Full Inquiry.

To this end the general board recently has completed an investigation into all elements of present day seapower as affected by the development of the airplane, submarine, and other modern inventions of warfare.

While no official report has been made, individual members and responsible heads of the navy hold that in spite of great strides made by aviation, nothing has developed to warrant the conclusion that the surface craft is obsolete or that the battleship has or will be superseded as the "backbone" of naval power.

As a direct result of this study, the board's report will embody recommendations that congress provide for new 10,000 ton cruisers, the maximum figure now being 20,000, mine laying and scout submarines, twelve of each type being needed, half of which should be provided for at the next session and six gunboats.

Recognize Airplanes' Power.

Full recognition is given, however, to the growing importance of aviation as one of the vital branches of naval power and the need for furthering it as much as possible, as an adjunct to the fleet afterward.

Secretary of the Navy Denby reiterates his fixed belief that the battleship still is the backbone of the fleet. Assistant Secretary Roosevelt declares that "any course of action which would eliminate the battleship would be a national disaster."

Summed up, the opinion of naval leaders is that the development of aviation as a vital branch of the service cannot be pushed too strongly, but at the same time the surface fleet must be rounded out to the 5-5-3 ratio provided for by the naval treaty.

Roosevelt for Warships.

Voicing the service opinion on the airplane-surface craft controversy, Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, after a careful digest of the facts brought out at the board's hearings, said:

"The real problem in this or any naval development is getting a proper sense of proportions.

"At present a controversy is growing up about the airplane. One group tends to discount its value. This, of course, is wrong.

"The other group contains those who hold that the airplane is the all important naval weapon and that it has rendered the battleship obsolete.

"Any course of action that would eliminate the battleship would be a national disaster.

"We must ceaselessly reach for new ideas and improvements along every line. The battleship remains at present the backbone of forces afloat. The fleet would be helpless without its auxiliary arms, but it is the guns of the great ships that will hammer out victory when the fate of the nation hangs in the balance."

PYRAMIDS TELL GREAT PAST OF MEXICAN RACE

Tourists Stare at the Toltec Ruins.

BY JOHN CORNYN.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Mexico City, June 2.—Lying at the door of Mexico City is Teotihuacan, the great show place of the republic. A run of an hour over the Mexican railway on the road to Vera Cruz brings one to the ancient Toltec capital, popularly known as "the City of the Gods."

The journey is through the almost dead level of the valley of Mexico, over land that was formed long ages ago by the débris from the mountains, under water, probably when Lake Texcoco occupied the valley for its entire length of ninety miles.

It is ground as historically old as any in Europe. Here began the earliest American civilization of which we have any knowledge, a civilization which the Aztecs so dated as to indicate over 18,000 years ago.

Aztecs Erected Great City.

The journey to Teotihuacan, short though it is, is full of interest. To the right, for over half the way, lies the alkali shore of historic Texcoco, on whose bosom the Aztecs reared, with infinite pains and unmeasured labor, the wondrous city of Tenochtitian (Mexico).

From that vantage point they succeeded in making themselves the Romans of the western hemisphere. But the drainage of the ancient Aztec capital has left the proud water of earlier days but a shadow of itself. The wind traveling across the drained land over which Cortez fought his memorable sea battle with the Mexicans which decided the fall of their capital, rises in tiny spiral whirlwinds from fifty to a hundred feet in height, and, carrying the fine, salt impregnated dust with it, scatters it over the Mexican capital, to the inconvenience of the present population.

Today, just as four centuries ago, serpentlike lines of green trees mark the winding courses of the waterways of the valley of Mexico, forming the only objects of relief rising from the depressing monotony of the alkaline shores of the lake and the stretches of dead level country beyond.

Many Visit Pyramid.

Although we arrived comparatively early at the ruins, the broad top of the pyramid of the sun was black against the thereal blue of the horizon with human forms that looked like many colored ants. Many other minute spots were crawling laboriously up the huge stairway from which, in the ages long past, white robed priests paid deference to gods whose memory was forgotten years ago.

The ancient capital of the Toltecs has within half a decade become the playground of Mexico City, and it is destined to soon become one of the greatest show places of the world.

A city of temples and palaces, pyramids and priestly residences, covering an area of four miles north and south by two and one-half miles east and west, this is Teotihuacan, the "City of the Gods," as it exists today, though its area was much more extensive in prehistoric times.

Here was fought out the long and memorable battle of Quetzal-coatl, called the messenger of the great sun, in behalf of civilization and humanity. Here he met his signal triumph and his great defeat.

The unearthing of parts of the city have already proved the main outlines of the epic tradition of the "Fair God," for not only has his own temple been discovered, but that of his rival stands commanding the metropolis, as both legend and tradition assert it eventually did.

The little horse car which connects the station of San Juan Teotihuacan with the ruins left us, after a five minutes' ride, at the monumental entrance to the vast courtyard of the temple of Quetzal-coatl, popularly known as "The Ciudadela," because, before it was unearthed, it presented the appearance of a great overgrown fortress, in the form of a perfect square, each side of which is a quarter of a mile in length on the outside.

Walls of Great Width.

The walls, which are twenty-five feet in height, are of enormous thickness and striking massiveness. A tunnel cut through the north wall and another through the south show that the base measures in each case 265 feet, while the esplanade which crowns the wall on all sides is 170 feet wide. So broad are the walls on top that were it not for the temple bases which crown them one might easily run a horse race around this mile course without fear of running off on the way.

Over the top of the front entrance, with its stairway 100 feet wide, one catches a glimpse of the summit of the famous temple of the Fair God, which stands with its back up against the eastern wall of the court. We mount the stair and from the top of the esplanadelike walls catch sight of the perfectly symmetrical courtyard, down the center of which stretch, one behind the other, in a direct line east and west, two pyramidal structures, which hide the greater part of the temple, whose summit rises above them.

The broad tops of the courtyard walls are crowned, each with four symmetrical pyramidal temple bases.

Through the heart of the city runs a wide avenue, two miles or more in length, known as "the Street of the Dead," because it was supposed that the mounds lining both sides of it for almost its entire length were the burial places of long forgotten rulers, priests, and potentates. This belief has been disproved, but the importance of the avenue has been increased proportionately thereby. Instead of tombs, as the explorer upturns the sod laid over the city, pyramids, palaces, temples, and palatial residences are appearing.

Pyramid of the Moon.

"The Street of the Dead," which runs north and south through the center of the ancient metropolis, terminates at its northern end in an imposing plaza in front of the monumental stairway of the Pyramid of the Moon, which thus is made the outstanding figure in this dead and buried city of palaces and temples.

The Pyramid of the Sun is much larger than that of the Moon, but it was perhaps of less importance when the avenue was constructed. The Sun pyramid stands apart from it and is connected with it by a short side street leading to its one great stairway, which faces to the west.

From the top of the Pyramid of the Moon one commands a magnificent view of the city, which lies completely outlined in relief to the south from the base of the pyramid itself.

In the latter are the most important constructions: The Pyramid of the Sun, in the very heart of the metropolis; the Temple of the Quetzalcoatl, at the extreme southern end, and the Temple of Tlaloc, the god of rain, midway between them. Each of these has its own extensive system of temples and residential buildings for the priests.

W. L. FISHER PICKED TO FIGHT MERGER OF PACKING FIRMS

WALTER L. FISHER.

Walter L. Fisher, Chicago attorney, has been engaged by the federal department of agriculture to conduct its fight against the Armour-Morris merger, declared by the department to be a monopoly in restraint of trade. Mr. Fisher was secretary of the interior under President Taft and later became Chicago's attorney on traction matters.

It is expected the hearing will open in Chicago on June 18. Following that a final hearing will be held in Washington and the matter taken into the courts, where a Supreme Court decision as to the legality of the merger will probably be sought.

[Because of our complete ventilating and cooling system you can]

Dine in "Solid Comfort" at the North American Restaurant no matter what the weather

The air at the North American Restaurant is made to suit your comfort. It doesn't depend on the weather at all. Whether it is zero, or scorching hot outside, you always dine in real comfort here.

This is made possible by one of the finest ventilating systems ever installed. It is not at all like the usual makeshift "cooling" plant. It is a complete system—on the job every day in the year—which changes the air in the restaurant every three minutes. In the winter it provides fresh, washed, warmed air—and in the summer fresh, washed, cooled air. The air is never damp or "sticky"—nor do you experience that chill "clammy" feeling which is the result of improper methods of air cooling.

The restaurant itself is a big room with high ceilings which comfortably seats 1000 people at a time. And here you dine at your own table which is exclusively yours as long as you wish to remain. In fact by dining here you get all the advantages of the most expensive hotels and restaurants, including a big selection of large portions of food which can't be beaten anywhere. Because you "serve yourself" our prices are about half what other dining places must charge to include "service."

PARIS TO RATIFY NAVAL TREATY WITHOUT CHANGE

Will Not Consider Pact Binding After 1936.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, June 2.—The French parliament will ratify the Washington treaties as originally agreed on without reservations or the incorporation of interpretations.

But following a letter from the chamber of deputies commission on foreign affairs to Premier Poincare and M. Poincare's reply there will be a formal announcement that France will not consider the ratio binding after 1936.

The above information was given to THE TRIBUNE today by Deputy Guernier, reporter for the commission on foreign affairs, who has been handling the treaties in the chamber.

Must Accept Treaty.

"The chamber of deputies could not modify a treaty signed between plenipotentiaries entrusted with full powers," M. Guernier said. "The constitution merely permits us to accept or reject agreements as they stand. However, although we have decided to ratify the treaty providing for limitation of naval armaments without modifying clauses, we are entitled to our own interpretation regarding points which on many occasions were decided on despite our vigorous protests.

"As regards to the proportion of 5—5—3, for instance, we maintain that the figure merely represents the number of tons allowed to each nation in view of the ratio of tonnage at present possessed by each without stablishing a definite proportion for the various fleets.

"Ratification of the treaty should not imply its acceptance in principle which certain nations are trying to impose on us. We must be free to act according to circumstances when the time comes—Dec. 31, 1936—for otherwise no French government could accept the responsibility of assuring renewal of the pact coincident with war or when the French troops are withdrawn from the left bank of the Rhine, a crucial time for France.

Will Be No Additions.

"The commission on foreign affairs, therefore, subordinated acceptance of the treaty to recognition of France's independence regarding the future ratio of fleets. At first we thought it feasible to add a paragraph to the Washington pact making clear our determination in this respect, but in view of meeting certain constitutional difficulties and the premier's show of reluctance to accepting the draft of the article, it was finally agreed on that no adjunction of any sort would be made to the proposed text.

"However, the reporter for the commission wrote to the premier pointing out distinctly the standpoint of parliament in demanding that the future freedom of France be thoroughly safeguarded.

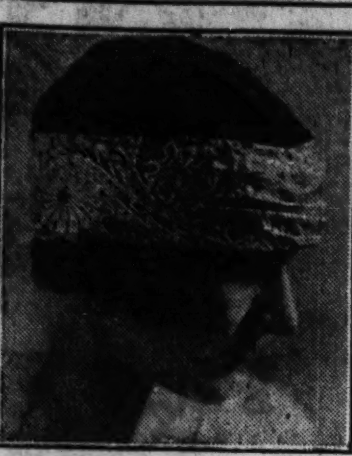
"The premier in acknowledging the note said he would insist on the nation's independence as regards the future tonnage of the navy and renewal of the treaty.

Expect Reply Soon.

"The commission's note was addressed to M. Poincare a few days ago and the government's reply has now been drafted by Quai d'Orsay and it will probably reach us on Tuesday. The delegates to Washington were obliged to accept the decisions resulting from the temporary situation. Instead of obtaining a percentage based on the prewar basis we had to accept a rate based on the consequences of the war which diminished our naval power, many of our vessels having been torpedoed.

"Therefore we consider the proportions established at Washington as liable to reconsideration. France should be allowed a minimum number of tons which will not compromise the French navy."

ENGAGED



MISS THEODOSIA BURTON.

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 2.—[Special.]—President Marion LeRoy Burton of the University of Michigan and Mrs. Burton announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Theodosia, to George R. Stewart Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Stewart of Pasadena, Cal. Dr. Stewart is at present a member of the English faculty of the University of Michigan but has accepted a position on the English faculty of the University of California for next year. The marriage will take place in the spring of 1924.

GOLD COAST LIFT KILLS JANITOR TRAPPED IN PIT

Carl Nelson, 47 years old, a janitor, was crushed to death yesterday by an elevator in an apartment building at 199 Lake Shore drive. Nelson, according to the police, was sweeping the pit of the elevator shaft when the counterweight of the elevator, operated by Oscar Linbloom, descended upon him.

SAVED FROM JAIL AS JUDGE'S GIFT ON 21ST BIRTHDAY

Youth Charged with Theft Shown Leniency.

Yesterday was Charles Kimmell's twenty-first birthday and rescue from a jail sentence was the birthday present given him by Municipal Judge Peter H. Schwaba in Maxwell street court.

Kimmell, who lives at 2700 North Whipple street, was charged with having stolen $500 and checks valued at $1,200 from the Kliner Bros.' commission house, 911 West Randolph street, where he is employed as cashier.

Judge Schwaba was told that two days ago the young man was given the money and checks to deposit in the Mid-City Trust and Savings bank, Madison and Halsted streets.

Tells Kidnaping Yarn.

Half an hour later Kimmell appeared at the Fillmore street station, police testified, and reported that he had been kidnaped by bandits near the bank, driven to Garfield park and robbed. He was questioned for several hours. Finally he broke down and confessed he had not been robbed but that he had placed the money in a drawer in his desk at the company's office and had intended to divert the money to his own use.

In court Frank A. Kliner, vice president of the firm, pleaded with the judge to be lenient. Together with Kimmell's father, Meyer Kimmell, a public accountant and auditor, Kliner explained that the youth had been a trusted employé and that yesterday was his birthday.

Trusted Employé Three Years.

"The boy has been employed by us for more than three years and he possessed a key to our safety deposit box in the bank," Mr. Kliner told the court. "At times more than $70,000 worth of negotiables were kept in the box and they were never touched."

The youth's father explained that his son may have been tempted to steal the money because of his recent losses over worthless speculations. The boy was placed on probation for a year.

FEARS HIS MOTHER VICTIM OF AMNESIA; ASKS AID OF POLICE

Fearing that his mother, Mrs. Georgiana Trotter, 51 years old, is a victim of amnesia, George Trotter, 518 North Monticello avenue, asked the police yesterday to help him search for her. She left home early on Decoration day and has not been heard from since. She had been suffering from a nervous breakdown. She was dressed in a gingham checked dress, a sport coat and brown hat. Her hair is black, streaked with gray. She weighed about 150 pounds.

THE BEST GUIDE.

The furniture of your home should be the furniture you like. That should be the only criterion, for if you dislike your home surroundings, you will always feel ill at ease there.

There are people who do not like to mix furniture. In certain rooms everything must be of the same type and period, be it Chippendale, Queen Anne, Jacobean, Louis Seize or modern.

There should be no such feeling. A room should look like an essential and well liked part of the home—not like the annex of an antique shop.

CIRCLED BY FIRE, CANADIAN TOWN PLEADS FOR AID

Whole Population Fights Forest Flames.

Ottawa, June 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—Citizens of Gracefield, in the Gatineau section, today sent appeals for help in fighting the flames which continue with unabated ferocity. The town is surrounded by fire, which was as close as 300 yards at the time the message was sent out by way of the Canadian Pacific railway. The whole population is fighting the blaze, which is being fanned by a strong wind.

Part of Paper Plant Burns.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., June 2.—A warehouse and several smaller buildings owned by the Spanish River Paper company at their pulp wood camp at Mill 232 on the Algoma Central railway were destroyed by advancing bush fires today. Fears that the settlement of Hearst would be leveled subsided when fires in that vicinity were reported under control.

Rains Save Town.

Toronto, June 2.—Thunder storms saved the town of White River today from forest fires which have threatened its destruction for several days. Fires in the Soo district and around Cochrane were under control, but at Sudbury the situation was reported as still bad. The property loss will run into millions.

Elk River on Rampage.

Lethbridge, Alta., June 2.—While floodwaters were receding in southern Alberta, news reached here today that the Elk river had gone on a rampage at Fernie, overflowing its banks in many places and cutting off 125 families from the town, all of whom, however, were rescued. Torrential rains were falling.

EX-COP TO PRISON FOR KILLING MAN IN ROW OVER DOG

John J. McEnroe, 8841 South Michigan avenue, a former policeman, was convicted on a charge of manslaughter by a jury in Judge Hugo Pam's court yesterday. The jury returned a verdict of guilty after all night deliberation. McEnroe was sentenced to imprisonment for an indeterminate term of from one year to life, provided by the statute for manslaughter.

McEnroe was accused of having shot and killed August H. Timm on the latter's farm at Eighty-ninth street and Prairie avenue the morning of Sept. 21, 1922. According to testimony at the trial, McEnroe shot Timm after the latter had refused to give up a dog, which the former policeman charged was his.

AMERICA LOSES FIGHT TO CURB OPIUM TRAFFIC

League Nations Refuse to Limit Dope.

BY RAYMOND FENDRICK.

*[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]*

GENEVA, June 2.—America lost its fight to smash the world's illicit narcotic trade before the opium traffic committee of the league of nations today.

The committee, packed with nations financially interested in the opium and cocaine business—Siam, India, Great Britain, Japan, France, Poland, Portugal and Germany—accepted the principal proposals submitted by Congressman Stephen Porter on behalf of the American government, to reduce opium and cocaine strictly to medical requirements, but it made three fatal reservations, as follows:

FIRST—"The use of all opium products in accordance with the established customs of India, legitimate under The Hague opium convention of 1912." This authorizes unlimited opium eating in India.

Legalizes Opium Smoking.

SECOND—"The use of prepared opium is legitimate so long as that use is subject to and in accordance with the provisions of chapter two of The Hague convention." This permits legal opium smoking in Siam, India, Portuguese Macao, Dutch East Indies, French Indo China, Japan, and all British possessions.

THIRD—"The production and exportation of raw opium for the purposes stated in clauses one and two of this agreement are legitimate under the convention of The Hague." This permits India to continue to produce 1,500,000 pounds of raw opium annually.

U. S. Refuses Restrictions.

Mr. Porter, Charles S. Brent, and Dr. Rupert Blue, who kept away from the meeting again today, will not accept any alleged approval of the American proposal with these restrictions, which are direct antitheses to the American points.

The Americans insist that despite the promises of these countries to prevent clandestine export to the United States, so long as they control the production throughout the far east, opium cannot be kept from America. Only China voted against shelving America's proposals.

The American delegation replying to the committee's action by letter Sunday night probably will make one more effort to arrive at an agreement before leaving Geneva.

CONFESSES HE REAPED BIG SUMS ON BOGUS CHECKS

Arrested on suspicion by Policeman Earl H. Flatardy of Shakespeare avenue station, W. M. Farrington, alias Miller, Cunningham, and Harrington, 2922 Indiana avenue, yesterday confessed to passing scores of worthless checks, defrauding his victims of hundreds of dollars. Farrington said he was unable to state the exact amount of bogus checks he passed or how much money he obtained. Investigation revealed that he has served time in penitentiaries on similar charges.

CAPT. J. A. KEATING OF MORGAN PARK GETS D. S. C. TODAY

Capt. James A. Keating of Morgan Park is to be decorated with the Distinguished Service Cross by Maj. Gen. George Bell Jr., this afternoon during the fiftieth anniversary exercises of Morgan Park Military academy. Capt. Keating formerly was a member of the Illinois National Guard. His citation says: "James A. Keating, captain, then first lieutenant, air service, with headquarters American air service unit, attached to 49th squadron, British expeditionary force. For extraordinary heroism in action. On Aug. 9, 1918, he bombed Falvy bridge over 1,000 feet, obtaining a direct hit. On returning his formation was attacked by enemy planes and a running fight ensued. By skillful flying with exceptional coolness he enabled his observer to shoot two planes down in flames.

"On Aug. 8, 1918, after bombing Bethencourt bridge over 800 feet, obtaining a direct hit, found seven enemy planes attacking his formation from the rear. By maneuvering for position he enabled his observer to shoot one down in flames over Bethencourt. On July 17, 1918, he bombed Pasey bridge over 500 feet, destroyed it just as a column of transports were passing. He then opened machine gun fire on the troops in the vicinity, causing many casualties and great disorder. His exceptional courage and splendid bravery were a constant inspiration to the members of his command."

SHEIKS WARNED TO MOVE CAMP FROM L STATION

Eleven "sheiks" who are said to have made 55th street at the South Side Elevated station a meeting place for flirting purposes were discharged with a warning to move their "camp" to other districts when they appeared before Judge Barasa yesterday on disorderly conduct charges.

Those arraigned were: Morris Bernard, 5701 Prairie avenue; Clarence Korsell, 5533 South Michigan avenue; Reynolds Shaddle, 5340 Prairie avenue; Joseph Kelly, 5520 Prairie avenue; Herbert Korsell, Julius Schaffer, 69 East 56th street; Albie Siegle, 5624 South Park avenue; Michael McMahon, 4810 Calumet avenue; Paul Montague, 5727 Indiana avenue, his brother Julius, and Vernon Nicholson, 5526 Indiana avenue.

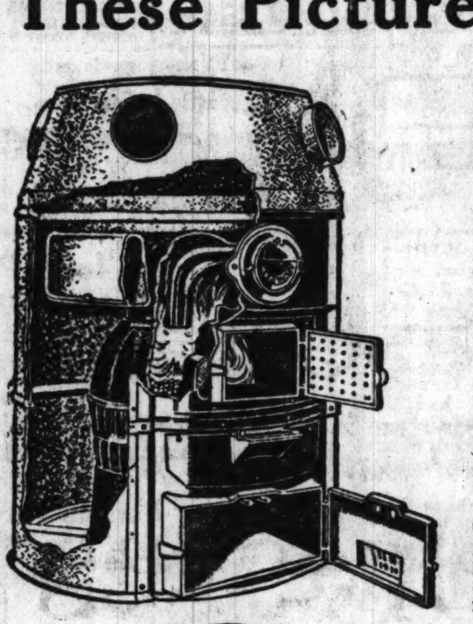
These Pictures Show How You Are Wasting 60 Per Cent of Your Coal



THE smoke which passes up the chimney from an under-draft furnace carries with it about 60 per cent of the possible heat value of the fuel, in the form of gases. That these gases, with the soot and smoke, can be burned, is shown in the experiment at the right.

A cone of stiff paper is set afire at the large end, so that the smoke pours out of the small end. If a match is touched to this smoke, it will ignite and burn.

Cole's Patented Hot Blast Combustion burns the gases, soot and smoke in the fire. And by so doing, it saves 1/3 to 1/2 in fuel. This saving has been proved in thousands of homes.

Cole's Hot Blast Furnace burns any kind of fuel, and gets every particle of heat value out of it. It is built to give years of dependable and economical service. It keeps moist, pure warm air circulating through all the rooms. Also furnished in single register system.

You can judge a home by its COAL CHUTE

Now the All Steel Coal Chute Marks the Modern Home

A cracked coal window or a broken cast iron coal chute mars the appearance of even the finest home. The builder with a sincere pride gives as careful attention to his coal chute as to the most noticeable feature of his home. For as long as his building stands his Kewanee All-Steel Coal Chute will never require apology. It is "Copper Steel," guaranteed unbreakable and rust-resisting. Special frame protects the wall. Positive lock—opens from the inside and can be operated from upstairs without entering coal bin. Costs no more than inferior chutes.

ART TEACHER AND RAIL MAN DRAW MOVIE AWARDS

Plain, Everyday 'Fanning' Gives Them Lead.

"A movie fan" and "a visitor to the moving pictures whenever I get a chance." In those terms Miss Merle Ackerman of Monticello, Ind and Wilson F. Charboneau of 14 West Ohio street describe themselves.

Miss Ackerman wins the third prize of $250 and Mr. Charboneau the fourth prize of $100 in THE TRIBUNE'S Movie contest.

No talk of sleuthing or psychology for them, they declare. It was just plain everyday "fanning," spare minutes spent in a picture show, that enabled them to piece together the thirty-six scrambled movie actors and actresses.

She Is Speechless.

Miss Ackerman is of a retiring nature. She refused to be interviewed when a correspondent of THE TRIBUNE called on her in Monticello.

Later her conscience bothered her. She sent a penitential letter to the City Editor.

"I may have done something today which will seem rude and ungracious in asking to be excused from an interview," she wrote. "But the very thought of giving my views on the subjects mentioned was nothing short of terrifying, and I trust that I may be pardoned for refusing."

Those Terrible Questions.

That sounds as though the reporter had asked her some terrible questions instead of "What movie did you like best during the last year?" and "Who are your favorite stars?" which are the sort of questions he did ask her. But without an interview a short personal sketch will have to suffice.

Miss Ackerman is supervisor of art in the consolidated schools in Monticello. Not only is she an artist, but a pianist and organist as well. Her training in art and music she received at the Illinois Women's college at Jacksonville, Ill.

She also graduated from Northwestern university. She is a member of Alpha Chi Omega and Kappa Kappa Kappa sororities.

Plans to Visit Brother.

Mr. Charboneau will use his prize to help him visit a sick brother in the east.

Who the contestants were or anything about them was kept a secret from the judges when they awarded the prizes. All names were carefully covered up. So that wealth, or station, occupation, race, creed, color had nothing to do with selecting the winners. The prizes were given on merit.

It was good news, therefore, to hear that to Mr. Charboneau the money came as a real aid.

"For two years my brother has been sick in Baltimore," he said. "I've been saving and trying to get enough to go to see him, but there always seemed to be a few last dollars that I couldn't get. The third prize just fills up that deficit and I'm going to Baltimore as soon as I can."

He's Former Marine.

Mr. Charboneau is an employé of the Illinois Central railroad. He is a former marine and served in France.

There are 1,323 prizes still to be announced. There still is hope for 1,323 more contestants. Next week comes the announcement of the three winners of $50 prizes and the twenty lucky ones who receive $25 each. Watch for these winners in next Sunday's TRIBUNE.

Another Winner

Miss Merle Ackerman, Monticello, Ind., won $250 by naming movie stars in The Tribune test of skill.

MARK HITS NEW LOW LEVEL; GREEK MONEY CRASHES

LONDON, June 2.—[United Press.]—The German mark fell lower than ever before today, touching 79,000 to the dollar.

Bank Run in Athens.

ATHENS, June 2.—[United Press.]—Greek drachmae slumped to 128 to the pound today, and other currencies fell off similarly, causing a run on several banks. The National bank advanced 400,000,000 drachmae to the distressed institutions and saved the situation. Directors of the Bank of Commerce were arrested, charged with illicit exchange speculations totaling $6,000,000.

ITALIANS HONOR HEROES OF NATIVE LAND AT BANQUET

"Heart and mind, body and soul, the loyal and faithful subjects of the greatest republic—nevertheless there is a spiritual tie that binds us to Italy at present so that we rejoice in singing the praises of her rule and the superman, Mussolini," said Dr. Italo F. Volini of Chicago in an address last night before the Italian Chamber of Commerce in the Morrison hotel.

The occasion was the eighth anniversary of the entry of the Italian army in the world war and the observance of the death of Garibaldi.

Leopold Zunini, Italian consul general in Chicago, expressed satisfaction at the financial condition of Italy.

Among the other speakers were State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe and Dr. Giuseppe Castruccio, who holds the distinction of being one of forty-eight who were awarded the gold medal during the war, which is the highest order of the Italian army.

SCHOOLBOY FALLS THREE STORIES.

Robert Irving, 8 years old, 3358 Walnut street, a pupil in the Bishop Quarter school, 605 Lake street, Oak Park, suffered serious injuries Friday night when he fell from a third story window of the school to a first floor air shaft.

MAYBE you haven't thought of this store as a place to buy wedding gifts. Now that you do think of it, what could be more appropriate than a gift purchased here?

There will be a lot of June weddings; and every wedding means a new home. When you married and started a home, just remember all the things you wished somebody had thought to give you.

We have them here; a splendid stock of very beautiful things. It seems as if the makers had vied with each other to see who could turn out the most tasteful, most attractive pieces. Wedding gifts?—our store is full of "just the things."

You may find just what they want, in our weekly list of specials. We're getting many calls for these items; largely from people who "moved" last month, and need this or that just to complete a room or two.

The prices are unusually low, of course. Quality is high; Scholle quality means the best, always. And our guarantee is behind every piece: satisfaction or your money back.

FALL AFFECTED MOUNT'S MIND, FITCH EXPLAINS

Gives Facts Which Support Suicide Theory.

Melancholy, caused by a skull fracture suffered by Leighton Mount, Northwestern university freshman, when he fell from a bed when 4 years old, now is believed by assistant state's attorneys to have caused the youth's death two years ago. His skeleton was taken from beneath the Lake street pier in Evanston several weeks ago.

The new theory is supported by bits of evidence picked up by Assistant State's Attorneys Charles Wharton and John Sbarbaro on a trip the last three days. They stopped off at Ludington-Mich., and interviewed Roscon Conklin Fitch, Mount's roommate.

Tells of Scar.

Fitch told them that Mount had a noticeable scar on the back of his head, which he explained was caused when he fell from a bed in his home in Portland, Ore., when a child. At that time, Fitch said, the doctors told Mount's mother that he would probably develop a pronounced melancholy nature which before he was 20 years old would show in some manner.

Fitch also explained, Prosecutor Wharton said, the presence of the piece of rope encircling the center of the skeleton. He said that the rope was used by himself and Mount on the night of the class "rush."

What Rope Was For.

"Leighton and I cut the rope into five foot lengths and tied them around our waists, under our clothes," he told Mr. Wharton. "We were going to use the rope to tie up any sophomores we met. Leighton had his rope around his body when he was last seen, as far as I know.

"Leighton appeared to be depressed at the fight. He mentioned twice that he was tired and worried. When we painted our faces with iodine so we could distinguish each other from the sophomores Leighton did not use the bottle for that purpose. He had it in his pocket when we started out for Patten 'gym.'"

Mr. Wharton has a small quantity of broken glass "fished up" from the bottom of the pier. The glass is to be taken to a chemist to determine whether it is part of the bottle that contained the iodine.

In an attempt to assemble the evidence, Mr. Wharton announced that he will summon Mrs. Pearl Mount, the boy's mother, for a conference early next week. The attorneys are anxious to know why Mrs. Mount failed to tell them about her son's physical condition when she was questioned on former occasions.

FARMERS SPLIT ON U. S. LAWS TO FIX FARM PRICES

Division Expected to Kill Legislation.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., June 2.—[Special.]—A split among farm organizations on the question of price fixing legislation applying to agricultural products was disclosed today when Gray Silver, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau federation, in a letter to Senator Capper of Kansas, head of the senate farm bloc, opposed such measures. Mr. Silver declared that the farmer will be out traded and put in a position where the price of his product will be fixed by the "other two-thirds of the population."

By taking this position the American Farm Bureau federation lines up in opposition to legislation which was strongly urged at the last session of congress by the Farmers' National council and others of the more radical group of farm organizations. The agricultural committees of both the senate and the house approved agricultural price control bills. With the more conservative element of the American Farm Bureau federation opposed to price control legislation its enactment becomes unlikely.

Silver Gives Reasons.

"Without the incentive or opportunity to trade and with no reason for organizing, the result would be that the minimum price would become the maximum price, for there would be no active force to remove it from its starting point," says Mr. Silver in his letter.

"The farmer would lose all individual initiative, all ability and incentive to trade or barter, and he would become a victim of an autocratic system of business and price fixing which would make him, in effect, a ward of the government, whereas by the present method we are seeking to develop a democracy that gives the widest opportunity to agriculture to compete.

Says Farmer Would Lose.

"If, in addition to having to meet organized groups who price their own products, were we to provide for governmental stabilization by the method proposed in any of the bills now in congress, the farmer would find himself between the arbitrary price fixed by the groups and the arbitrary price fixed by the government. Since he is approximately one-third of the total population, he would be in a position of having his customers, the other two-thirds of our population, after pricing their own goods, sit in with him and, with their majority vote, determine the price."

Mr. Silver in the letter comments favorably upon the intermediate credit act and warehouse act passed by congress during the last session.

Chief Collins Orders Police Magazine Discontinued

Main 13, lately known as Police 1313, the magazine started by former Chief of Police Charles C. Fitzmorris two years ago to form "a point of friendly contact" between the police department and the public, has been ordered discontinued by Chief of Police Collins. It was learned that powerful political pressure has been brought to bear to place the magazine in the hands of persons who believe Mayor Dever is indebted to them politically. The chief, it is said, feared that the magazine might in time become "a stuffed club" used for private gain.

23 INDICTMENTS HIT FOX RIVER FISHERIES DEAL

Majority Returned Against Three Hoys.

With twenty-three indictments on record since last Monday, the McHenry county grand jury investigating the tangled finances of Fremont Hoy, and his sons, Clarence and Kenneth, and their Fox River Pearl Fisheries company, rested yesterday.

Prosecuting Attorney Vincent S. Lumley announced yesterday that the jury will not meet until Tuesday.

To Visit Fisheries Plant.

The grand jury tomorrow will visit the plant of the Pearl Fisheries company on the Fox river near McHenry. The jurors state they wish to view the phenomenon of the taking of pearls out of the shells of the common, home variety of Fox river clams.

Seven indictments returned last Friday named Fremont and Kenneth Hoy. An additional indictment was said to have been voted against J. C. Holly, former cashier of the Fox River Valley State bank, but its return was said to have been withheld temporarily.

The prosecutor announced he would have surprise evidence to place before the jury Tuesday and predicted that more indictments will be forthcoming at that time.

Those Hit by Indictments.

Of the twenty-three indictments so far returned eight have been against Kenneth Hoy, six against Fremont Hoy, and five have hit Clarence Hoy. One indictment each stands against J. C. Holly, E. C. Varner, and S. E. Haley. Lumley declared he will leave no loophole through which the guilty ones may escape.

Fremont Hoy is charged in one indictment with embezzling the fund which the Woodstock Cemetery association established to keep green the graves. As treasurer, Hoy is said to have free access to the $4,156 fund.

Kenneth, youngest son of Hoy, was released on $6,000 bonds after four days in jail. Relatives furnished the bond. Holly is at liberty under $6,000 bonds signed for him by John Perry, McHenry banker.

Amanda is a pupil of Our Lady of Angels school. Her dancing teacher, Miss C. O'Shaunessey, 3929 Gladys avenue, will also have a former pupil in today's recital, Miss Bernadine DeGrave, of the "Sally" company.

J. HAM LEWIS DENIES HE IS SEEKING OFFICE

Former Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, in reply to statement that he would be a candidate to return to the U. S. senate, yesterday said:

"It has been announced through some of the press that I will be a candidate for return to the United States senate, to succeed Senator McCormick, also that I have already authorized my friends in the state to organize in behalf of my candidacy.

"I beg to say that though appreciating the many offers to support my candidacy for such office, I am not a candidate to return to the United States senate, nor at this time am I a candidate for any office of any nature.

"Under no circumstances can I permit my friends to burden themselves with assuming such a fact, and entering upon any efforts in my behalf. I want no office, and in no wise am seeking any from any source."

Watch Leads Police to Bandit Suspect's Home

William Mench of 211 South Troy street, was arrested and identified yesterday by James Clark of 3204 Warren avenue as a "masked bandit" with whom he battled Friday night on the Kinzie street railroad embankment near Sacramento boulevard. On the scene the police had found the watch which was traced to Mench. Mench denied any robbery plan, but admitted the attack, saying it was because Clark had been a strikebreaker.

THAT ROAD BOND BILL'S FATE NOW WORRYING SMALL

Validity as Well as Passage Becomes Doubtful.

BY FRANK BUTZOW.

Springfield, Ill., June 2.—[Special.]—Gov. Len Small and his advisory staff are getting panicky over the fate of the $100,000,000 road bond bill, which now carries about $180,000,000 worth of mileage.

They are worried far more than they are willing to admit outside their own inner circle. The bill is in such shape now that not only its passage but its validity is becoming a grave question of doubt. Talk of a special session of the legislature this summer for consideration of a new road bill is increasing.

The special session rumor, originally intended to scare legislators into support of the present bill, has been accepted by anti-Small forces as a challenge.

"We are quite willing to come back for a special session on road legislation," they declare.

Must Have a Road Bill.

Gov. Small realizes he must have some kind of road bond bill out of which to construct a platform if he intends to seek a second term. Without something to say about good roads he knows his candidacy would be a fizzle from the start. He knows, too, that it cannot be a negative campaign. His foes have fought him in the open on his road proposition. His own crowd is responsible for the shape the road bill is in. His old cry of "persecution" won't fit in the road issue if the bill is killed.

The road bill no longer is in the hands of its parent and senate nurses, but they are encouraging it as best they can to stand on its own legs in the house, where it is receiving its first real test on its merits.

Chairman McCarthy [Rep., Kane] of the house roads committee has thwarted the attempt to "railroad" the bill out of his committee and through the house. Two days have been set aside for consideration of the bill in committee. The public has an opportunity to see the governor's pet next Tuesday.

Validity of Bill in Doubt.

But it is the validity of the bill more than its passage that worries the administration. Despite the discouragement expressed by the governor's followers in the house, there is still more than an even break that the house will pass it.

The fact that the bill carries $180,000,000 worth of mileage is only a minor incident from the administration standpoint. If there are not enough roads to go around the mileage can be distributed to the districts of friendly legislators.

It is the senate records that worry the governor. Twenty-six votes are required to pass a bill in the senate. On roll call the bill actually received only twenty-five votes, although the records show it passed by a vote of 32 to 12. Eight senators who wanted to leave the capital before the roll call received "unanimous consent" to vote before they left. Seven of them were recorded for the bill and one against it.

Senators Stand Unknown.

There is nothing in the records of May 24, the day the bill passed, to indicate how many senators responded to roll call and how many were recorded in their absence by "unanimous consent." The Supreme court makes no habit of going behind the records.

"How does the senate journal of May 24 compare with the original records in your office?" James M. Paddock, secretary of the senate, was asked. "Do you mind if a comparison is made?"

"The records don't show anything more than the journal," he replied. "Those were Barr's orders."

Senator Barr [Rep., Will], president pro tem of the senate, was in the chair the day the bond was passed.

Senator Essington [Rep., La Salle] has protested to Lieut. Gov. Sterling and it is said today the lieutenant governor, as president of the senate, intends to demand that the records also designate the absent senators who are recorded on the bill.

HEALTH CHIEF TO TESTIFY IN SMALL CASE QUIZ

Dr. S. S. Winner, an inspector of the state board of health, was subpœnaed yesterday to appear before the Lake county grand jury at Waukegan tomorrow, when it resumes its investigation of charges of jury tampering in connection with the trial and acquittal of Gov. Len Small.

According to Col. A. V. Smith, state's attorney, Dr. Winner will be questioned in connection with a fund reported to have been collected from heads of departments in the health service for the defense of Gov. Small.

David ("Big Dave") Earsman, an ex-convict; George A. Barr of Joliet, former director of the state department of trade and commerce, and Ben Newmark, facing contempt of court proceedings for refusing to answer questions, also are scheduled to appear before the grand jury.

Deserted Bride Leaves as Two Cities Hunt Flyer

While police of Chicago and Marietta, O., joined yesterday in a search for Robert Barry, former aviator, who abandoned his bride at the Blackstone, thereby blasting plans for a California honeymoon, Miss Beattrice Gage, the bride's sister, arrived from Sheboygan, Wis., and took Frances back to her Ohio home. The Marietta police would like to ask Barry about a $5,000 check returned for lack of funds.

ST. JOHNS EIGHT IS VICTOR OVER PARK BOAT CLUB

Thousands Stand in Rain to Cheer Crews.

BY HUGH FULLERTON.

St. John's eight, rowing in perfect form and with four Chicago boys in the boat, triumphed over the Lincoln Park Boat club's crew in the annual race on the lagoon yesterday, capturing the massive cup for which the crews have battled for five years.

In the Lincoln park boat three boys who have rowed heroic races for the big eastern universities struggled in vain to overcome the lead gained by the Wisconsin cadets.

Off to a perfect start and rowing with inches of water separating the prows of the shells, the crews fought for every inch through the first half mile, with the husky preparatory school boys gradually gaining by more perfect oarsmanship. The shells flashed past the clubhouse less than half a length apart.

Winners' Time Fast.

The time, 6 minutes, 30 seconds, was extremely fast for the water and wind conditions, as the race was rowed in a shower, with a brisk wind hitting across the course in spots.

A large and enthusiastic crowd lined both banks of the lagoon and swarmed by thousands to watch the finish, while on both driveways hundreds of parked autos made extra grand stand seats for the spectators.

After the victory the St. John's boys and alumni of the Delafield school staged an impromptu celebration. The crew threw the coxswain, little Anderson, into the lagoon and then followed him into the water, while students and alumni danced and hugged each other.

Each crew had won two legs of the cup and yesterday's race decided permanent possession.

St. John's Better Trained.

On the Chicago crew were Hord, who captained Yale's crew in '21; Cowles, also a Yale veteran, and Strom and Cooke, who rowed on Heinie Leh's marvelous Princeton crew of '21, which defeated Navy.

The superiority of St. Johns' lay in the fact that they were better trained and had had more practice.

The crews:

ST. JOHNS—Coxswain, J. A. Anderson; stroke, A. J. Born; No. 7, Roy Hall; No. 6, J. C. Badenoch; No. 5, W. J. Potts; No. 4, E. F. Hagemeister; No. 3, C. F. Born; No. 2, C. E. Gates; bow, B. O. Yanson. Hall, Badenoch, Anderson and Yanson are Chicago boys.

LINCOLN PARK—Coxswain, G. Kohler; stroke, G. J. Cooke; No. 7, S. Y. Hord; No. 6, J. C. Cowles; No. 5, T. E. Hurley; No. 4, F. L. Spencer; No. 3, H. M. Templeman; No. 2, R. A. Strom; bow, J. H. Noyes.

As a curtain raiser to the main event the Lincoln Park second crew and the 140 pound crew rowed over the main course, a mile and a quarter, and the 140 pounders triumphed easily by two and a half lengths.

CULVER CREW WINS

Culver, Ind., June 2.—[Special.]—Half a length of clear water separated the eight of Culver Military academy from the Wisconsin junior varsity as the cadets led the Madison men across the finish line in the fast time of 4:55 over a mile course here today. The crews took the water together and held neck and neck until 100 yards from the finish. There Stroke Olwin of Culver sent his crew into their spurt and the cadet shell began to creep ahead.

GOLDEN BEARS PUSHED TO WIN

Pullman, Wash., June 2.—California, regarded as an easy winner in the intercollegiate track and field meet here this afternoon, nosed out a victory over the University of Washington by the narrow margin of 3½ points and won by a score of 43½ points. Not until Washington had lost the relay, final event on the program, was the issue decided.

The meet was held in a downpour of rain that had fallen for more than thirty-six hours and made the field an uncertain footing. Spearow of Oregon tried three times to better the conference record of Jenne, Washington State, of 13 feet 1 inch in the pole vault, but succeeded in making only 12 feet 6 inches. After Washington, with 40 points, came Oregon Aggies, 28½; Oregon, 24; Montana, 12; Washington State, 11; Idaho, 6.

Burley of Washington was the individual star, with 15 points. Spearow of Oregon made 11 and Walker of Oregon Agricultural 10.

Morgantown, W. Va., June 2.—Casell W. Mowery, first baseman on the West Virginia university baseball team, died at 4 o'clock this afternoon from injuries received Wednesday when hit on the head by a pitched ball during the game with the University of Pittsburgh.

Badger-Wolverine Game Stopped by Cloudburst

Madison, Wis., June 2.—[Special.]—With both teams ready to play, a small cloudburst caused the Michigan-Wisconsin baseball game to be called off here today.

DON'T JUMP FROM SHIP AFIRE

BY CAPTAIN EDDIE V. RICKENBACKER.
ARTICLE V.

Fire is the most dreaded enemy of aviators and speedway stars. It is the one death they all fear. The thought of the torture of a living inferno causes every one of them to pause and reflect.

Imagine being pinned beneath an automobile enveloped in flames, without a possibility of gaining freedom and safety. Or the even more helpless and tragic scene of a birdman suspended in midair with the flames fanned into the office of his ship by the terrific speed.

The sixteen cylindered car in which Tommy Milton drove over the sands of Dayton Beach, Fla., to a world's record of 156.4 miles per hour, the fastest official time ever made by a human being on wheels, caught on fire while driving at a terrific speed. The flames rushed back from the motor to his small seat in the perfectly streamlined car. He headed his mount for the ocean and thus extinguished the leaping flames. His presence of mind averted a catastrophe. Milton was only slightly burned.

Lieut. Sanderson, U. S. N., discovered his plane on fire while he was competing in the Pulitzer trophy race at Mount Clemens, Mich., and dived his airship into the chilly October water of Lake St. Claire. The ship turned turtle, sank to the floor of the lake, and the pilot had hurriedly to dig his way out of the mud, underneath many feet of water, to free himself. He was completely exhausted when he finally bobbed his head above water.

Numerous other incidents I could mention did not culminate so happily. But fire is always a topic of conversation among these men. I remember when in France, during the war, a number of us less experienced pilots asked the great American ace, the beloved Raoul Lufberry, who was a member of the Lafayette Escadrille before America entered the war, what he would do if his ship caught on fire in the air.

"I should always stay with the machine," he advised. "If you jump, you certainly haven't a chance. On the other hand, there is always a good chance of side slipping your airplane down in such a way that you fan the flames away from yourself and wings. Perhaps you can even put the fire out before you reach ground. It has been done. Me for staying with the old bus every time."

Not many days following, an alerte announced that a German photographing machine was directly over our field. The only aviator ready for flight, one who had no fighting experience, took to the air for his first actual combat. It was but moments until he was back, after unsuccessfully emptying his ammunition at an impossible range.

The German aviators, feeling perfectly safe, returned to the scene to complete their espionage from aloft. Maj. Lufberry rushed to the hangar. His own plane was not in working order. He jumped into another ship and took off.

Lufberry was a fighting fury in the air. His prowess had won for him not only the respect and admiration of his fellow fliers, but of the enemy as well. But in all his numerous victories he had never brought down a foe craft within his own lines. His eyes had never cast a glance on the immobile wreckage he left in his battling wake—for all his glorious achievements of war had been accomplished "across the line." It was evident that he was anxious to take toll of this brazen craft, boldly flying over our home.

With great speed he climbed in pursuit of the German ship. Knowing nothing of the condition of the guns nor the peculiarities of the strange ship he was flying, Lufberry fired as he dived in to the attack. His guns jammed. He circled to clear the jam, and as he was dashing at the enemy from their rear his ship burst into a seething mass of flames.

Every one on the field had been watching the show. Right over our heads it was being staged. Brought to our own door. Other aviators who fought and won aerial victories were getting a view of a sensational duel to death from the spectator's point of view.

Then from over the side of the burning ship a body became apparent to the horrified watchers. It tottered for an instant, then down it came. The great and beloved Lufberry made a headlong leap into space to escape the tortures of an aerial furnace.

His body landed in the garden of a peasant woman in a little town just north of Nancy. Lufberry, who advised "staying with a burning ship," leaped to certain death rather than endure the slow torture of merciless flames.

A small stream ran about 100 yards from where he fell. It had been suggested that the sight of water caused the famous hero to take the extreme chance to preserve his priceless life for a needy cause.

All men in such a crisis are lured by the sight of water. Milton drove his car into the ocean; Sanderson dived his ship into the lake in similar instances.

Lufberry was buried in the "airmen's cemetery." In battle formation we flew over his open grave. As the body was being lowered we glided, with muffled motors, only fifty feet above the last remains of a great fighter, dropping flowers with tears of sorrow by the loss of Maj. Raoul Lufberry.

BULLET SCARRED POILU TOO TOUGH FOR CHAMPION

Right to Jaw Brings Sudden End to Fight.

TRIBUNE DECISIONS

Decisions of The Tribune boxing representatives are:

At Polo Grounds—Eugene Criqui stopped Johnny Kilbane [6]; Jack McCoy and Davey Jones [draw]; Johnny Curtin beat Jack Sharbey [8]; Al Ziemer beat Hilly Levine [6]; "Babe" Herman and "Kid" Kaplan [draw].

Polo Grounds, New York, June 2.—[Associated Press.]—A lithe-limbed, pantherlike warrior of France, bearing the scars of the fight of fights, boxed and punched his way to dramatic victory and a world's championship here today.

Eugene Criqui, ex-poilu, who came back to the ring after his jaw had stopped a German bullet at Verdun seven years ago, rose to the greatest heights of his pugilistic career when he knocked out Johnny Kilbane, veteran American holder of the world's featherweight crown, in the sixth round of an international battle before a crowd estimated at 25,000 in the Polo grounds.

Criqui's Stamina Triumphs.

It was a battle between master ringmen, veterans of two continents, but in the end Criqui's greater stamina and punching ability carried him to triumph. Kilbane, who had held the world title for eleven years, had a shade the better of the defensive fighting, but at critical moments he was unable to stem the tide of Criqui's cyclonic attack.

The finish came with sensational suddenness in the sixth round and when Kilbane's generalship appeared to have baffled the former poilu's fiery onslaught. Time after time he had weathered a storm of rights and lefts to the head and body, but Criqui was not to be denied.

End Comes Quickly.

Starting from his corner in the sixth round with determination in his features, he feinted, then whipped in a terrific left to the body that staggered the champion. Kilbane drew away, expecting another left, but Criqui shot in a right cross to the jaw and sent the American back on his heels and toppling to the canvas. At the count of six Kilbane tried to rise, and succeeded in getting to one knee, but, groggy and weak, he fell back as Referee Jack Appel tolled off the count of ten.

It was only the second time in his long ring career that Kilbane has been counted out. In 1917, when at the height of his career as featherweight king, he went out of his class to meet Bennie Leonard, lightweight champion, and was knocked out in the third round.

Frenchman Stunned by Victory.

Dramatic ringside scenes followed Criqui's sudden triumph. The challenger, himself almost stunned by the quickness of his victory, was seized by his jubilant seconds. Freeing himself for a moment, however, he rushed to the fallen titleholder's corner and kissed Kilbane on each cheek.

Then, as the crowd enthusiastically acclaimed the new champion, Criqui was carried from the ring by his manager, Robert Eudeline, and several poilu comrades in uniform, who had escorted him to the ring before the bout to the strains of the "Marseillaise." It was several minutes before a way back to the dressing room could be cleared.

Boxers Present Contrast.

The principals in the most picturesque international boxing event since the Jack Dempsey-Georges Carpentier battle two years ago were a marked contrast. The champion, gray haired and 34, was all smiles as he climbed through the ropes and went through the preliminary ceremonies. Criqui, however, apparently in finely drawn condition, was silent and unmoved, a look of determination on his face such as it might have worn before the zero hour as he waited in the front line at Verdun in 1916.

From the first tap of the gong Criqui's aggressiveness gave hint of what was to come. Kilbane fought off the Frenchman's rushes cooly and cautiously in the first two rounds, preferring to spar at long range. He clinched repeatedly as Criqui tore in and blocked most of the challenger's rushes.

Criqui's Swings Wild.

From a comparatively slow pace, Criqui plunged into a faster clip in the third round and worried the champion with a series of jabs and hooks to the head and body. Often the challenger missed his swings, but his defense left the champion few openings.

Kilbane, who was apparently fighting well within himself, took the aggressive for a short time in the fourth. He stung the Frenchman with several shots to the jaw, but the chin that had stopped a bullet proved a durable target and the challenger bored in unchecked.

Criqui brought blood from Kilbane's nose in the fifth and jolted the champion with hooks to the jaw. Plainly

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Just when Bill Gleason's White Sox were preparing to celebrate a win yesterday things began to happen. After a turbulent afternoon they went into the ninth with a lead of 5 to 4, but a couple of hits soon tied it, and then Pat Collins, hitting for the hurler, poked the ball into the left field seats to score three more and to give the Browns what they were after by 8 to 5.

The fatal ninth was brought on by what proved injudicious selection of pitchers. Urban Faber handled the first eight innings with only fair success, and in the home half of the eighth, when the Sox went ahead, he was sidetracked for a pinch batter. This brought Louis Mike Cvengros into the picture in the final. He was a bust, and with the count knotted and two on was yanked for Hollis Thurston. The latter was serving when the knockout homer was uncorked.

Sox Rout Danforth.

The Browns started off with Dave Danforth on the hill. The southpaw went to the bad completely as early as the fourth and Fohl yanked him before the Brown's slim advantage could be wiped out. Kolp filled the vacancy and went along beautifully until the eighth, when an error was followed

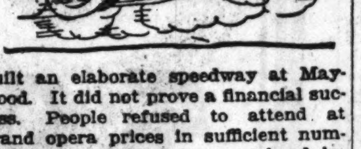
IN the WAKE of the NEWS

INDIANAPOLIS SPEEDWAY.

Now comes word that abandonment is considered of the Indianapolis speedway, whereon are held the annual Memorial day motor races. Repairs, estimated at $200,000, are necessary before another event can be held.

Indianapolis, by its speedway, becomes the auto center of the country for a few days each spring. The race, held there for many years, has a prestige which another city could not acquire for a long, long time, if ever.

For Chicago, several years ago, was built an elaborate speedway at Maywood. It did not prove a financial success. People refused to attend at grand opera prices in sufficient numbers to cover the heavy overhead investment. It was dismantled as a race proposition. Possibly some New York suburb could hold the race at a profit. It belongs, however, in Indianapolis.



Indianapolis' race is supposed to have been a money maker. Whether it covered the overhead and gave a return on the investment we do not know. When final decision is made, however, we think sentiment will play a part with its backers and that what has become the motor classic of the country will be retained.

Dear Wake: Talosophy appears to be "soaking in." That's good! Talosophy is one form of sunshine in our lives to help build men's and women's attitude stronger for kindness and appreciation—softens the crust of selfishness and greed in the hearts of the "hard-shelled" humans. Bob.

Charity Boxing Shows.

As usual, revised returns of the charity boxing show at the Dexter pavilion proved disappointing. In advance, we understood Leonard had $25,000 and Mitchell $10,000 guarantees. We do not blame them. Boxing for money, not for charity, is their business.

If receipts were $54,000, that left $19,000 for other bouts and expenses. You need no clairvoyant to know where charity gets off.

Charity boxing bouts usually are a flivver so far as charity is concerned. Commercialized boxing, under state supervision, would have no aftermath of excuses to offer.

The Day-Break Chorus.

Cold and gray, the early morning hour—
The river, smooth, the eye can bare discern;
And 'long its banks the hue of springtime flow'r
Seems coldly gray and blends with gray of grass and fern.

But overhead the birds, with keen and rare insight,
Give fluttering, gladsome evidence that they
Sense well its coming, by an hour—the new day's light—
And spread the welcome news with joyful notes and gay.

From full a thousand vari-colored throats
Burst forth a thousand wild, hilarious songs;
Each bird outrivaling another in his notes,
Proclaiming proud to which fine species he belongs;

The various tones of wood thrush, flute-like, clear;
The small wren's song, to mankind e'er a boon,
Intoxicating in its notes, pulsating, dear;
The yellow warbler's bright, vivacious tune;

The cardinal's cool, stately choo-oo, choo-oo;
The robin's slow cherink cheree
Join the morning dove's sweet, plaintive coo
And the towhee's clear and tremulous to-hee.

And ever and anon the deep, bass voice
Of Old Sir Frog comes clear and loud and strong,
As though proclaiming all his own rejoice,
Accompanying the high-reached notes of day-break song.

The air seems like to burst with joy and spring;
My heart, it answers glad to every song;
Then the first beam—a rosy, pretty thing—
Throws itself aslant the river and its banks along.

And with the coming of the first bright streak
The birds arouse to new responsibilities
And stop their songs to finish nests, and seek
The morsel choice—their hunger to appease.
Cacoethes Scribendi.

TILDEN, OF OLD, BEATS SPANIARD

Philadelphia, Pa., June 2.—William T. Tilden II, national tennis champion, won the eastern Pennsylvania singles title today by defeating Manuel Alonzo, Spanish Davis cup player, 1—6, 4—6, 6—4, 6—2, 6—3, with one of the most sensational rallies he has scored this season.

Tilden lost the first two sets and was on even terms up to the seventh game with Alonzo in the third, when he picked up speed, whirled to victory in this set, and won the next two with a dazzling display of nearly every stroke at his command.

BY WALLACE ABBEY.

Oak Park, by winning three firsts and a good batch of seconds and thirds for a total of 34 points, yesterday carted away thre senior track and field title of the Chicago Suburban High School league in the seventh annual meet at Evanston. The best University high, which last week won the national interscholastic title at Stagg field, could do was third. Goodwillie and Fuqua both won two firsts while Avery took a third and the relay team won, but no one else placed for the Red and Black.

Junior Title to Evanston.

Coach A. P. Bradley's Evanston youngsters were easily the class of the juniors, gathering 35¾ markers to wrest the title from Oak Park, which came second with 20.

Evanston, by tying for first and third places in the pole vault, nosed out University high for second honors in the senior section. The North Shore squad totaled 29½ points to 27 for the south siders. La Grange came fourth with 21.

Two records were officially broken and one more bettered by the watches of the two timers. Gibson of Evanston, by footing the junior 660 yard dash in 1:31, clipped one second off the four year old record of Bob Jamar of the same school; while Gene Goodwillie, in winning the senior 220 in :21 3-5, broke the record in that event. Officials were unable to state the former owner of the mark and his time.

Evanston Protests.

Evanston's total in the junior section was lessened by the disqualification of its relay team, which won the race by a wide margin, but was ruled out for fouls on the turns. A protest was made to officials, but to no avail. Summaries:

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 2.—[Special.]—In the greatest meet in the history of the association, the winner of which was not decided until the last event, the relay had been run, Michigan won the twenty-third annual track and field games of the western conference on Ferry field today by the narrow margin of half a point over Illinois. The Wolverines finished with a team total of 57½ points, against 57 for the downstaters. Wisconsin was third with 27 points and Iowa fourth with 26 markers.

During the course of the two day meet one world's record was broken and six Big Ten marks shattered. The games, however, were marred by the threatened withdrawal of the Illinois team after the final heat in the 120 yard high hurdles had been ordered run over by Referee Charles A. Dean. As soon as he heard of the verdict Coach Harry Gill of Illinois threatened to withdraw his entire team, and finally the board of directors decided to wipe out the event and not score point in the race.

Michigan Hurdler Stumbles.

It so happened that the third flight of hurdles had been misplaced, and Hubbard, the Michigan star, stumbled in trying to reach for the timbers. He all but fell and protested to the referee, who ordered the race run over after an investigation. Coach Gill refused to allow his men to go to the mark for the rerunning of the race and the meet was delayed for fully half an hour before the decision to cancel the event was reached.

When the teams went to the market for the relay race, final event on the program, the Wolverines led by 2½ points. Iowa was looked upon as almost a sure winner of the race, but the fighting Illinois came through in superb fashion and not only won the race but established a new conference record of 3:20 for the event.

Michigan had to take third place or better to win, and the large crowd, composed mostly of Wolverine students, went wild as their runners put forth every ounce of energy to stave off challenges of other runners. On the final relay the Wolverines were in fourth position, but by a great effort Frank Martin, the last Maize and Blue runner, passed a tiring Chicago athlete and crossed the line in third position for the points which won the meet for Michigan. It was a great climax to a day featured by record breaking and sterling performances.

New Jump and Javelin Marks.

In yesterday's trials De Hart Hubbard of Michigan established a new conference record of 25 feet 1½ inches in the running broad jump, and Milton Angier of Illinois threw the javelin 198 feet 10¾ inches for another Big Ten record. These two marks were indications of what was to happen today and marks started to fall from almost the start of the game.

Although there were some great performances, Charley Brookins of Iowa is entitled to the lion's share of the honors. He won his trial heat in the 220 yard low hurdles in :22 2-5, which is one-fifth of a second under the world's record, but to show this was no mistake, he came right back and took the final in :23 1-5. Earlier in the season in a dual meet with Northwestern at Iowa City Brookins won the event in :23, but the time was not taken seriously because of weather condition and home timers.

Today, however, he showed beyond question he is entitled to the record. He broke from the mark with the speed of a sprinter and stepped over the barriers without apparently slackening his speed. In his heat he finished twenty yards ahead of his nearest competitor and in the final was a good fifteen yards in advance of the second hurdler. His record will be recognized, according to officials of the meet.

Former Record :22 3-5.

The former world's record was :22 3-5 and was made by A. C. Kraenzlin of the University of Pennsylvania back in 1898. It was afterward tied by J. I. Wendell of Harvard, in 1913, and by Robert Simpson of Missouri, in 1916. Naturally Brookins' mark will stand as a conference and national intercollegiate record.

Next in the record-breaking honor column belongs D. G. Brownell of Illinois, who cleared the bar at 13 feet 2 inches in the pole vault. This performance shattered the old conference mark of Johnnie Gold of Wisconsin, of 12 feet 8¼ inches, made back in 1913. The Illinois vaulter was pressed all the way by Brooker of Michigan, who narrowly missed clearing the record breaking height. The new conference mark is one inch better than the eastern intercollegiate record.

E. C. Wilson of Iowa, one of the fleetest runners in the conference, was the next performer to break into the record-smashing column. The Hawkeye won his heat in the 220 yard dash in :21 1-5 and took the final race in the same time. Both performances bettered the western conference record of 21 3-5, made by Jack Scholz of Missouri in 1916 and tied by Leonard Paulu of Grinnell, at Iowa City last year.

This record ties the eastern intercollegiate mark first made by B. F. Wefers of Georgetown in 1896 and afterward tied by R. C. Craig of Michigan in 1910, and by D. F. Lippincott of Penn in 1913. The world's record for the furlong is 20 8-10, made by Charley Paddock in 1921.

Record in Relay, Too.

The record-smashing performances were brought to a close by the Illinois team, which won the relay race in 3:20. The former Big Ten record was 3:21 4-5 and was made by Chicago in 1915. The Orange and Blue team was composed of Smuts, Carter, Fitch and Sweet.

Surprises and disappointments came thick and fast during the games. Lester Wittman was a welcome surprise to Michigan rooters by taking the 100 yard dash in :09 4-5, while Reinke, also of Michigan, who ran a poor race in the half mile, was a disappointment. Reinke stayed back of the field until the middle of the back stretch, when he started to go up, but it was too late, and he finished in fourth position.

Freddie Tykle of Purdue, who had run the 100 yards in the world's record time of :09 3-5 earlier in the year, finished fifth in the final of the century, which was won in :09 4-5. Capt. Sweet of Illinois ran true to form and took the quarter mile in :48 1-5. Capt. Krogh of Chicago started his sprint in the mile too soon and was unable to stand off the challenges of Hall and Mieher of Illinois, who beat him to the tape by inches.

Isbell Takes Two Mile.

Isbell of Michigan and Crippen of Northwestern engaged in an interesting race in the two-mile, which went to the former, who had more endurance and speed. The time of 9:41 was slow for the event considering the competition.

Individual honors were divided between E. C. Wilson of Iowa and J. K. Brooker of Michigan, each of whom scored nine points. The former won the furlong and was second in the century. Brooker won the discus and was second in the pole vault.

The meet opened in true Olympic fashion. Athletes, coaches and officials marched around the field behind the Michigan band and then came to attntion in front of the flag pole as the band played the Star Spangled Banner. Summaries:

PURDUE NIPS CHICAGO TWICE BY 6-5 COUNT

Lafayette, Ind., June 2.—[Special.]—Purdue won both games of a double-header from Chicago here today, and both by the same score, 6 to 5. Campbell proved himself an iron man on the slab for Purdue, pitching nineteen innings, the second game being a ten-inning affair.

Dearmand, Boilermaker catcher, was the batting star, getting a home run in each game and batting 1.000 in the first. His first homer scored two men ahead of him. Mickelson of Purdue slugged out a home run in the first game, but failed to touch third and was called out. Tsukiyama, the Japanese shortstop on the Chicago team, batted and fielded brilliantly and Forkel at first base did some sensational fielding. Scores:

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Casper Platt, 601 The Temple, Danville, Ill., was awarded $5.

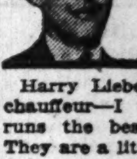
The Question.

Which event in a track meet do you prefer?

Where Asked.

Randolph street, at Michigan avenue.

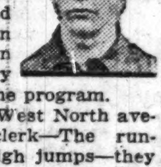
The Answers.



Jack Reese, 4753 Winthrop avenue, clerk—I like the running high jumps the best, with the 220 yard dash a close second. I have taken part in many track meets, but there is something about hurdles that everybody seems to like.

Harry Liebers, 2306 Walton street, chauffeur—I like the runs the best of all. They are a little longer drawn out, but they make up for that in the exciting finishes. I like to run and I like to see others run. I'd rather see Joie Ray run a race than see a whole circus of other track events.

Edmond Pankowski, 1918 North Richmond street, errand boy—The running events. It's a healthful game for boys that are very strong in the legs and wind. Good runners must not have unhealthful habits, because it affects their wind.



J. R. Goodson, Eureka hotel, laborer—I believe I like the pole vaults the best, but they are all interesting to me. The only thing, I have been too busy working to attend many track meets in recent years. So, when I do go, I'm not very particular what's on the program.

Floyd Knowles, 245 West North avenue, clerk—The running high jumps—they are the most exciting. The hurdles require a lot of skill and there's something sort o' graceful about them. There's nothing wrong with the pole vaults for interest, either.

BIG TEN ADOPTS 8 GAME FOOT BALL SCHEDULE

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 2.—[Special.]—By a vote of 8 to 2, the faculty committee of the western conference at a meeting held at the Barton Hills Country club this morning decided to increase the number of conference foot ball games from seven to eight. It is understood Illinois and Wisconsin were the two institutions which voted against the plan. The squads will be permitted to start practice on September 15, the same as in former years.

Anticipating such action, several of the coaches have tentatively booked an extra game. Coach Zuppke of Illinois has slated Mississippi A. and M. for November 17. Howard Jones, of Iowa has scheduled Oklahoma A. and M. at Iowa City on September 29. Coach Yost of Michigan will take on Case and Northwestern will play Lake Forest. Other coaches who are here do not care to announce their eighth opponent until the contests are closed.

Summer Baseball Still Taboo.

The committee also put a spike in the rule regarding migratory students. Any athlete who transfers from a non-conference to a conference school will not be eligible to compete in Big Ten athletics. In this connection the athletic directors voted not to schedule contests with any schools which do not observe the freshman rule and the one regarding summer baseball. This rule will go into effect on Jan. 1, 1924.

It was also agreed that no coaches, managers, athletic directors or others connected with conference schools shall initiate correspondence with preparatory school athletes. It is permissible to correspond, however, if the high school boy writes to the college or university first.

Prof. French on Olympic Committee

Prof. Thomas E. French of Ohio State was elected to represent the conference on the Olympic committee and efforts will be made to enact a rule where a prep school will not be permitted to take part in more than two interscholastic meets each year.

BY FRANK SCHREIBER.

Cincinnati, O., June 2.—[Special.]—One of those old time pitchers' duels, seldom seen in the major leagues since the advent of the lively ball, was fought out between Grover Alexander and Pete Donohue on Redland field here today. Pete allowed four hits and Alex 3, but one of the latter was a triple by Bohne which marked the sixth straight defeat of the Killefers, three of which they have dropped to the Reds. The final count was Cincinnati 2, Chicago 1.

With rumors running rife throughout the town that Big Alex and Statz were to be traded to the Reds for Infielder Lou Fonseca and Outfielder Eddie Roush, Alex stepped out to show the fans that the Bears had no cause to think of trading him off and that he still is the premier hurler of the Chicago staff.

Deny Trade Talk.

Later both Managers Pat Moran of the Reds and Will Killefer of the Bruins absolutely denied all the rumors and stated that all the talk of trades between the two clubs was unfounded.

Alex certainly showed the fans he could pitch. Had it not been for an error by Barney Friberg the Cubs might have been the victors, or at least the combat would have gone into extra innings. In the first six innings only eighteen Reds faced Grover. Daubert singled in the first but was forced by Duncan, who later died in an attempt to steal second.

The Bears got four safeties off Pete Donohue but after the first inning, in which the Bruins scored their lone tally, Pete pitched a brand of ball equal to that shown by Alex. He passed three Bears while Alex hurled the entire combat without a walk.

Statz Scores Only Cub Run.

The Cub run was scored when Statz, lead off man, walked, went to second on Hollocher's infield out and cantered home on Grantham's double.

In the fatal Red seventh, Burns opened with a single. Daubert hit to Friberg, who threw low to first, and Daubert was safe while Burns perched on second. Duncan sacrificed, and Roush's sacrifice fly to Statz let Burns score. Then Bohne tripled to left and Daubert counted, but Bohne was out trying for a home run, a perfect relay, Statz to Hollocher to O'Farrell, nipping Sammy at the plate. Had Friberg made a clean throw of Dauberts' ball, there is no telling what might have been the final outcome.

HINDU TEAM OF TENNIS PLAYERS LEADS THE IRISH

DUBLIN, Ireland, June 2.—[Associated Press.]—India's lawn tennis team is leading Ireland two to one in their Davis cup "tie" to decide which shall meet France in the second round of the European zone competition. The visitors came through in the doubles today when Dr. A. H. Fyzee and L. S. Deane won from S. F. Scroope and L. A. Meldon, the Irish representatives, 0—6, 6—3, 8—6, 4—6, 8—6. India needs only one more victory to clinch the "tie" and become France's opponent.

Swiss Eliminate Bohemians.

TERRITET, Switzerland, June 2.—[Associated Press.]—Switzerland eliminated Czecho-Slovakia from the lawn tennis competition for the Davis cup today when C. F. Aeschliman defeated F. Rohrer of Czecho-Slovakia, in a long drawn out five set match, 4—6, 7—5, 13—11, 3—6, 6—0.

Czecho-Slovakia made a game effort to overcome the two to one lead which the Swiss held by virtue of the first two days' play. Zemla defeated Martin of Switzerland, 4—6, 6—4, 7—5, 6—4, and then, with the score two all, Aeschliman and Rohrer went on the courts for the final and deciding game.

Holland Wins from Italy.

AMSTERDAM, Holland, June 2.—[United Press.]—Holland today defeated Italy in the Davis cup tennis matches by a score of 3 to 1, when Diemerkool triumphed over Colombo, 1—6, 6—1, 5—7 and 6—4, in the singles and Diemerkool and Van Lennep defeated Morpurgo and Colombo three straight doubles sets by 6—4, 6—4 and 6—3.

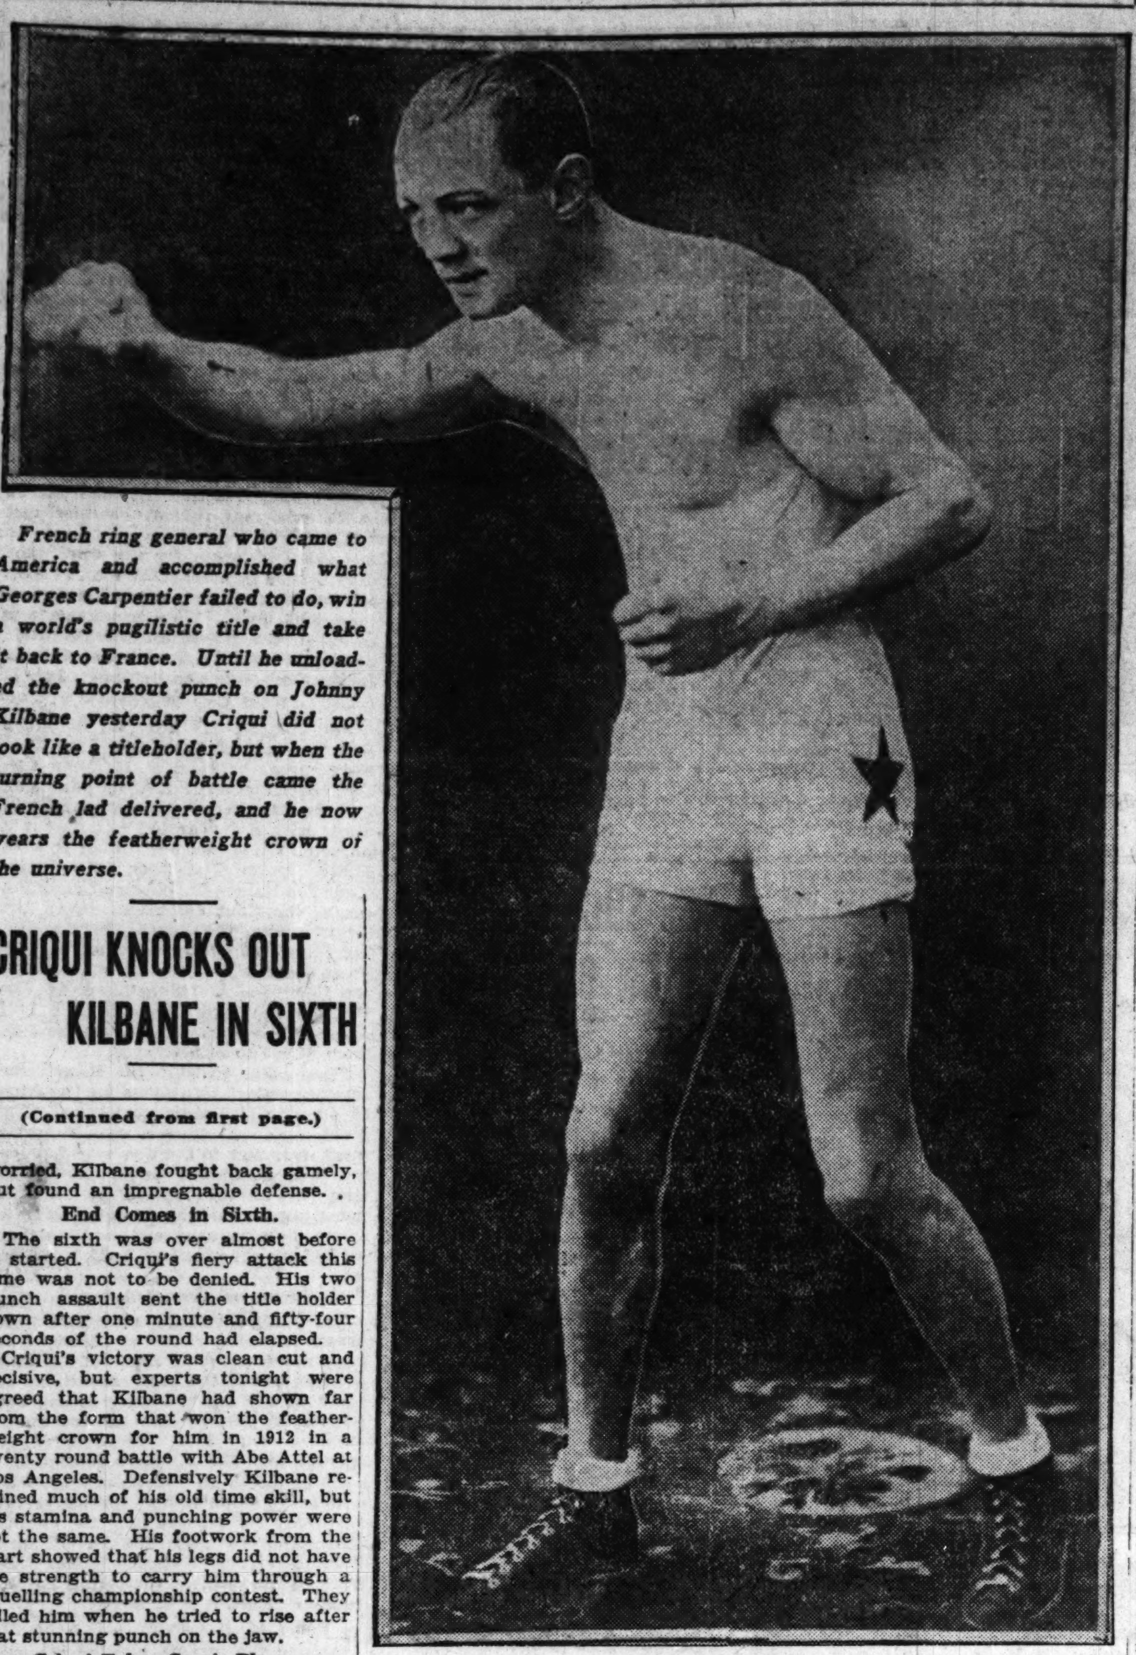
NEW CHAMPION



French ring general who came to America and accomplished what Georges Carpentier failed to do, win a world's pugilistic title and take it back to France. Until he unloaded the knockout punch on Johnny Kilbane yesterday Criqui did not look like a titleholder, but when the turning point of battle came the French lad delivered, and he now wears the featherweight crown of the universe.

EUGENE CRIQUI.

CRIQUI KNOCKS OUT KILBANE IN SIXTH

worried, Kilbane fought back gamely, but found an impregnable defense.

End Comes in Sixth.

The sixth was over almost before it started. Criqui's fiery attack this time was not to be denied. His two punch assault sent the title holder down after one minute and fifty-four seconds of the round had elapsed.

Criqui's victory was clean cut and decisive, but experts tonight were agreed that Kilbane had shown far from the form that won the featherweight crown for him in 1912 in a twenty round battle with Abe Attel at Los Angeles. Defensively Kilbane retained much of his old time skill, but his stamina and punching power were not the same. His footwork from the start showed that his legs did not have the strength to carry him through a gruelling championship contest. They failed him when he tried to rise after that stunning punch on the jaw.

Criqui Takes Carp's Place.

Criqui, whose victory gives him the place in France's pugilistic hall of fame formerly held by Carpentier, has had one of the most picturesque careers in ring history. Now 29 years old, he started boxing nearly fifteen years ago in his schoolboy days. He did not attain much prominence, however, and when the war came he was among the first to go to the front. The bullet that tore away part of his jaw at Verdun nearly cost him his life, but he recovered after a remarkable operation in which the bone of a sheep was grafted in place of the shattered bone.

Undaunted, he again turned to the prize ring and after several years of battling won his way to the European featherweight championship, knocking out his two foremost rivals, Arthur Wyns, Belgian titleholder, and Billy Matthews, English claimant.

Bout Financial Failure.

Criqui has an especially likable personality. The scar of his reconstructed jaw lends a grim but nevertheless softening appearance to his face. His quiet, gentlemanly manner has won him many friends since his arrival in the United States.

The crowd was a big disappointment to the promoters, barely a third of the big National league baseball park being filled. The upper grandstand and lesser-priced seats under cover, as well as the ringside section on the field, were sparsely occupied.

Prospects of a big financial loss as a result of the poor attendance faced promoters, it was said tonight. Receipts were estimated at $80,000 by Matchmaker Tom O'Rourke, while it was understood that Kilbane was to receive $100,000 and Criqui $30,000. In addition expenses for other fighters and promotion were said to be high.

Five Other Bouts.

Five other bouts, all among little fellows, were on the card. Two eight round encounters were the star attractions of these, Irish Johnny Curtin, Jersey City bantamweight, receiving a judges' decision over Jack Sharkey of New York in one, which preceded the main contest, and Louis (Kid) Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., and Babe Herman of Los Angeles battling to a draw in the other, staged after the championship.

In the others Al Ziemer of Cleveland won a judges' decision over Hilly Levine of New York in six rounds; Jimmy Mars of New York received a decision over Mickey Brown of New York in six rounds, and Davy Jones of New York and Jackie McCoy of Jersey City boxed a four round draw.

The Fight in Detail.

The principal bout, by rounds, follows:

FIRST ROUND—Criqui tried with several lefts but was wild. Kilbane missed a right lead for the head. Kilbane landed a light left to the face, and Criqui was short with another right drive to the head. Kilbane hooked a sharp left to Gene's head. Criqui was rather wild and missed with both hands. Kilbane stuck two lefts to Criqui's face, while the latter continued to miss.

SECOND ROUND—Criqui tore right after Kilbane, but the champion sidestepped. Johnny stuck his left into Eugene's face and made the latter miss once more with a try for the head. Kilbane rushed Criqui to a neutral corner without any damage. The Frenchman drove one under Johnny's heart. Then Kilbane feinted the foreigner into a series of knots, and Criqui tried to force the issue. He continued on the offensive, but couldn't lay a glove on the elusive Yankee. The crowd yelled for more action.

THIRD ROUND—Criqui was still missing when Kilbane sent a light left to the mouth and a left to the ear. Gene responded with a right to the champion's face, but John was back with several lefts. There was no damage either way. Kilbane blocked every lead that the Frenchman made and brought several lefts up to Eugene's mouth. The French champion managed to get home a good right to Kilbane's mouth, but John repaid him with two shots to the face. Between rounds Criqui's seconds rubbed him with scented powder, which is brand new in the boxing racket hereabouts.

FOURTH ROUND—Criqui rushed Kilbane, but the latter stopped his advance with a light right to the ear. Criqui tore in once more, but Johnny sent him back on his heels with a right to the chin. The champion began to kid his opponent and snapped another right to his chin, but Criqui kept plunging in. Once more Johnny whipped over a right to the face and another right to the ear sent Gene back several feet. Criqui was desperate, but could scarcely lay a glove on the Cleveland veteran.

FIFTH ROUND—Criqui was still rushing and missing. It was like a schoolmaster giving a lesson to one of his pupils. Criqui missed awkwardly with left and rights to head and body. Criqui, however, managed to rip over a wild right swing to the head and the crowd cheered. It was Criqui's best punch up to date.

SIXTH ROUND—Kilbane dropped over a straight right to Criqui's chin as the latter missed another wild lunge at the American. Kilbane got two lefts to Gene's mouth, followed with a right uppercut to chin. Then Criqui suddenly drove a terrific straight right to Kilbane's chin and the American dropped dead to the world.

SUCCESS FOR CRIQUI AS NEW CHAMPION, IS KILBANE'S WISH

NEW YORK, June 2.—[Special.]—Both Kilbane and Criqui paid compliments to each other after the bout was over, the former showing himself a good loser.

"Criqui is a wonderful boxer and should go far in the game," Kilbane said. "I wish him every success as the new champion. The blow in the sixth came as a surprise, and before I could recover he had connected with my jaw and I went down. He certainly is a terrific puncher."

The Frenchman, speaking through an interpreter, praised the fallen champion's ring generalship, stating that he is one of the cleanest boxers with whom he has ever fought. He frankly admitted that the sudden ending of the bout was something of a surprise, but he saw his opportunity and took it.

TALCUM POWDER AND KISSES ADD NOVELTY TO CRIQUI'S VICTORY

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

NEW YORK, June 2.—[Special.]—Monsier Criqui pasted Mr. Kilbane on one cheek and two minutes later after Johnny had recovered, the Frenchman kissed the deposed champion on the other.

Criqui introduced another new feature in boxing during the bout. Between rounds, his manager, M. Eudeline, produced a can of highly scented talcum and carefully powdered Criqui's legs. The rich scent floated out into the faces of the hard working reporters at the ringside and had them groggy for a time. They had developed no defense for such an attack.

While the scented powder was being sprinkled, a brace of seconds worked a trick massage on Criqui's legs that was entirely new to the crowd. Kilbane, the fallen champion, was not the only one kissed when the knockout occurred. It looked like a farewell party at a girls' seminary for about five minutes. First came Criqui's manager, who grabbed the new champion, hugged and kissed him. Then came three French soldiers, husky men in uniform, wearing heavy mustaches. They put on the double kiss and lastly a French naval officer in white uniform, clambered over the working reporters and got home his osculations.

But for all his kissing and his talcum, M. Criqui looks every inch a fighter and he was loudly cheered by the crowd for his gallant ring performance. He couldn't box like Johnny Kilbane. We felt sorry for him in the first three rounds. But after about four rounds had been fought, the smile was gone from Kilbane's face. The Frenchman wasn't letting up one bit. He was tearing in all the time, and there was something about the way he carried his right fist that threatened disaster.

PARIS CELEBRATES

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, June 2.—A crowd packed densely into a short block of Faubourg Montmartre, where the leading Paris sport papers announced the results of the Criqui-Kilbane battle, broke into a roar of cheering at 10:30 o'clock tonight.

Battling Siki, carrying a snake about his neck, appeared in Faubourg Montmartre at 10 o'clock and waited patiently amid the dense mob. He bellowed "Vive la France!" louder than any when the victory was flashed.

A second wireless message was flashed on the screen reading: "The Americans are carrying him in triumph." Shouts of "Vive l'Amerique" greeted this, Siki again making his voice heard.

The general spirit of rejoicing made champagne corks pop tonight, American tourists in the restaurants and cabarets.

Newsboys Mobbed.

PARIS, June 2.—[By United Press.]—Newsboys selling extras on the fight at theater doors and on the terraces of the restaurants were mobbed by excited fans, the enthusiasm overshadowing that of Carpentier's triumph over Joe Beckett. Criqui's victory is the second to be registered by a Frenchman over an Anglo-Saxon champion.

UMPIRE RUSHED BY PHILLY FANS AS N. Y. WINS, 9-8

Philadelphia, Pa., June 2.—[Special.]—In a game replete with boots and fumbles by both teams, the New York Giants made it three straight from the Phillies here this afternoon, score 9 to 8.

Umpire Quigley's decisions on balls and strikes, as well as on fielding plays, incensed the fans to such an extent that cushions were tossed at him at the conclusion of the game, and several hundred fans broke on the field in an effort to mob him, but quick action by the police prevented what appeared to be a riot.

Jimmy Ring started for the Phillies and pitched well until removed by Quigley for protesting a decision. Ralph Head, his successor, was cleaned up by the Giants.

Cy Williams hit his nineteenth home run of the season. Curt Walker and Butch Henline also clouted the ball out of the park for home runs. McQuillan and Nehf were batted hard by the Phils, but Jess Barnes came in time to save the game. Score:

WESBROOK AND LOTT TO MEET IN NET CUP FINALS

George Lott, University High net star, and Walter Wesbrook will meet in the singles final of the Sherwood tennis cup play at the Sherwood club courts today at 2 o'clock. Jerry and Jimmy Weber will face the winner of the Wesbrook and Wood-Frankenstein and Fogelston semi-final match, which also will be played today.

Showing dazzling speed and outdriving his opponent, Lott won a surprisingly decisive triumph over Arthur Hubbell in straight sets, 6—3, 6—1, 6—3, yesterday. Wesbrook conquered Shaw by the same score. Both winners displayed an improved brand of tennis, that is going to make today's match between them a toss-up as to the probable winner.

The Weber combination ran over Don Turner and L. B. Walton, 6—2, 6—4, 6—2. Jimmy and Jerry experienced little trouble in downing their adversaries, being extended only in the second set.

ARMY DEFEATS NAVY ON TRACK IN LAST EVENT

West Point, N. Y., June 2.—West Point won the Army-Navy dual track meet here today by a narrow margin. Sexton and Robertson of the army cinched the victory in the final event, the broad jump, taking first and second places. The score was: Army, 67 1-3; Navy, 58 2-3.

The feature of the track events was the two mile run, won by Calhoun of the army in 9:36 1-5, setting a new academy record. Calhoun's time was 20 seconds under the previous record.

Mulligan, who will captain the Army football team next year, broke the academy record in the discus with a throw of 135 feet 4¾ inches.

PAT COLLINS CLEANS SOX WITH HOME RUN

by three hits, giving the Sox two runs and the lead. Lefty Pruett had to come out to get the inning over and in the ninth still another Brownie hurler—Van Gilder—performed.

Most everything the Browns scored against Faber was tainted by errors. The one exception was in the first frame, when Tobin tripled and scored on a single by Gerber. A wild peg by Hooper let one get home in the third, a fumble by Elsh aided in the fourth, and Schalk helped the enemy to another with a bad heave in the eighth.

Pat Hits His Homer.

The Sox didn't start to take the lead in the eighth until after two were gone. Then Hooper survived on a fumble by McManus. McClellan beat out a hit and successive singles by Collins and Mostil scored the two tallies that for a few minutes looked good enough to win.

When the Brownie ninth opened McManus atoned for his error with a hit and Severeid scored him with a double. Schliebner flied out and when Ellerbe walked Cvengros was yanked. Thurston went to the slab. P. Collins batted for Pruett and Durst ran for Severeid. Then came the homer.

Ebbets Denies Pending Trade Involves Ruether

New York, June 2.—Although denying reports that he had any deal in view involving Dutch Ruether, southpaw pitcher, Charles H. Ebbets, president of the Brooklyn Nationals, today said: "I am ready to make any deal that will strengthen the club. Something may develop in the next day or so."

Pittsburgh has been mentioned as dickering for the services of Ruether, who did not accompany the Dodgers to Boston this week, because of a lame back.

3 YANK PITCHERS SIDETRACKED BY RED SOX, 7 TO 3

New York, June 2.—The Yankees today dropped their second game in a row to the Red Sox, 7 to 3. Howard Ehmke, after a poor start, settled down and held the Hubmen to six scattered hits. George Burns, Boston first baseman, got four hits in five times at bat, one of which was a double. The Red Sox pounded three Yankee hurlers for 14 hits. The score:

GREY LAG WINS THE SUBURBAN

Belmont, Park, N. Y., June 2.—Grey Lag, by todays' decisive victory in the Suburban handicap, all but won the championship of the handicap division. Sande's ride was faultless. Mad Hatter raced Snob. II. into submission the first portion of the mile and a quarter run, then Grey Lag moved up and won, pulled up, in the good time of 2:03. Snob II. gained second place and Exodus was good third. Sande also rode the winner, Fluvanna, in the Floral, a four and one-half furlong dash.

Clipping two-fifths of a second from the track record, Brigadier General won the featured steeplechase, defeating the veteran Sweepmint, which ran gamely after a poor start.

Washington, D. C., June 2.—[Special.]—An even break in today's double header with the Senators was the best the Macklets could get. Rollie Naylor managed to get a 7 to 5 decision over Southpaw Cy Warmoth in the opening encounter, but the A's could do little against the veteran Walter Johnson in the second fray and sank to a 5 to 3 defeat. Hauser of the Athletics boosted his home run record for the season from five to seven by knocking the ball over the right field fence in each of the contests. Rube Walberg gave nine bases on balls in the second tilt, three of them being responsible for tallies. Score:

GIBBONS TELLS HOW HE WILL FIGHT DEMPSEY

BY TOMMY GIBBONS.

I have been asked to tell my plan of battle and discuss my chances in my fight with Jack Dempsey for the world's heavyweight championship at Shelby, Mont., July 4, but before plunging into detail on the contest itself I wish to make this point clear: I am going into the ring determined to win the championship, not merely to obtain the loser's share of the purse.

Dempsey is a great fighter and a great champion. I will concede that, but he is only human. Likewise, he can be knocked out. The ring has yet to produce a fighter who could not be knocked out if hit on the right spot.

Carpentier Had Dempsey Groggy.

I know Dempsey can be hurt because I saw Georges Carpentier have him groggy in the second round of their fight at Jersey City.

Right there the Frenchman lost his opportunity to win the title because he didn't know what to do in a critical moment. Instead of tipping back Dempsey's head with a straight left and measuring him for a right cross, he threw two wild right handers at Jack's jaw and the champion, through more luck than skill, barely managed to evade the blows, slipped inside and clinched with Georges until his brain had cleared.

I discovered this fact at Jersey City; Dempsey inflicts most of his punishment at close quarters. He is a great infighter, but is just an ordinary performer at long range boxing. Carpentier fought Dempsey wrong.

To date, Dempsey has forced his opponents to fight him his way. I will box him my way and will make every effort to break up his attack. Jack makes his rivals lead and then beats them to the punch with counterblows. I expect to spoil his offense by feinting.

Missing Heavy Blows Weakening.

Dempsey puts every ounce of his weight and strength back of each wallop. Every blow is ticketed for a knockout with him. It is more weakening to miss a punch than to land it. I will endeavor to make Jack miss as many punches as possible.

I do not intend to rush into Dempsey and fight him toe to toe in the early rounds. That would be the height of folly. I will do my share of milling, but I may elect to permit Dempsey to force the pace.

Dempsey carries his hands rather low and, unless I am greatly mistaken, it should not be very difficult for me to keep him at bay by jabbing and hooking him with my left.

Dempsey's long layoff has not done him any good. It must be remembered that he has not had a fight in two years. A boxer loses his "eye" after such a long period of inactivity. He may get into excellent condition following a long course of training and may look good and feel good, but he will discover in actual combat that fighting in the ring with a determined rival and boxing with mediocre sparring partners are two vastly different things.

Dempsey Must Train Hard.

All I have to do is sufficient training to hold my edge, whereas Dempsey will have to undergo a gruelling grind to get into condition. He will have to do in six weeks' time what I have spread over a period of two years. Where Dempsey will rob himself of much of his vitality by heavy training, I will be able to nurse my strength and stamina. I have weighed about 172 pounds for most of my fights during the past year, but I expect to weigh 178 pounds when I enter the ring.

When the boxer has been out of the ring as long as Dempsey, it is a safe guess that body blows will bother him considerably. One solid punch over the liver, in the pit of the stomach, or over the heart causes more damage than a dozen blows to the face. A fighter can shake off the effects of a punch to the jaw, but a vicious blow to the body paralyzes the legs and takes the gimp out of him generally.

I have crippled most of my opponents with left hooks over the liver. This is a most effective punch and prepares many of my knockout victims for the finishing blow, usually a left hook or a right uppercut to the jaw. These are the blows with which I hope to conquer Dempsey.

Gets Plenty of Sleep.

Now, just a few words about my training methods and diet. When I am training for a fight I usually retire between 10 and 11 p. m., read for an hour or so, and arise between 8 and 9 a. m. I believe in plenty of rest. For breakfast I have prunes or grapefruit, soft boiled eggs, dry toast and milk. An hour or so later I go on the road for a five mile jaunt. I usually walk two blocks and sprint one. After a shower bath and rubdown I partake of a light luncheon of practically the same kind of foods I have for breakfast. I start my gymnasium work at 3 p. m. and go at top speed for from forty to fifty minutes.

Then I rest until dinner time, which is never later than 6:30 p. m. This consists of broiled steak or lamb chops, rare, vegetables in season, usually asparagus and head lettuce, boiled or baked potatoes, milk, and a dessert of custard, baked apple, or prunes. I never drink tea or coffee.

I expect to have six sparring partners. I will use Jack Clifford of St. Paul, Joe Burek of Detroit, Mich.; Harry Foley of Hot Springs, and Charley Herman of Butte for the heavy work, and Jimmy Delaney and Jock Malone of St. Paul for speed.

TOM GIBBONS ILLUSTRATING BLOWS WITH JACK CLIFFORD

TASK TO KEEP JACK FROM GOING STALE

Great Falls, Mont., June 5.—[Special.]—To keep Jack Dempsey from going stale before his fifteen round tussle July 4 with Tommy Gibbons at Shelby, Mont., was the task faced today by Manager Jack Kearns when he returned from a business visit in Utah. Kearns immediately outlined plans for Dempsey's training up to the day of the battle.

Although he gained eight pounds during his week's layoff from training, Dempsey will continue to take things easy during the next week, Kearns said. A fortnight of heavy drilling with sparring mates will follow and precede the tapering off process of ten days before the bout at Shelby. Dempsey will box only two or three times between now and June 10. His training will consist of work with the bags on the road. The champion weighed close to 200 pounds today.

Plans for Dempsey's two weeks of intensive training, starting after next week, include importation here of a string of sparring mates, to be held in reserve in case the champion cripples the eight pugilists now in his camp. The new sparring partners will be announced next week.

Several Great Falls ministers visited Dempsey's quarters today and invited him to attend church tomorrow. The champion's program for Sunday had not been fixed at the time, but he promised if possible he would attend services in some Great Falls church.

Dempsey was elated today when he learned that Mike Trant, Chicago detective, would join him here shortly. Dempsey said that Trant had been at his quarters prior to all his big bouts and he would not feel right if the Chicagoan did not join him before his fight against Gibbons.

Bennie Leonard May Meet Joe Benjamin on Labor Day

Great Falls, Mont., June 2.—Benny Leonard, lightweight champion, probably will meet Joe Benjamin, Pacific coast star, in a title bout, probably on Labor day, Jack Kearns said today. Benjamin now is at Dempsey's camp here.

FIRPO-HIBBARD GO OBJECTED TO; CALLED "SETUP"

Mexico City, June 2. — [United Press.]—Serious objections to the proposed Luis Firpo-Jim Hibbard fight have been raised by the newspaper El Mundo, which opened a campaign against the contest with a story pointing out Hibbard as a "setup."

It was suggested that Hibbard be forced to fight Sam Langford, the Mexican champion, before he be permitted to engage Firpo. Langford, it is claimed, has the first right to meet the South American.

The city government is to form a boxing commission next Monday to supervise the sport, and it is considered probable that the new commission will take action to prevent the Firpo-Hibbard bout.

CHICAGO STATE HOSPITAL WINS.

The Chicago State Hospital baseball team defeated the Kankakee State Hospital team at Dunning, 6 to 4, yesterday.

Spalla, Italian Heavy, Seeks Dempsey Bout

MILAN, June 2.—"I'll meet all comers," Ermio Spalla, the Italian heavyweight pugilist, said today. "Dempsey, Firpo, Beckett, or Battling Siki. I am ready to fight Dempsey today anywhere he wishes. I should like to have a match with Firpo in South America."

Regarding a match with Carpentier, Spalla said: "Carpentier must first meet Vanderveer before I fight him."

Spalla defeated Vanderveer recently on points.

No further details were contained in the report. A cablegram to Lewis' sister in Brooklyn was reported to have brought the news of the boxer's death.

THREE SOCCER GAMES ARE ON CARD TODAY

Three soccer games are carded this afternoon, the main attraction being the meeting of the Olympias of the major league and the Thistles at 47th avenue and 19th street. The Scotchmen will have Weir back in the lineup, and this should strengthen them. The British Legion team will meet Gary in a district league match at Cicero avenue and Roosevelt road. The Canadian-Pullman match has been canceled.

At 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue Laburnum and Snowdrop lodges of the Sons of St. George league will play the final game for the benefit of the British Old People's home. Games will start at 3 o'clock.

George Robertson is arring a five a side contest in connection with the Scotch picnic at Kolze park July 4. It will be the biggest of its kind staged in the middle west.

NEW BILLIARD ROOMS OPENED BY TOM FOLEY

Veteran Tom Foley and his able assistants, Martin Fey and Andy Monahan, welcomed many visitors to Tom's new billiard room at 426 South Wabash avenue yesterday. Mr. Foley, the dean of American roomkeepers, has been in the billiard business sixty-eight years. The new room has fifteen tables and is finely outfitted.

A number of Chicago's leading players gave exhibitions at night. J. H. Levis officiated at referee. Among the players were Al Taylor, Edouard Horemans and Percy Collins, the amateur champion, who defeated Henry Barrett, 150 to 71, at balkline.

ILLINOIS DERBY TO BE FEATURE AT HAWTHORNE

BY FRENCH LANE.

First running of the Illinois Derby, a handicap event with $10,000 added, was announced yesterday as the feature of the Hawthorne race meeting, which gets under way on June 30. The race, which will be contested over the mile and one-quarter route, will be decided on the afternoon of Saturday, July 14. Three year olds and upwards are eligible.

The Derby tops a program much more pretentious than the one offered at Hawthorne's revival meeting last fall, according to the condition book and event program for the first eight days, issued yesterday. A total of $65,300 has been offered as purses during the eight days. Two handicaps are included, the American Independence handicap on July 4 and the Illinois Jockey Club stakes on Saturday, July 7.

First Day Features.

The opening day program finds the first running of the Francis S. Peabody purse, the Peter M. Hoffman Special, the Hawthorne Revival handicap, and the Daily News claiming handicap, along with a 2 year old contest for a purse of $1,200 and a claiming race at $1,600. Other first week features include the Harvey T. Woodruff claiming purse, the Congress Hotel purse, the Cicero purse, the South Shore claiming purse, Hotel La Salle pures, Oak Park handicap, THE TRIBUNE purse, the Lawrence A. Young handicap, the William E. Dever purse, and a half dozen others carrying values ranging from $1,000 to $2,500.

Final plans to whip the Hawthorne track and plant into shape for the June 30 opening will start tomorrow. The plant itself will show a vast improvement over last fall, when a test meeting was conducted under conditions that were anything but ideal. This did not dampen the race hungry enthusiasm of Chicagoans, as the attendance ranked with that at any track in America.

Plenty of Horses Assured.

That there will be no scarcity of horses is indicated in the thousand or more applications for stable room. This is in excess of the accommodations at the west side track, but rebuilding and remodeling has made room for about 800 and every stall will be taken on opening day, officials have predicted.

Judge C. W. Hay of Kentucky, who is to serve as presiding steward, wrote yesterday for reservations for twenty thoroughbreds from the B. B. and Mountfort Jones stables. Jockey Earl Pool will do most of the riding for the establishment, it is expected.

Some of the Owners Coming.

Among the owners making reservations are the following:

Woods and Waters

ANOTHER CANOE TRIP WITH FISHING ON THE SIDE.

WHEN you stop to figure out the popularity of canoeing you realize that this sport is really one that has been sort of "bred in the race." It formerly was the only means of travel and communication here in the middle west and in the days of the French explorers the canoe was worth its weight in gold.

Many a river in this country that is a favorite today for the canoeist was first explored by men in a crude yet beautiful canoe. So in looking over the history of the use of this type of watercraft you find plenty of romance surrounding it. There was romance and thrills a-plenty in the old days when traveling in a canoe. But you can still find "them things" today if you want to hit the flowing road in some parts of this country.

Wisconsin, famous for the canoe history it has made, is rich in water routes over which you can wield your paddle. You can reach them either by automobile or railroad. One of the old favorites is a float down the Wisconsin river from Conover. If you want a comparatively easy jaunt with a minimum amount of portaging this is the route you'd better try. You can ship your canoe to Conover and there buy your grub. Putting in at this town you can float and paddle over a mighty pretty stretch of water which offers good fishing. It is not a case of loafing along on sluggish water, either. If you like to get a kick out of canoeing by shooting rapids you will have an opportunity for a little of this excitement on this trip as there are a couple of swift stretches that will make you keep your eye on the ball.

However, if you know anything about canoeing you can embark on this trip without a guide as the Wisconsin river between Conover and Rhinelander is not a stretch that has a lot of rapids demanding expert guiding and handling of a canoe. This trip can take most any amount of time you choose. If you are a real water dog and like to loaf along fishing nearly every likely looking spot better plan on taking a couple of weeks for this jaunt. Anyway, who wants to hurry on a canoe trip? When you have to wield a paddle as if you were goin' to a fire it's more work than fun. Nothing like having lots of time for a water trip. Then when you hit a particularly inviting spot for camping and the fishing is good—why, you can take it easy, go fishin' and let the water in the river roll by.

BIG GALLERY TO FOLLOW PUBLIC LINKS GOLFERS

BY JOE DAVIS.

A large gallery is expected at the Forest Preserve course at Edgebrook today for the first of the qualifying rounds to determine the six players who will represent Chicago in the National Public links championship at Potomac park, Washington, D. C., June 28 to 30.

The event is being staged under auspices of the Cook County Municipal Golf association and all of the public parks and forest preserve clubs have entered players.

Ten Chicagoans Eligible.

Chicago is entitled to send ten men to Washington, and the C. C. M. G. A. has undertaken to finance the expenses of the six leaders. Others who go will have to defray their own expenses.

Play today will be at 36 holes, the morning round starting at 9 o'clock. About sixty players are expected to compete. The second qualifying round will be played next Sunday at the Dixmoor club.

The Edgebrook course is close to the Edgebrook station of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road, and is about half mile from the end of the Milwaukee avenue car line.

GOLF BALL LAUNDRY KEEPS ROBINS IN SHY MOOD AT EDGEWATER

FRANK H. JOHNSON, chairman of the greens committee at the Edgewater Golf club, has added a number of features this year, among them being a ball washer at every hole. The ball is placed in the washer between brushes, the player turns a crank, and the ball comes out clean. It is unsafe to leave moveable things around a golf course at night, so Chairman Johnson had the ball laundries set in concrete.

At the fourteenth hole tee one was placed within two feet of an evergreen tree. The work was finished before nesting time, and when a robin built her nest in the evergreen she had no idea how many players would use the machine. Finally four blue eggs appeared and the mother began her "setting."

Everything was all right until Decoration day, when so many people played that Mrs. Robin was kept away from home all day. Chairman Johnson could not move the nest, so he moved the ball washing device to the other side of the tree, and the hatching again proceeded steadily.

MOLLA LOSES TO KITTY McKANE IN TENNIS FINALS

CHISWICK, England, June 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, American lawn tennis star, was defeated by Miss Kathleen McKane, Great Britain's first ranking woman player, in straight sets in the finals today of the Middlesex tournament, 6—3, 6—2.

There was nothing faulty with Mrs. Mallory's game; she was simply crushed by a player whose game, for the day at least, was better. The British girl, racing from one side of the court to the other with great strides, returned every ball she could possibly get her racquet on and so accurate was she that she ran up a total of thirty placements.

The finish was spectacular, Miss McKane winning the last four games in a row and allowing Mrs. Mallory only six points.

Mrs. Mallory, paired with Mrs. Edington, also advanced to the finals in the doubles, only to lose. The American woman champion and her partner defeated Miss McKane and Mrs. Youle, 8—6, 6—4 in the semifinal round.

Mrs. Mallory and Mrs. Edington were defeated in the finals, however, by Mrs. Lambert Chambers and Mrs. Satterthwaite, 6—3, 6—1. The English pair were remarkably steady with their returns while Mrs. Mallory, because of the frequency with which she drove into the net, was largely responsible for the defeat of her side.

In the finals of the mixed doubles, W. C. Rawley and Miss McKane defeated D. M. Greig and Mrs. Chambers, 6—3, 6—3.

In the men's finals, B. I. C. Norton of South Africa defeated D. M. Greig, 8—6, 6—2. In the finals of the men's doubles, Norton and U. M. Hillyard defeated S. N. Doust and H. Wallis Myers, 6—3, 6—4, 6—3.

Elizabeth Ryan Wins.

BRISTOL, Eng., June 2.—[United Press.]—Miss Elizabeth Ryan, former California girl now living in this country, defeated Mrs. Craddock of England, 8—6, 6—2, in the finals of the Women's West of England championships this afternoon.

J. O. P. Wheatley and Miss Ryan won the mixed doubles finals, defeating F. L. Riseley and Mrs. Craddock, 6—3, 7—5.

Lord Bryce Declares
The Charmed Land Peerless
—Know Your United States!

Neither Europe nor Asia nor South America has a prospect in which sea and woods and mountains are so united in a landscape as in the view from Puget Sound of the great peaks that rise like white towers above the dark green forests of the Cascade Range.—James Bryce (the late Viscount Bryce).

LORD BRYCE knew his world as have few students and travelers of his day. Mount Rainier is conceded to be the most aerial, most beautiful and most majestic mountain in the world. Numerous other "lone white towers" almost equally impressive pierce the sky and there are two great mountain ranges, numerous mountain lakes, rushing streams, waterfalls so plentiful that they give a name to a range of mountains, the Cascades; the surf rolling in from the Pacific; 2,000 miles of shore line of Puget Sound, a charming sea archipelago, alluring trails and motor roads, every sport in the world, and always, everywhere, pure, cool water, cool, balmy days, refreshing nights, and a wealth of greenery.

It's America's supreme vacation land. Know its beauties and its delight this year. Send for the Charmed Land booklet, brimming with vacation suggestions. No visitor to any part of the Pacific Coast should fail to travel at least one way via Seattle and The Charmed Land.

LOANS THE MORRIS PLAN SAVINGS

The "On Time" Bank

Here is a bank which loans money to people of all classes and engaged in all kinds of occupation.

The chief attraction of "The Morris Plan" is the instalment re-payment privilege which is extended, whereby loans made for a period of twelve months or less are paid by weekly, bi-monthly or monthly deposits.

People pay Morris Plan loans just like they buy furniture, automobiles or real estate — "on time."

Then there is the security feature. While marketable collateral is always accepted as security, 80% of Morris Plan loans are made upon the endorsement of two friends whose income is sufficient to guarantee the amount involved.

People will gladly sign your note who would hesitate to loan you money themselves.

The Unusual in Banking

OF course, it's unusual and some folks almost wonder:

A State Bank with $1,000,000 capital with distinctly outstanding and successful business men as directors "bothering" about doing a business in loans that average between 200 and 300 dollars.

Ask the fellow whose doctor's bill is paid.
Ask the family with its tax receipt.
Ask your neighbor who is buying his place.

They will all recommend The Morris Plan and they will tell you that it's not hard to get two people to sign your note—providing you are earnest and honest and can pay back like the others did—and hardly miss it at that.

GARDINI, ZBYSZKO MAT BATTLE HAS FANS GUESSING

Local wrestling fans are curious to note what effect the two successive defeats suffered by Renato Gardini at the hands of Champion Ed Lewis will have on him when he enters the ring to do battle against the grand old Pole, Stanislaus Zbyszko, at the Coliseum June 12.

Many mat experts are of the opinion that the Lewis victories—one with the headlock—have left the son of Italy with his spirit broken and his confidence shot, and that he will fall an easy victim to the mighty Pole.

On the other hand, admirers of Renato argue that the old man himself got his at the hands of the same champion in many matches, and that no doubt the rule will work both ways, and if Gardini is discouraged over his defeats the Pole must be many fold more so.

Both Zbyszko and Gardini are in hard training.

MORTON WINS 2 AND COPS SUBURBAN TITLE

BY GEORGE BUCKLEY.

Piling up a record score in the first game of yesterday's double header, Morton officially won the baseball championship of the Suburban league and drew a curtain on its activties for the season by a double defeat of New Trier at Cicero. The home lads smothered the invaders, 30 to 0, in the opener and established what is believed to be a record for a five inning game. Dahlquist and Hurt, the first two batters, exploded home runs, and what followed was of the same pattern, but somewhat milder.

New Trier in the aftermath fell by the more respectable score of 14 to 5. C. Johnson dished 'em up, and Morton cracked 'em out, R. Svec leading the savage eighteen hit attack with a triple and two singles.

Edward Dahlquist, captain and pitcher, was credited with both triumphs. He started the first game and retired after being given a ten run lead. He returned, squelched a dangerous looking rally, and again relinquished the mound to Swade.

Morton crashed through to the championship with a machine that won nine games in ten starts, and Dahlquist turned the opposition back in every victory. The titleholders' lone defeat came from Oak Park, 6 to 5.

SEMI-PROS RIDE INTO REAL ACTION ALONG WITH HOT WEATHER

A DOUBLE header at Normal park will feature today's semi-pro baseball schedule, the Romeos playing Joliet in the first game and the winners clashing with the home club. Johnny Overlock, who beat the American Giants recently, will do the hurling for the Normals with "Gob" Buckeye on the warming pan. Otto Jacobs will be back of the bat. Manager Ryan of the Romeos has a staff of good pitchers. Dick Cantwell may be his first choice, with Kerninghan and Ryan in readiness.

The Firemen will make their first appearance of the season at Pyott field. The Fireos are in the midst of a winning streak, their victims yesterday being the Justins. The visitors will be accompanied by their band of fifty pieces.

The Merry Gardens, neighborhood rivals of the Logan Squares, will visit the latter this afternoon to show the brand of ball they are capable of. Butcher Boy Schultz, who pitched good ball for the Pyotts last season, is the hurling ace for the Gardens. Following is today's schedule of outstanding semi-pro games:

Firemen at Pyott park, 47th avenue and Lake street; Gunthers at Cermak park, 26th and Kostner; Merry Gardens at Logan Square, Milwaukee and Sawyer avenues; Chicago Giants vs. Chicago Blues at Kranz field, Clark street and Ridge avenue; Joliet vs. Romeos at Normal Park, 61st street and Racine avenue, winner to play Normals at 3 p. m.; Ravens at Atkins & Freund's, 50th and Oakley; Cubans vs. American Giants at Schorling's park, 39th and Wentworth; Chicago Red Sox at Joliet; Chicago Elks vs. West Side Sportsmen at Sportsmen's field, Polk and Des Plaines; Belle Plaines at Elgin; Kyetons Boosters at Blue Island; Hamilton Giants at Harvey; Arcades at Glen View; Ragens at Justin park, 22d and Kostner; Irving Park at St. Michaels, 81st and Coles avenue; Alvernos at Dundee.

THEY REALIZE THE DIFFERENCE

FOLKS who drive Overlands and Willys-Knights in and around Chicago are happy folks. Happy in owning motor cars they can depend upon. Cars of extraordinary economy. Cars that cradle them in comfort. Cars that go on looking well and performing faithfully through many leagues and months of even the hardest service.

These folks have, too, the further satisfaction of knowing that behind their Overlands and Willys-Knights stand twenty-four official sponsors. Twenty-four local establishments equipped to render quick, capable and friendly service. One in every neighborhood. Each neighborly in treatment as well as in nearness.

The cars themselves are the greatest Willys-Overland ever built—and are being sold at the lowest prices. Which means the lowest prices for which so much motoring satisfaction may be bought.

The new Overland is the only car at or near its price that has an all-steel body, with baked-enamel finish—or so many Timken and New Departure bearings in its strong axle construction. Overland is the only car with Triplex Springs (Patented), which give the smooth riding ease of a much longer wheelbase. And owners report that the powerful Overland engine gives 20 miles or more to the gallon of gasoline.

The beautiful new Willys-Knight is famous for its coachwork and its remarkable engine. The Willys-Knight sleeve-valve engine actually improves with use. Carbon only makes it better. There are no valves to grind. Many owners report 50,000 miles and more without a single engine adjustment. And no Willys-Knight engine has ever been known to wear out.

The price of motoring happiness is the price of an Overland or a Willys-Knight. Own either of these cars and realize the full meaning of greater value in a motor car.

Master Builder of Race Motors Sees Ideal Car

Harry Miller Demands 40 Miles to Gallon; Invades Europe.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 2.—[Special.]—Here is the American automobile of the future. How would you like to own it?

Eight cylinders in line in an engine that can develop more than 100 horsepower.

To run forty miles on one gallon of gasoline.

Power plant, frame and body so light that oversize or "balloon" tires will double the mileage of the average tire today.

Motor piston displacement reduced as low as 91 cubic inches as compared to the 122 cubic inch motors run in the Decoration day race, which in turn were smaller than the Ford motor.

Four wheel brakes which, through a new axle design, will make it impossible to lock the front wheels, and thus gain the margin of safety that scores of manufacturers are now trying to find in the new braking system.

The whole job to be purchased on a five year operation basis and built with the precision and care followed in European factories.

This ultimate automobile is not the dream of the average car driver. It is the official prediction and promise of Harry Miller, whose motors in the 500 mile acid test last Wednesday won him the title of Master Motor Builder of the world.

The California designer whose engines powered the H. C. S. and Durant Specials which finished first, second, third, fourth, sixth and seventh in the money, had checked up on every detail of their performance today and was ready to pass judgment on the experiment. Sitting on the edge of a hotel room bed piled high with technical notes and complimentary telegrams from engineers of two continents, he dispensed his inside information to a half dozen star pilots of the race and friends.

"Those cars Wednesday have convinced me that they are the type the American public is going to buy from now on," he said. "The race, I think, was a lesson for manufacturers, and I for one, am going to build twenty-five stock cars of the 183 inch displacement type for the market of next year. They will cost $25,000 each.

"Their motors are going to be eight in a row. These little eights proved that they had perfect tort. Their explosions were perfectly balanced through the whole race and they stood up better than the V-type eights, which develop side virbation. They were so small that they averaged about fifteen miles to the gallon of fuel even at their highest speed. They used so little oil in the entire race that it is negligible."

"Yes," broke in Jimmy Murphy, international racing champion, who still leads by 270 points for the 1923 championship, "and the American car owner is getting smart at last. He is off the high handed extravagance of the past. Instead of buying a car because it will climb a hill in high and run at high speed, he is asking how much gas it eats. In Europe, where a gallon of fuel costs 75 cents, people demand twenty-five or more miles to the gallon first, and then consider what the car will do in the way of stunts. I felt safer in this little Durant, even when we were running to a spilt second on the straightaway and turns with Tom, than in any other Indianapolis race, because I knew the principle of the motor was right."

"How did you feel about Milton's car?" some one asked Howdy Wilcox, who shared the winner's honors by his brilliant 115 miles as relief driver for Milton after his own car had broken its clutch.

"Jest, to show you how I felt," drawled Howdy, "I'll tell you that a man came up to me a few weeks ago and said I could buy the best cases of Scotch in the world for $100 a case. When I got out in that car of Tom's and see the boys buzzing around out there, I says to myself: 'Believe I'll go out and get me a case or two.' I knew the job would do it, and it did a whole thousand dollars' worth in lap prize money."

"Well, I'm going still farther in this direction," resumed Mr. Miller. "Next year I will have at least one 91 cubic inch racing car entered here under my own name, and that job will go faster than these babies, too. The parts will be lighter and more durable. We will decrease the head resistance and weight of the whole job even more than the 122's. The little engines Wednesday developed 400 horsepower. The boys could never get much better than 100 out of the 300 inch jobs. The explosion impulses were not felt this year. The eight cylinders showed an absolutely even pull on the wheels. If the same power could be developed by a two cylinder engine, for example, each shot would slip the wheels of the car, wearing out tires and making the job hard to manage. None of the Millers went out of the race because of purely mechanical trouble, and they were turning up to 5,000 revolutions a minute, too. Milton's fastest lap showed 5,200 revolutions per minute on the engine speed indicator and on the turns they brought out 4,600 r.p.m. They used to think that 600 r.p.m. was good."

The builder wound up his report by announcing that he is making three cars to ship under his name to Italy for the Grand Prix Sept. 9. Jimmy Murphy will pilot one, with Erney Olson as his mechanician. Count Zborowsky will have another, and the youthful but potent Martin de Alzaga will have the third. Both of the latter were Bugatti teammates here this year and have signed with Miller for all continental tracks. Murphy is confident that he will repeat his performance on the French track and bring home the trophy with the new race cars. They will all be equipped with an extra seat for the mechanician to conform with European custom.

OLD CARS FOR NEW CREATES PROBLEM FOR BUSY MOTOR PLANTS

ACCORDING to Edward S. Jordan, automobile production will will not be continued at the rate of 4,000,000 cars a year, or on the basis of the record established in the first quarter.

This, he adds, will not be from lack of demand for the new cars offered for sale by the manufacturers, but from the lack of demand for old motor cars, offered for sale by present owners.

The potential demand for new cars is about 13,000,000, but with every working man employed at high wages and the greater demand for new cars, the more meager is the demand for used cars.

Manufacturers are even now inclined to build fewer and better cars so that they will last longer.

RUN MOTOR IDLE.

A motor will warm up more quickly when running idle than with the car under way.

EASY WITH CHOKER.

When starting the motor never flood the carburetor by working the choker too much.

CLEAN THE POINTS.

Inability to start the motor is often caused by the distributor points being corroded.

DOLL IT UP.

A car can be made to look like new by having it varnished every six months.

New Board Ready to Iron Out All Speedway Issues

Auto Racing to Be Greatly Advanced by Experts.

FOR the purpose of working out the many trying problems of business management which confront every speedway association, bring about a greater spirit of coöperation than has heretofore existed and arranging in advance and to the satisfaction of all concerned race dates before they are submitted to the contest board of the A. A. A. for approval or rejection, the national board of speedway managers was formed at a meeting held recently in Los Angeles.

Managers of all board speedways in the United States, together with many men noted in automobile racing circles were present. The Fresno Speedway association was represented by H. E. Patterson; the Los Angeles Speedway association by A. M. Young; the Sonoma County Speedway association and the newly projected speedway at Oakland, by J. Francis O'Connor; the Kansas City Speedway association by L. J. Smith; the American Automobile association by William Schimpf, chairman of its contest board. A. M. Young of Los Angeles was elected chairman. Chairman Schimpf of the A. A. A. contest board was elected an ex officio member.

As the name implies, the work of the new board will be national in its scope. The details of the organization and procedure are being rapidly worked out and it is part of the program that regular meetings will be held during each year.

Following the organization of the new board Chairman Young stated, "Although the new organization is an important one, it must not be confused in any way with the contest board of the American Automobile association which is the real governing body of automobile racing and is in supreme control as heretofore.

"The national board of speedway managers is really a wheel within a wheel. It is composed of the managers of speedways throughout the country and every speedway manager is eligible for membership. It will attempt to iron out any difficulties which may arise between speedway organizations. It will try to arrange for dates harmoniously and for the best interests of all concerned, special efforts being made to work out a speedway circuit whereby drivers and race officials will not be subjected to long cross country jumps to one race and then back to the starting point for the next event, both climatic and geographic conditions being taken into consideration. Nothing done by our body, however, can be final until approved by the contest board of the A. A. A.

"We believe we can do much to smooth out all friction and bring about a condition which will win increased favorable comment of speedway officials, drivers and the public. That is our aim and purpose and we are glad that Chairman Schimpf is heart and soul with us in this work."

In this connection Chairman Schimpf has given his unqualified indorsement to the newly organized board of speedway managers and he expressed the opinion that the new body would accomplish much good in the way of promoting a spirit of closer coöperation among the speedways that would prove most satisfactory to all concerned.

Some Figures.

There are 55,250 railroad passenger coaches in use, having a seating capacity of 2,270,000. The 9,500,000 automobiles now in operation have seats for approximately 47,000,000.

If there was a necessity, the motor vehicles registered today could carry every man, woman and child in the country at the same time, according to Firestone statisticians.

In 1910 there were but 451,000 motor vehicles registered in the United States. On July 1, 1922, there were 10,608,127.

According to insurance company statistics, $9,500,000 was paid out for burned cars in 1922. The great part of this loss was the result of carelessness.

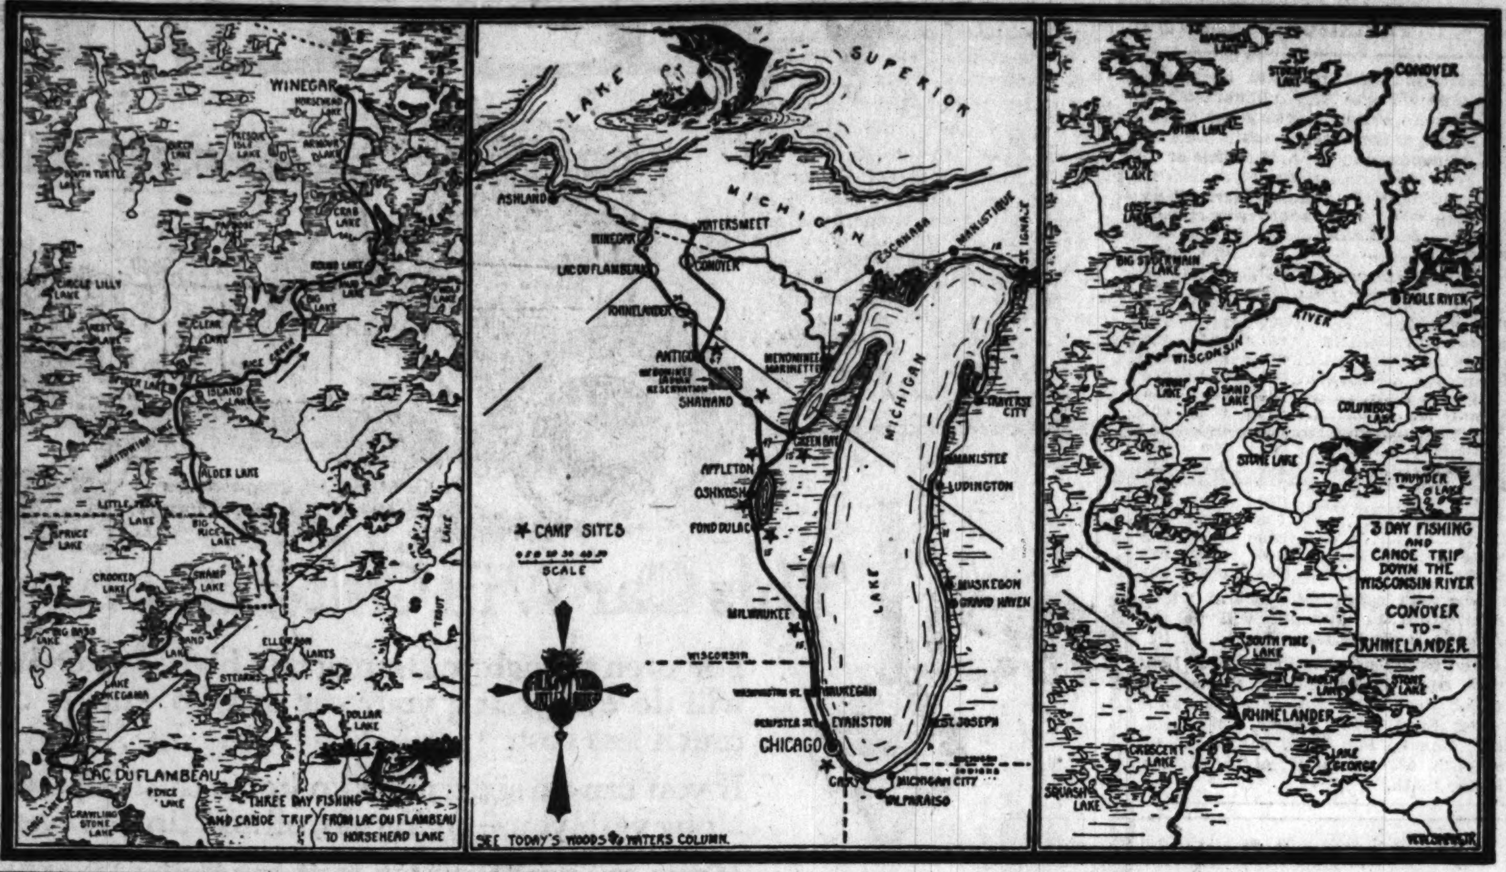
V. THE WAY TO VACATIONLAND



TWO weeks jammed full of north woods contentment lie ahead of the trail fancier who cares to follow this 385 mile road into the land of game fish and pines. Here is pictured the vast sweep of forest, stream, and lake described in today's Woods and Waters column and the suggested canoe trips which will take motorist sportsman into every hidden nook he has long planned to explore.

The route begins in Sheridan road, following it north to Dempster street, Evanston, then west to the Waukegan road and north into Waukegan. Sheridan road leads on north to Milwaukee and No. 15 Wisconsin highway offers solid concrete to Appleton. From Appleton north No. 47 highway is paved to Black Creek with good gravel into Shawano. Then come forty-five miles of the most picturesque, if not the best, road in northern Wisconsin, that leading through the Menominee reservation to Antigo. This road is gravel and dirt, winding straight through the wild Indian country. Better roads may be found by turning west to Wittenberg from Antigo and thence north, but the reservation highway is worth the sportsman's time.

From Antigo good gravel and dirt lead north on No. 39 highway to Crandon and on No. 32 to Eagle river, which is just 11.3 miles south of Conover, where the best of the two canoe trips begins. This trip uses the Wisconsin river through the heart of the game country south to Rhinelander, and can be made easily in three days.

The second canoe trip can be had by following highway No. 39 from Antigo to Rhinelander and Woodruff, thence north to Winegar, a distance of 125.5 miles. It requires four portages between Winegar and Lac du Flambeau.

Two Reasons.

Speeding and overloading are two of the chief contributing causes for tire trouble. Striking a stone, or even a rut, at a fifty mile clip will damage the best of tires and the strain may not show up for weeks.

Sent to School.

Traffic violators in Sioux City, Ia., are required to spend at least two hours in a school maintained by the police for teaching the city's traffic rules.

Our Auto Bill.

The United States has spent between $15,000,000,000 and $20,000,000,000 for automobiles and trucks in the last fifteen years. More than $6,000,000,000 has been expended for improved roads, say Firestone experts.

Speediac Ward.

The latest development in connection with traffic enforcement is the setting apart of the fifth floor of the jail at Spokane, Wash., for the segregation of speedsters. It is known as the "speediac ward." The object of this segregation is to protect the speeder, often a young man, from association with hardened criminals.

Boon Companion to Joyous Hours

Enduring Performance—Comfort—Beauty

THE eager, youthful spirit of the Paige 4-passenger Phaeton adds zest to ownership. In striking appearance, excellence of performance and fastidious comfort—it bespeaks the knowledge of fine motor car manufacturing behind it.

Paige performs equally well for the adept or novice. Steering ease rarely equalled—gear shifting, though seldom needed, at a slight, easy movement—gentle clutch that forbids jerking or stalling. Under the lightest hand, Paige behaves like the thoroughbred it is—ALL drivers are GOOD drivers.

Flashing over the open highways or creeping through the teeming city streets—from 2 to 70 miles an hour in high—smooth, silent power obeys the touch of your foot. Precise workmanship gives long-enduring, smooth performance to the 70 H. P. Paige motor and early silence is preserved for its long life by the Paige high-pressure oiling system. Timing is held at the highest efficiency point by the automatic take-up on the silent timing chain.

Here, too, is body construction for the critical. No squeaks or rattles mar ownership pride—double strips of patent leather keep metal from touching metal or wood. Deep, comfortable cushions bar even hint of fatigue, however long the trip. Rear springs more than 5 feet long, with snubbers—and 131 inch wheelbase—make restful riding on any road. Convenient locker space for travel comforts—folding trunk rack for heavy luggage. Your every comfort and convenience has been anticipated.

Whatever you demand in a car—performance, appearance, comfort, long life or sheer value—Paige will please you. The best test is to drive it yourself—measure it against your requirements. A demonstration awaits your telephone or call. Convenient payment terms may be arranged if desired. (462-A)

MOTORDOM

Automobile Body Flays Political Road Building

Three A Demands That Pedestrians Be Regulated.

HENRY C. WALLACE, secretary of agriculture, was principal speaker at the twenty-first annual meeting of the American Automobile association, held in New York. George C. Diehl of Buffalo, retiring president, presided. About 150 delegates, representing the principal automobile clubs in the United States, were present.

Thomas P. Henry of Detroit was elected president for the ensuing year; G. Roy Hill of Minneapolis, secretary; William C. Kirby of Chicago, treasurer. Vice presidents were elected as follows: Charles A. Frazer of Massachusetts, P. J. Walker, California; Frank S. Gold, Minnesota; Frank O. Miller, Florida; C. H. Verschoyle, Texas; Daniel R. Reese, Pennsylvania; Dr. L. S. Colter, Ohio.

The association accepted into membership twelve automobile clubs, bringing the total membership to more than 300,000.

Through the adoption of resolutions, the A. A. A. went on record as favoring the removal of highway departments and officials from politics; favoring the government's taking over the obligation of both building and maintaining highways across unappropriated lands and federal reserves, instead of leaving this to be done by the state in which they are located, and again pledged itself to continue its efforts for the national system of adequate highways.

Secretary Wallace departed from his set speech to compliment the association on its work for federal aid to roads. He told of the disbursement of the funds and how they are handled, and also went into detail regarding the work of the agricultural department scientists for good roads, especially with reference to testing materials, solving drainage and other problems, and fitting special materials to different soils. He told of the group of men, about 3,500, connected with his department, the largest single group of scientists in the world.

Dr. James W. Inches, former police commissioner of Detroit, said that the most important problem confronting the police of every city is that of handling traffic. "We have been regulating the motorist for the last ten years," he said, "and it is time that we start to really regulate the pedestrian, as an unbelievably large percentage of accidents to pedestrians which result in injury or death are due to the carelessness of the pedestrians."

A. M. Loomis, secretary of the National Grange, warned against the new Socialist element that is creeping into the government and said that even the farmer, trained to think for himself and opposing Socialistic ideas, is beginning to listen to this class of politician, whose chief stock in trade is the promise of lowered taxes.

"Never before has there been such a revolt against taxation as there is today, and the politicians are taking advantage of this state of unrest," he said. He added that many farmers are paying more in taxes on their farms than the farms would bring at a fair rental value.

TENT VILLAGES CARE FOR DETROIT WORKERS IN THE HOME FAMINE

THREE and four years ago Detroit had what was known as the "tented district," made necessary by the vast army of workmen, particularly in the automobile factories, who were either unable to secure living quarters for themselves and families or were unwilling to pay the high rents asked.

This condition again exists, and hundreds of families are now living in tents throughout the suburban districts of the city and within easy reach of their places of business.

In some sections miniature villages are being built over night, and a canvass shows that a large percentage of the tent dwellers are employed in the many automobile plants of Detroit.

WHAT'S WRONG HERE?

"Mamma," said the flapper, "Billy has invited me to go for a ride and I'd like to have you go along."—The Spotlight.

Woman Drivers Active Against Traffic Evils

WASHINGTON, D. C. — That women's influence is already extending beyond the development of car design and appointments to a potential change in traffic ordinances, legislation and motor car regulation is one of the outstanding motoring trends of the day.

Much significance is being attached to the reports reaching the Washington headquarters of the N. M. A. from affiliated clubs that annual meetings are being attended by a larger percentage of women, who are taking an active and intelligent part in solving many of the problems which mere man has come to regard as "necessary evils."

It was not until women took an active part as drivers that closed models, with all the present equipment now commonly regarded as standard equipment, became popular enough to mark a new era in motoring; and it is women's influence which may remold the entire structure of automobile regulation.

Secretary Fred Caley of the National Motorists association adds: "Women have no intention of taking a back seat while their husbands, sons or brothers labor for the benefit of motoring. They are active because they drive cars and know that their coöperation is needed. Many of the present conditions are intolerable to the woman who motors. She wants better conditions. And when a woman makes up her mind to get something she usually succeeds.

"Fortunately, more and more women are being elected to legislatures and to other public offices, which means that coöperation between women motorists and the lawmakers is offering a natural outlet for women's influence on motoring.

Highway Record.

During February 824 miles of federal aid roads were placed under construction, according to the bureau of public roads. This is said to be a particularly good record for a month that is considered unfavorable for road work in many of the states.

The next speedway event at which points will be awarded will be the July 4 race at Kansas City.

The points possible in the race here with each driver piloting the car in which he started the entire distance were: First, 1,000; second, 520; third, 270; fourth, 140; fifth, 90; sixth, 60; seventh, 50; eighth, 40; ninth, 35; and 30 for tenth.

More "Home" Roads.

"A large factor in decentralizing city homes is the transportation problem, and challenges the genius of highway engineers," declares Dr. C. J. Galpin, United States department of agriculture. "Less than one-third the entire population of the United States is on farms. Sixty-eight cities of more than 100,000 population each contain nearly another third. The thirty-odd millions of people living in cities of 25,000 population and over are being brought into immediate contact with the commodities of living, the skills of service, and the institutional wisdom of the world, whereas those who live on farms receive few of these advantages."

The Real Difference in Motor Cars

It Lies in Hidden Values

Essex values are not all on the outside. They extend to minute details. They include finest roller bearings where commonly bushings are used. They include devices to prevent wear and inexpensively take up wear. For weight carried the Essex frame is the strongest built, save one. Experts all over the world call its motor the finest of its size.

It is because of such hidden values that Essex cars two and three years old, with upwards of 70,000 miles of service, are running as reliably today as when new.

Car Owners Rally to Battle Flood of Motor Bills

National Capital Is Scene of Hottest Fight.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—That the national capital should become the most important center in motordom will doubtless be news to car owners who are not aware of the increasing amount of proposed adverse legislation which is constantly being prepared for introduction in the house and the senate.

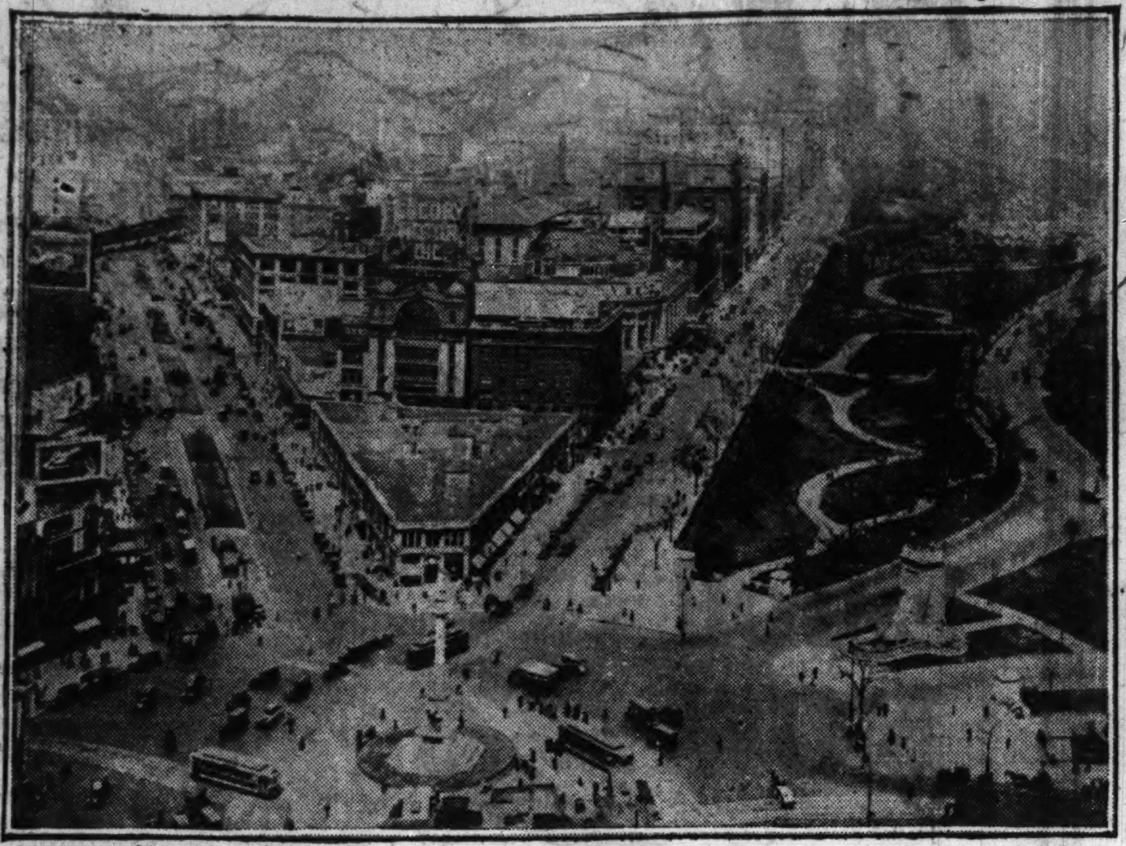
With the phenomenal development of the automobile goes the natural tendency to place it under federal rather than state control; and, while much of the federal legislation being proposed may be desirable before very long, a large portion of it that is being agitated at present would seriously affect the business of making cars and of using them.

From Washington can emanate the best or the worst of automobile legislation; and, as the National Motorists' association points out, the most adverse laws could reach the statutes without the knowledge of the majority of car owners.

It is anticipated that the next session of congress will bring forward many bills that should be urgently encouraged, and many which should be promptly "killed." The inconsistencies of state motor vehicle regulations and the increasing use of the automobile as an interstate form of transportation and commerce are focusing attention on forms of federal regulation of motor vehicles. All these points will be fought out in Washington, and at no time in the history of motoring will there be such urgent need for strong support from the N. M. A. affiliated clubs throughout the country.

It is freely predicted that the motorists of the country have a battle ahead. It will be staged at the national capital, where the individual car owner has only one way to protect himself effectively against adverse laws, and that is through support of his local automobile club.

GOTHAM'S TRAFFIC WHIRLPOOL



There are worse jobs than that of the traffic officers at State and Madison. Here is Columbus circle in New York, where Broadway, Central Park west, 59th street, and 8th avenue pour their motor hordes into the rush hour melting pot. Only strict observance of the traffic signals makes it possible for vehicles to run through the intersections. It is one of the most dangerous crossings in the country for pedestrians.

Rush Great Road.

The last link in the 4,060 miles of highway connecting Portland, Me., and Portland, Ore., a permanent living memorial to Theodore Roosevelt, whose name it bears, is expected to be completed when its fifth year of construction has passed, next February.

One-fifth of the stretch remains to be worked. Approximately $21,000,000 has been spent since the highway was designated, according to A. W. Tracy of Duluth, executive secretary, more than $6,000,000 of which was allotted last year. The money has come from county, state and national road funds.

The highway now is virtually all marked in the thirteen northern states through which it passes and has been improved to 82.9 per cent, either graveled or hard surfaced. The association has coöperated, but not competed, with every legitimate highway and good roads organization during its construction, and has been indorsed by civic organizations along the route.

The association was organized February 17, 1919, as a memorial to Theodore Roosevelt, to provide a northern transcontinental highway.

Avoid Left Curb.

The driver of an automobile should never park with the left side of the car to the curb, except on a "one way traffic" street. The right side should be next to the curb, and never the rear end, unless in regular parking spaces where the regulations permit cars to park at right angles to the road. On a regular highway such parking tends to block traffic and is dangerous to the welfare of the standing machines.

Ten Million Fans of Open Road Now Planning Trips

MORE than 10,000,000 tourists will answer the call of the great open places and take to the motor highways during the touring season of 1923.

It has been conservatively estimated that 2,500,000 car owners will take advantage of the splendid highways which have been constructed during the last several years and visit America's beauty spots, to be found in almost every one of the forty-eight states and Canada.

By estimating that each car owner has four in the family, including himself, the total of over 10,000,000 tourists is conservatively arrived at.

Business institutions of all kinds will share in the great distribution of money which will be expended, and hotels, garages, automobile accessory stores, department and clothing stores will all benefit thereby.

A number of cities are already making preparations to take care of the stranger within their gates, camp sites and parking grounds are being established, automobile club touring bureaus are preparing to extend reciprocal courtesies and furnish touring information and courteous treatment to motorists from other localities.

The National Motorists' association, through its touring bureau, is preparing hundreds of thousands of route cards, maps and touring instructions which will be made available in all parts of the country.

The United States government is coöperating to the fullest extent and opening up national parks, building trails through the mountains and forests and providing camp sites wherever possible.

The national park system has been extended and improved and the following parks will be open to the motorists in 1923:

Carter lake, Oregon; General Grant, California; Glacier, Montana; Grand canyon, Arizona; Hawaii, Hawaiian islands; Hot Springs, Arkansas; Lafayette, Maine; Lassen volcanic, California; Mesa verde, Colorado; Sequoia, California; Sullys hill, North Dakota; Wind cave, South Dakota; Yellowstone, Wyoming; Yosemite, California; Zion, Utah.

Road of Remembrance.

Two thousand elm trees will be planted on the road between Syracuse and Utica early in the spring as the possible beginning of a "road of remembrance," extending from New York to Buffalo, as a tribute to New York soldiers who died in the world war. Announcement of the plan was made recently by Herbert S. Sisson, highway commissioner, after a conference with Clifford R. Pettis, state forestry superintendent, and members of the faculty of Syracuse university.

The trees for the first ten miles will be furnished by the college of forestry, Syracuse university. If the experiment proves successful the highway commissioner hopes that the work will be continued.

Small Decline in Auto Production to Steady Market

Call for Trucks Still Far Greater Than Supply.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Mich., June 2.—[Special.]—Although the demand for automobiles and trucks continues far in excess of supply, evidences of a small decline in automotive production were noted during the last week. Manufacturers are tapering off their factory schedules to slightly lower levels that will be maintained throughout the summer months, according to present prospects.

Engine builders, however, are endeavoring in every way possible to increase their already record breaking outputs, and are being urged to make deliveries at the earliest possible moment. In a way, the inability to be supplied with a sufficient quantity of engines has kept the production down a bit, it being necessary to wait for engines. A small increase on the part of the engine makers, and a like decrease on the output of cars, will overcome this difficulty.

The middle of May saw the peak of production of automobiles, after a steady upward climb since the first of the year. The usual slowing down, which has always developed along about the first of May, was deferred, and is still to be noticed. Pleas for cars this year compelled manufacturers to push production at the time when they expected the tapering off period to show itself.

The slight slowing of production in many of Detroit's plants does not mean there is a slowing up in demand for cars. To the contrary, the increasing demand for vehicles is one of the reasons why makers are applying a slight pressure on the production brakes.

Said one of the best known automobile manufacturers in the city: "The reason for the slowing down of the moment, is the result of a deliberate attempt to stabilize things for the future, rather than allow the present boom condition to run wild."

More than ever before the entire country is now impressed with the necessity of individual transportation. The man who does not own a car is either arranging to buy one or wishing he could afford to do so. More than one-third of the Detroit auto factories plan no noticeable change in their production schedules for the present. These plants, now running at capacity, intend to push production for an indefinite period. Even the reduced schedules which some factories are installing, will be considerably greater than those in vogue one year ago, when records were established.

The closed car is certainly having its day, and catching the eye of prospective buyers. Many are awaiting the coming of the four-wheel brake, which they are satisfied will be the next added attraction to many cars, and that another season will see a majority of the new cars so equipped. Engineers are experimenting and several are now satisfied that they have solved the four-wheel brake problem, and the "big talk" at next winter's automobile shows will be along the brake line.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom.

The Tribune will pay $5 each for questions accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your questions to "The Inquiring Reporter, Chicago Tribune." For today's question W. J. Braun, Fairbury, Ill., was awarded $5.

The Question.

Which do you prefer, the policemen's signals or the automatic signaling system?

Where Asked.

Michigan avenue bridge.

The Answers.

Fred C. Rauch, 910 Webster avenue, chief clerk—I believe the mechanical signals are more definite, and are seen and understood by a larger number of people. In the loop the whistles are often confusing. The motorist gets out in the middle of the street, is called by the officer, and traffic is delayed.

Wm. R. Jackman, 230 East Ohio street, General Poster service company—Well, for one thing, the automatic signals are definite, and understood by everybody. They are particularly needed on boulevards. That's where the accidents occur. On our boulevards too many people pay too little attention to a policeman.

John M. Morland, 2700 North Drake avenue, draftsman—I'm a firm believer in the automatic system. These signals give notice when to get ready to stop or start. You never know when the policeman is going to give the signal. They can be seen by a larger number of drivers. Furthermore, they would give the pedestrian a chance.

F. W. Luoma, 29 South La Salle street, contractor—The automatic system they are now installing is pretty good. I like to see an officer give the signals and take care of the traffic, but the automatic system would be understood by everybody and it would speed up traffic. Downtown the policemen have enough to do without doing all the signaling.

Robert R. Cenek, Bismarck hotel, architect—I would like to see automatic signals installed throughout the boulevard system. As it is now, different parts of the city have different signal systems in effect and you don't know whether a policeman is on a corner or not. You don't know what to expect. The automatic signals would give a uniform system everywhere, day and night.

Cities All Busy Opening Streets to Auto Traffic

"HANDLING traffic at the rush hours in the morning and evening is becoming such a problem that traffic officials of the various cities are staying awake nights trying to find new ways which will keep traffic moving. With spring days inviting more and more suburban residents to drive their cars to and from work, the problem has become exceedingly difficult," states M. O. Eldridge, executive chairman of the American Automobile association.

"In one big city," said Mr. Eldridge, "the through streets and boulevards are divided into a three lane way. At the peak hour of traffic in the morning the two right hand lanes handle the inbound traffic and the third lane handles the lighter outbound traffic. In the evening the reverse situation is true."

Other cities are using motorcycle officers and mounted policemen to keep the traffic moving in a steady stream, preventing unnecessary parking and stopping, interfering only with this rapid flow of traffic in the case of reckless driving.

Where roadways are only two car width inbound and outbound traffic is often diverted during rush hours to parallel roads. This is done by making such a street a one way thoroughfare during certain hours of the day.

Cities have found educational publicity of great assistance in meeting traffic problems. Oftentimes there are two or more streets or boulevards leading from the various thickly populated suburban sections into the business section which are equally as good and offer just as satisfactory a way into the city. Habit has resulted in one thoroughfare being used to a greater extent than the other. Properly directed publicity will often change this.

Close coöperation between the departments of traffic and streets results in new traffic lanes being opened.

RIDE ON RIM.

It is better to ride on the rim when a tire goes bad than on the felloe band, if you have no tire to replace it. Felloe bands are thin and expensive to repair.

Should They Marry?

Statistics gathered by civic authorities, leading hospitals and prominent physicians show that fully seventy per cent of our adults, at some time in their lives, have been venereally infected.

Should these people marry before they have been absolutely cured? You find the answer in the startling records of thousands of innocent lives wrecked through unfortunate association with victims of the so-called "social" diseases.

Seventy per cent of the women received for treatment of these diseases at a prominent hospital were respectable housewives who became infected through marriage to uncured men. A recognized authority on "social" diseases states that thirty to fifty per cent of all childless marriages and eighty per cent of certain pelvic operations performed on women are due to one of these diseases alone. At least seventy-five per cent of all children born blind, eighty per cent of all children born dead, and a vast multitude of little ones doomed to a lifetime of physical deformity or mental disability are victims of one or the other of these hideous infections. One of these diseases alone causes fully twenty per cent of all cases of insanity.

And yet these devastating scourges can be cured. No infected person can give any excuse for remaining infected or for passing his affliction on to another. His disease can be cured—he can go to the marriage altar undefiled. He can know beyond all doubt that he is no longer a menace to others.

About three years ago a group of Chicago business men realized that something must be done to stop the onward march of "social" diseases to whose danger most people have been so indifferent.

These men founded the Public Health Institute, not for profit, but to provide a place where reliable treatment by reputable physicians would be available—a place where people even of the most moderate incomes could secure the benefits of the most effective methods developed by medical science.

The Institute, organized for this worthy purpose, has restored health and vigor, hope and ambition to thousands of infected and discouraged people. At the same time, it has safeguarded thousands of others against infection. It is now treating more than 800 patients every week day or over 20,000 monthly.

This specialized service is offered to every person who may know from active symptoms that infection is present and also to those who may have reason to believe that infection may be dormant in their systems.

There need be no hesitation, no embarrassment about coming. The Institute provides forty rooms where patients are attended in the strictest privacy by skilled specialists having at their command every facility for the most effective treatment.

There is only one decision for the victim of a "social" disease to make—and that is, not to delay but to seek a cure not only for his own sake but for the sake of his family and associates.

FARM AND GARDEN

Turns Vast Sand Banks Into Acres of Fine Alfalfa

By Frank Ridgway.

Chief Black Hawk's historic "yellow banks" of western Illinois, between Oquawka and New Boston, are being transformed into productive fields through a unique system of sand farming developed by Alexander Moir of Burlington, Ia.

On this huge sand bar, seventeen miles long, averaging two miles wide and 42 feet deep, cactus, sand burs, and fire weeds are about the only plants that will flourish on the untreated fields. Under the Moir system of treatment the farmers are able economically to produce from three to six tons of alfalfa, fifty-six bushels of corn, thirty-three bushels of rye, and twenty-four bushels of wheat to the acre on this sand ridge paralleling the Mississippi river.

Farmers in the Mississippi bottoms and on the ridges skirting the long sand bar, covering an area of more than 20,000 acres, told Alex Moir that he was foolhardy to attempt farming in sand hills pitted with blow holes varying in size from tiny depressions to excavations more than 100 feet across and twenty-five to thirty feet from the bottom to the top of the dunes around the rim. Fourteen years ago, when Mr. Moir started his project of reclaiming this barren land, no progressive farmer in that section would waste his time trying to grow crops on pure sand.

Makes Tests with Alfalfa.

Alex Moir thought it a waste of time, too, until he became interested in the sleek coat of a grand champion bull at the International live stock show in 1909 and found that the high finish on the winner was chiefly the result of feeding him alfalfa hay. Then he bought Joseph E. Wing's book on alfalfa and began trying to work out some scheme of growing this legume crop on the abandoned sand land he bought for hunting ground at $12.50 an acre.

Through the personal advice of Mr. Wing and J. W. Coverdale, from the Iowa station, sand samples were analyzed to see what was needed. Lime and humus were both lacking. Tests were made on a small scale where lime and manure were used. It was found that good crops of alfalfa and rye could be grown by applying three or four tons of manure and five tons of limestone to each acre. But with the sand skimming over the ground like fine snow the tender alfalfa plants were sheared off close to the ground or covered up in sand drifts.

After several tests were made, the new and unique feature of the Moir system was discovered. It was found that by sowing oats in the fall about the last week in September that they would reach a height of six to twelve inches, die in the winter, leaving a protective blanket of dead oat plants matted on the surface to hold the sand in place. In the spring alfalfa could then be drilled in the field with the dead oats where the young plants are protected from the cutting sand.

Undertakes Big Task.

Supplying manure for 800 acres of sand land was a big task, but 500 carloads of litter and cleanings from live stock cars were bought from a railroad and piled along the tracks bordering Mr. Moir's land at Milroy station. A clam shell dredge was used to unload the manure, which was piled in heaps thirty to forty feet high, forming a ridge more than 800 feet long. After two-thirds of the mountain of manure had been used this method of supplying humus was discarded. The growing of cowpeas to take the place of manure was adopted and proved to be a cheaper and an easier way of getting vegetable matter into the sand.

The simple system followed on the Moir land today can no doubt be adopted by other farmers, making it possible to put millions of acres of sand land in the United States under cultivation. His present method is to start by throwing brush, straw, coarse manure and similar materials into the blow holes to hold the sand. In a short time the sand is blown back into the pits and the field is practically level. Five tons of limestone are put on each acre. The land is plowed in the spring to a depth of six inches and cowpeas are drilled, broadcasted, or planted in rows. The black-eyed variety is used at the rate of three pecks to the acre.

Saving the Cow Peas.

Cow peas are grown for two years in succession and turned under with a breaking plow each summer when the plants have reached their full size. In the fall of the second year, about Sept. 20, oats are sown at the rate of a bushel to the acre and a subsoil packer is used to firm the ground and prevent the blowing of the sand. The oats often grow a foot high before they are winter killed.

The following spring or the third year after the system has been started, alfalfa is cross drilled at the rate of ten pounds of seed to the acre each time, or a total of twenty pounds to the acre. The seed is inoculated with dirt from fields where alfalfa or sweet clover has been grown. This is essential to get a good stand. The first year, if the season is good, Mr. Moir gets one light clipping of alfalfa, but the real harvest comes the second year when three cuttings are made during the season.

Three of four cuttings of alfalfa are harvested each season, yielding an average of three tons to the acre and in exceptional cases running as high as six tons to the acre. Alfalfa is constantly storing up nitrogen in the soil; the plants live for many years and produce a fair crop each year without being reseeded or cultivated in any way.

At his farm the other day Mr. Moir took a party of Chicago men into a seventy-five acre field of alfalfa that was started eight years ago. "I get an average of about three tons to the acre every year from this field," he remarked as he stood in the field with the tops of alfalfa plants waving several inches above his knees. "We haven't touched this field since it was first seeded except to come here and harvest the crop. This land cost me $12.50 an acre and to get this kind of a stand of alfalfa it costs from $10 to $15 an acre, including limestone, cow peas and labor. When the cost is distributed over a period of years it is small and low enough that any farmer with sand land can afford to do what I am doing."

"I have never seen any better alfalfa growth on $200 an acre land," said a soil and crop expert as he drove around the seventy-five acre field.

In another alfalfa field established thirteen years ago there is still a fair stand, yielding about three tons to the acre each season.

Cost of Growing Low.

"The cost of growing alfalfa on this sand is low," added Mr. Moir. "My average return on this alfalfa, going back to the time when I first started with it, has been around $12 or more a ton, or $36 an acre each year. The original cost of the land, the expense of working it into shape and getting a start with alfalfa is about $25 an acre. I get all of this money back and $19 an acre besides at the end of the harvest season of the fourth year after I start the cropping system."

Rye is about the only crop that can be grown on this untreated sand, but the yield is so low that it does not pay. From four to eight bushels of rye to the acre is the best farmers can get on the sand unless they use manure or cow peas and lime.

With the Moir system the alfalfa can be turned under after it begins to get thin, and excellent crops of small grains, such as rye and wheat, can be grown. Rye is now almost six feet high on the Moir farm. About two-thirds of the 800 acres of sand land owned by Mr. Moir and 400 owned by Leon Le Maire, Mr. Moir's business partner, is now under this new system. All of the 1,200 acres owned by these two men is being put under this system as rapidly as possible.

Several thousand acres had been abandoned before Mr. Moir started his work. Some of the farms were sold for taxes. "It has not been many years ago since I bought some of this land at $4 an acre and sold it for $10," said Mr. Moir. "Soon after I demonstrated that crops could be profitably grown on this sand ridge the price of the same kind of land shot up to $60 an acre."

Even with this new system being demonstrated in fields just over the fence some of the farmers along the "Yellow Banks" are continuing their practice of burning off the fields and trying to grow crops without the use of limestone and manue or cow peas.

In driving over the main road through this sandy section for more than eight miles only three shacks, one of them unoccupied, were to be seen. Apparently most of the people have given up farming, believing it a hopeless task to attempt the growing of crops on such land. The traditional fishing pole carried on the sand farmer's shoulder or tied to the side of his buggy is more common than the plow, even at the present time. The sand is so loose in the road that the wheels of an automobile go down to the hub and zigzag, leaving a snake track behind. In some places straw has to be spread over the road to make traveling possible.

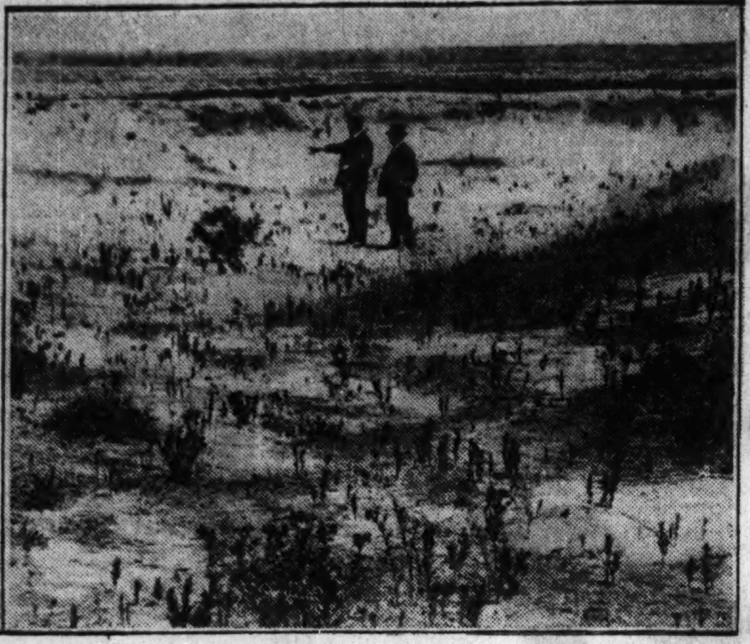
University Using Land.

It is this kind of soil in which Mr. Moir has developed a system that is making possible the reclamation of thousands of acres of abandoned sand farms. Along the main highway of the sand ridge he is growing crops on seven different plots of from five to six acres each, demonstrating the possibilities of profitable farming on pure sand.

To further carry out his ideas, Mr. Moir gave twenty acres of this land to the University of Illinois five or six years ago to be used in official experimental work. Soil and crop experts have been treating plots with different kinds of materials and have obtained excellent results.

Farmers in Muscantine and Lee counties, Iowa, are operating thousands of acres of sand land quite similar to the land in Henderson county, Illinois, where Mr. Moir is farming. They are following his new system. He advises farmers with sand soil to start on a small scale, liming and growing cow peas on five or ten acres, adding more acres each year.

Painting "Yellow Banks" Green



BLOW HOLE—Alexander Moir, right, had blow holes like this all over his sand land when he started reclaiming abandoned soil on "Yellow Banks" in western Illinois across the Mississippi river from Burlington, Ia. He threw brush and straw in these holes to catch the sand. J. W. Coverdale, formerly of the Iowa station, is almost six feet tall and is shown on the left with his head coming several feet below the rim of the hole that forms the dark line in the background.

MOUNTAIN OF MANURE—One-third of the original 500 carloads of manure piled along the tracks at Milroy, Ill., and used in fertilizing sand land reclaimed in western Illinois by Alexander Moir, are shown in the above picture. This pile of manure, 30 feet high and 800 feet long, was discarded when it was found that growing cowpeas would supply humus to the sand.

KNEE DEEP IN ALFALFA GROWING IN SAND—Alexander Moir, left; J. W. Coverdale, right, are shown here in a 75 acre alfalfa field started eight years ago. Three tons of alfalfa hay are harvested each year from this field, which has not been reseeded since it was originally sown. Five tons of limestone and two crops of cowpeas turned under made this fine crop possible on abandoned sand land. The picture was taken a week ago.

COMING THROUGH CHIN-DEEP RYE—This thriving crop of rye is being grown on sand soil following alfalfa on abandoned land along the ridge of a huge sand bar stretching up and down the Mississippi river for seventeen miles between Oquawaka and New Boston, Ill. To grow the alfalfa on this pure bed of sand the soil was treated with five tons of limestone and a cowpea crop was turned under two years in succession. Left to right: J. B. Lamson, Chicago; Alexander Moir, Burlington, Ia., originator of sand farming system in western Illinois; and J. W. Coverdale, formerly of the Iowa experiment station.

Potato Growers in Marketing Pools

Potato growers in the eastern and western states are organizing to market their own crops as rapidly as posble. Sixty per cent of this year's spud crop in Maine has been signed up to be marketed through a pool. The same contract with the pooling feature is being signed by growers in Colorado, Utah and Idaho. Colorado truckers will be ready to market the 1923 crop through the new system. Farm bureaus in the different potato growing sections are backing the new movement. The Federated Fruit and Vegetable Growers' association, producer owned and controlled organization, will act as the selling agency for the Maine Potato Growers' association.

C. W. Hunt Named.

C. W. Hunt has been selected as secretary of the Iowa Farm Bureau federation, succeeding E. H. Cunningham, who was recently appointed as the dirt farmer member of the federal reserve board, Washington, D. C.

The Source of Motor Truck Value

THE logical source of truck value lies in the qualifications of the maker. For this reason, wise buyers study the manufacturer's financial strength—his experience, policies, and stability—as their guide in choosing a truck. Here are INDIANA'S qualifications;

1. STABILITY: A strong, old-established company, founded in 1898—a quarter-century of steady, solid, substantial growth.
2. FINANCIAL STRENGTH: Ample capital and strong resources, assuring the advantageous buying which makes INDIANA values possible.
3. EXPERIENCE: Twenty-five years of successful manufacturing, of which thirteen years have been exclusively devoted to the manufacture of high-grade motor trucks.
4. POLICIES: A fixed determination to build nothing but the best, to put value and service ahead of all else, and to give the utmost for the money.
5. SCOPE: A nation-wide institution in manufacturing, sales and service; eleven strategically located factory parts-depots covering the entire country, and hundreds of distributor and dealer parts-stocks available in as many cities.
6. PERFORMANCE: Thousands of INDIANA Trucks in service in almost every country—many of them in daily operation 10 years and longer, and many that have gone a hundred thousand miles and more.

We can direct you to companies in your line of business who have standardized on INDIANAS.

FIGHT CUT OFF OF I. C. RAILROAD IN CAIRO REGION

I. C. C. Hears Protests from Southern Illinois.

Washington, D. C., June 2.—[Special.]—Opposition from the state of Illinois and communities served by the Illinois Central railroad was voiced in argument today before the interstate commerce commission on applications asking approval of construction plans providing for a new railroad between Edgewood, Ill., and Fulton, Ky., and between Fulton and a connection with the Paducah and Illinois south of the Ohio river.

Benson Landon, special assistant attorney general of Illinois, representing Attorney General Brundage, declared the Illinois Central was attempting by means of the corporate creature known as the Southern Illinois and Kentucky Railroad company, to build the proposed line and cut off the part of the main trunk from Cairo to Centralia and that part of the Chicago branch from Centralia to Edgewood. He asserted under the Illinois Central's charter it could not do this directly and therefore was attempting to do it indirectly.

Says State Would Lose.

Loss of revenue of approximately $3,000,000 annually derived by the state under the 7 per cent clause of the charter would result from the construction of the proposed mileage, it was asserted, because charter line mileage would be diverted.

"The proposed railroad would cut off over 40 per cent of the total charter line mileage from the Ohio river to Chicago," counsel declared. "Such a calamity as this to the state treasury and to all of the people now dependent upon the charter lines for railroad service, and such a plain violation of the laws of the state cannot be countenanced by the law enforcing agencies of the state."

Sees Injury to Cities.

Harry E. Kelly, counsel for cities and towns from Centralia, Ill., to Clinton, Ky., and business interests, opposed granting of the application.

"Taking the most liberal view of the advantages claimed by the applicant companies for the construction of the proposed line," he said, "they are offset many times over by the irreparable injury which the communities on the present main line would suffer if the certificates asked for should be granted by the commission," he declared.

Construction of the line, attorneys for the carriers asserted, would facilitate the handling of traffic. They contended there were no legal obstacles in the way of building the line as proposed.

S. P. GRANTS PAY BOOST TO 13,000 RAIL SHOPMEN

Another railway pay increase agreement—between the Southern Pacific system and its 13,000 shopmen—was announced last night. The boost, adding about $750,000 a year to the payroll, was 5 cents an hour to shopmen and 2 cents an hour to helpers. Wage disputes which have been withdrawn from the United States railroad labor board recently now total eighteen, it was announced last night, after A. F. Stout, vice president of the Maintenance of Way Brotherhood, notified the board of a wage increase settlement with the Louisiana and Arkansas railway. About 500 maintenance men were involved in this dispute.

Details of the settlement had not been received here, Mr. Stout said.

REPORT REVEALS 265 FIRMS RAISE PAY OF WORKERS

Wage increases by 265 firms in the last year were reported yesterday by the Illinois department of labor.

The increase over wage scales of a year ago is from 10 to 14 per cent, and in the data of sixteen firms, more than 20 per cent, the published report states. In 196 establishments the department found the present number of employés to be 284,612, the figure of a year ago being 251,303.

Workers in the metals, machinery, and conveyance trades received the larger pay increases, with food product industries, building and contracting employés, printing and paper goods workers following closely.

Spends Money on 'Dope,' None on Wife; Fined $100

Because he is alleged to have spent all of his money for "dope" and failed to provide for his wife, Edward Prior, living at the Westminster hotel, yesterday was fined $100 by Judge Peter H. Schwaba. Prior was charged with disorderly conduct.

LICENSE BILL BACKERS POINT TO POLL TAX LAW

Backers of Mayor Dever's bill in the state legislature to enlarge and confirm Chicago's powers to license, dug deeply into the cities and villages act yesterday to prove that the city already has a far more drastic taxing power than the one being asked of the legislature.

Lawyers found that the city has power to make every male citizen between the ages of 21 and 50 labor on the city's streets for three days each year or pay the city in commutation for such labor $4.50, or at the rate of $1.50 a day. They suggested that if the revenue bill does not pass, the old poll tax may be called into play after years of disuse. The old tax would raise about $4,000,000, it is estimated.

Administration leaders declared yesterday that eighty-four members of the lower house of the legislature have been pledged to vote for the revenue bill.

FLAXLINUM
FLAXLINUM

Residence of Mr. E. Burma, Contractor, Corner Paulina and Harlem, Oak Park, Ill.

Mr. Burma builds homes. He therefore knows building materials, and his use of FLAXLINUM for his own home proves his faith in this good insulation.

"In Time of Peace Prepare for War"

What Flaxlinum Is

FLAXLINUM is a felted material made of durable, chemically-purified flax fibre. When built into the walls and roof of a house it seals the interior against outside temperature changes.

For walls it is made ½-inch thick with flanged edges to permit it to fit snugly between the studding. For roofs, sheets 1 inch in thickness are recommended. In applying FLAXLINUM no special construction is necessary. It will last as long as any house built. It will not crack, break or "sift down."

One-half inch of FLAXLINUM is equivalent in heat and cold resistance to 2½ inches of wood, eight inches of brick and mortar, or 13 inches of concrete.

JUST because it is warm when you are planning and building your home don't fail to plan ahead for the cold, changeable weather that is bound to come.

Build FLAXLINUM into the walls and roof of your new home and it will be proof against outside temperatures and weather changes. In winter you will be able to keep every room comfortable with a minimum of fuel. FLAXLINUM keeps inside the house the heat from the furnace just as it keeps out the cold.

In summer FLAXLINUM bars from the interior the heat of the sun. You will always have a comfortable house. Even the upstairs rooms right under the roof will be cooler than the outside temperature.

And best of all, you can afford FLAXLINUM because it pays for itself with fuel savings in a few years. That's what hundreds of users report. Call or send for the free FLAXLINUM booklet and sample.

TO BUYERS AND RENTERS:

If you want low fuel bills and year round comfort make sure BEFORE you buy or rent a house that it is insulated with Flaxlinum.

ARMOUR REMAINS LARGEST HOLDER OF BANK STOCKS

With stock holdings in Chicago banks having an aggregate market value of $4,700,000, J. Ogden Armour, chairman of Armour & Co., retains his place as the largest owner of such securities, according to lists made public yesterday for taxation purposes, showing holdings as they stood on April 1. Mr. Armour is interested in seven local banks, as compared with ten a year ago, having disposed of 848 shares of Illinois Trust and Savings bank stock formerly standing in his name, as well as his interest in two small institutions.

The second largest holder of bank stocks here, in point of market value, is the N. W. Harris estate, which owns 11,435 shares of Harris Trust and Savings bank, worth $4,000,000 on the basis of $350 a share.

F. H. Rawson Holds Third Place.

The third largest holdings are those of F. H. Rawson, president of the Union Trust company, consisting chiefly of 8,665 shares of Union Trust company stock, which at $330 a share have a value of $2,859,230. Other holdings of Mr. Rawson bring the aggregate up close to $3,000,000.

The Miami corporation, handling investments of the Deering family, ranks fifth in value of stocks held, as compared with third a year ago. The Marshall Field estate's holdings are in fourth place, compared with fifth in 1922. Oscar G. Foreman's holdings are among the most valuable, the most important item being 8,375 shares of Foreman Brothers' Banking company stock, which is not quoted on the market.

Morris Plan Holdings Pooled.

To preserve control of the Chicago Morris Plan bank stock in the hands of persons desiring to preserve its semi-philanthropic character, a group of stockholders headed by Julius Rosenwald have pooled their holdings of 5,327 shares in a trusteeship. There are 10,000 shares outstanding.

George Woodruff has purchased 4,000 shares of National Bank of the Republic stock, of which he is vice president, and his holdings equal those of John A. Lynch, the president.

Former holdings of Illinois Trust and Savings, Merchants Loan and Trust and Corn Exchange National stock are now represented by the stock of the Illinois Merchants Trust company.

May Customs Revenues Amount to $52,417,362

Washington, D.C., June 2.—Customs revenues in May maintained the high levels established since Jan. 1, and the receipts for the month, aggregating $52,417,362, were the basis for prediction by treasury officials that the total for the current fiscal year would reach approximately $560,000,000. Customs revenues for the eleven months ending June 1 total $511,906,252, compared with $317,581,561 in the corresponding months of the preceding fiscal year. The increase was attributed largely to the higher duties assessed by the administration tariff law.

Customs officials previously had estimated receipts of $540,000,000 for the current year. The May receipts, however, indicate that the collecting branch of the government may turn an additional $20,000,000 into the treasury increasing by that amount recent estimates by Secretary Mellon that the government would finish the year July 1 with a surplus of $125,000,000.

Fraudulent Oil Stock Promotions.

Mexia-Sims.

The use of a simple farmer as a mouthpiece for extravagant misstatements, in order to give them a note of homeliness and sincerity, is a ruse resorted to by one of Texas' numerous oil stock promoters, according to a report of the national vigilance committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. The committee's investigation has developed the following facts:

The Mexia-Sims syndicate is a trust estate with a capitalization of $80,000, divided into units with a par value of $10 each. The trustees are James P. Douglas and Wiley Sims, using the address, "Care Security State Bank" of Fort Worth, Tex. (This bank recently was closed by order of the state banking department.) Weaving as much local color as possible into the advertising, the promoter, James P. Douglas, who personally conducted the campaign, featured the photograph of Wiley Sims, a farmer of Personville, Tex., and printed homely editorials which purported to have been written and signed by Sims. Investigation shows that Sims had nothing to do with the preparation or printing of the advertising, which contains many representations not in alignment with the facts. The literature credits Mr. Sims as saying with rustic sincerity:

"Since I first met Mr. Douglas last fall and helped him secure the 1,600 acres of leases that I obtained from my neighbors for the syndicate, I have watched a great change in the place. I have seen a rush of oil men and lease buyers stream through our lands. I have seen many derricks erected on our farms. And I have heard the rattle and clang of drills where all used to be quiet and peaceful. I have seen some of the greatest wells in Texas come in. I have seen my neighbors made millionaires."

According to Mr. Sims these are direct misrepresentations. Mr. Sims stated that he never uttered the words or wrote them. There was no such development as that described, nor had there been any thriving activity in the vicinity of the Mexia-Sims well. Derricks had not been erected within four miles of the place, and Mr. Sims had not seen any wells brought in anywhere in the vicinity when these statements were broadcasted in advertisements. The representation that his neighbors had been made millionaires is without foundation.

The credulity of the public was again exploited by editorials supposedly signed by Mr. Sims. The copy states among other things:

"The possibility of getting oil on our farm is not a new idea with us. It's sort of a family tradition. I remember when I was a boy my father used to often talk about getting oil on the farm and how rich we would all be when our farm and neighbor farms would be the center of a great oil field."

The realization of his father's hope is pictured as follows:

"Oil men, geologists, lease buyers, scouts, drillers, speculators—they are all flocking around the lease these days watching the drill grind down and trying to buy acreage. They even tried to buy the Mexia-Sims lease and well. They are playing Mexia-Sims for a gusher. But we won't sell yet. We are after the big fortune."

These statements, according to Mr. Sims, likewise have no basis in fact. Mr. Sims' father died before anything was known about oil in north Texas. He is not known ever to have spoken about the existence of oil on his own or neighboring farms. He was merely a poor farmer without the slightest idea that oil might possibly be present in that section of the state.

Promoter Douglas did drill a well on the Sims property, but he flagrantly misrepresented the progress and results of the work. A circular with the flashing caption, "Latest Bulletin," reports:

"I am sure you will be glad to know that our well has reached the interesting depth of 2,900 feet."

He further states:

"We are drilling with only a day crew, as our well has reached such a critical stage that we cannot afford to take any chances with night drilling."

Drilling operations had ceased at the time and the well had not reached the depth claimed. In conjunction with the bold misstatements of fact, Douglas utilized high pressure sales tricks which are well known in the promotional fraternity. The price advance ruse was adopted by him and presented in his literature:

"Since advancing the price of our units to $20 March 1, we have received a great number of protests from our old members who have been with us right from the start. They have stated that they believe it was very unfair for us to increase the price practically without warning; without giving them a chance to protect themselves against this increase. . . . Mr. Sims and I have given this our careful attention. We want every member above everything else to be fully satisfied, if possible. We are, therefore, going to give all of our old members—those who subscribed before March 1—the privilege of increasing their holdings at the old price of $10 per unit."

He appealed to his stockholders in this manner to get additional sums of money. It was purely a reloading scheme. This sort of misrepresentation and deceit is being practiced all the time by oil stock promoters. Our readers are warned against it.

OLD STEAMBOATS ON MUDDY FRINGE TELL "SIPPI" PAST

BY SCRUTATOR.

Aboard U. S. Towboat Natchez, Above New Orleans, June 2.—[Special.]—If Mark Twain or Horace Bixby could enlist Conan Doyle's aid and get a spirit eyefull of these towboats the government is operating, the ghosts of hundreds of dead steamboats lying in these bars and mud banks would cackle if they could hear. They look more like old time flat kitchen stoves mounted on rafts than anything else. Probably they resemble more closely the turtle back ironclads, with which Foote ran island number 10 to Vicksburg in 1863, than anything ever seen on the river.

Squat, flat square power boxes, crammed with machinery and oil tanks, they are built to push, that's all. Their crews must drape themselves as best they can in any odd corners that may be left. They were designed by New York naval architects. They look like stoves, and if the sun ever stages a comeback in Louisiana, the writer can well believe that the cook will use the upper deck to fry eggs.

But in just one instance, they are like all river steamboats. The pilothouse is relatively just as big, and just as high. And the man in the pilothouse and the gossip there, is the same old pilot stuff. Mark and Horace would be perfectly at home.

Just as aviation is yet personal and dependent on the pilot, so the navigation of the Lower Mississippi is dependent on the personal equation at the wheel. Probably it always will be so. One hesitates to write "impossible" these days, but that any river, which flows through its own flood plain, can ever be tamed, locked, and dammed, except at a cost, billions beyond justification, does not seem possible to this writer.

Hence the pilot. Only a brain and eye that can "read water," that can pursue channel and avoid shoal through the maze of variables that make up the Mississippi, can take an 800 foot train, weighing thousands of tons, through a channel that changes every day, through current which changes its speed with the clock, and depths which are never the same. Add to these mist and haze and fog, the varying phases of the moon, and the effects of the clouds on her light—the shadow of the forest dimming the shore line, the wind ripples obscuring the shoal marks, the crumbling shore always on the side where the current strikes, and the new islands, bars, and points ever being born. Many a pilot has returned to the Mississippi to drive his tow over what had been a many thousand acre plantation a few years before.

The havoc wrought with the river traffic in recent years is well reflected in the crew of this boat. The pilots of course are old timers—coal tow men. The woods are full of 'em. But the engine forces are mostly ocean men. The deckhands are mostly off salt water, although many were steamboaters before they were driven to sea by the decline of their own game. Some of them have been far afield. One mate tried steamboating on the Yukon in Dawson's glorious days. Another knows the Columbia from end to end.

The new boats are the theme of never ending debate. That the New Yorker who designed them was thinking of the Hudson is evident in many minor ways, but on the whole, the engineers are strong for the use of the condenser engines and the propellers. All admit that the tunnel crew excells the stern paddle on power, but the conservatives claim that the stern wheel towboat will never be bested on these rivers for several reasons. It is of lighter draft. It is a marvel of simplicity, and its repairs are slight and easy to make. Both side wheelers and propellers sunk in tunnels have a sad time with drift wood. The stern wheeler kicks it aside, and even if damaged, can be repaired in a jiffy by an ordinary carpenter. And then, the stern wheeler certainly had power, even if it could not equal the thrust of the screw.

One thing the New Yorker might have spared, but he didn't. The musical whistle of the river steamer has been supplanted by the hoarse brass of the north Atlantic, and it doesn't sound natural to a native.

GRAINS IN RALLY RECOVER LOSSES TO CLOSE HIGHER

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Liquidation was on in grains early with a drop to a new low on the present downturn on wheat and corn and to a new low for the season on September oats and all deliveries of rye. The wave of selling quickly ran its course, however, and with general evening up on the part of shorts and a much better undertone, the close was a strong rally, with net gains of ¼@⅝c for wheat. There was no pressure on corn toward the last, and the finish was ¾@1¼c higher, while oats were ¼@1⅛c higher, and rye ⅛c lower.

Wheat market showed decided weakness the past week. Liquidation was on as the result of unloading induced by the favorable crop outlook and the fact that many leading speculators do not care to let the government know how they stand on the market. Stop loss orders were uncovered in profusion and prices dropped to the lowest figures in many weeks with September at the inside within 2c of the inside price on the crop. Short covering furnished the best support, but the close was at net losses of 2⅝@3⅛c as compared with the previous week. Corn showed great resistance to pressure and was 1⅛@2⅞c higher. Oats declined ⅝@⅝c and rye 4⅜@4⅝c for the week. Lard showed strength and gained 5@7½c with short ribs unchanged.

Wheat in Sharp Rally.

At the inside figures July wheat showed a drop of 17⅝c, and September of 14⅜c from the recent high. Under $1.09 for both deliveries there was aggressive buying credited to shorts, and it quickly developed that there was no material pressure. Sentiment remains distinctly bearish, but in some quarters the belief prevails that liquidation is practically over and there was less disposition shown to press the bear side.

There was not sufficient export demand to be a factor in the situation, and in view of the early break sales of around 300,000 bu in all positions were disappointing. Liverpool closed 1⅛@1¼d lower. Crop reports attracted little attention, although estimates on a total crop of 802,000,000 bu to 811,000,000 bu, compared with 856,000,000 bu harvested last year, were given to the trade.

While corn prices declined early with wheat there was no pressure thereafter and it took but comparatively little buying to make an advance of 1⅞@2⅛c from the low point, with the close at the top. Corn planting is still under way and the crop is getting a late start. The trade looks for another good decrease in the visible supply Monday.

Oats Quickly Recover.

Oats showed more resistance to pressure than of late and an early break was quickly recovered. Crop reports were ignored. Trade was largely of a local character.

Rye broke rather sharply in the early trading, and while there were reports of a large export business it failed to induce much speculative buying and it was the only grain to close lower for the day. The two northwestern markets had 26 cars.

Provisions were dull but firmer. Lard closed 2½c higher and ribs unchanged for the day. Packing of hogs at Chicago for the season to date is 2,185,000 against 1,625,000 last year. Prices follow:

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Export sales of wheat at the seaboard were 300,000 bu. There were inquiries for new crop winters for August to November shipment, but no bids were made. Considering the break, the amount of business was disappointing. There were reports of a large trade in rye f. o. b. Montreal and also a cargo to Scandinavia. Corn demand slow.

Chicago handlers sold 16,000 bu wheat, 180,000 bu corn, and 110,000 bu oats to the domestic trade.

Basis on red winter at Chicago was slightly firmer at 11@14c over July, but no sales were reported. No. 2 hard unchanged at 1½@2½c over. Receipts, 11 cars. Outside markets were generally unchanged.

A slightly easier undertone prevailed in the cash corn basis. Offerings were not large and demand only fair. Receipts, 54 cars. Outside markets unchanged to 1c higher.

Receipts of oats are not large, and with a fair demand the basis in the local sample market was slightly firmer. Receipts, 61 cars.

N. O. SUGAR EXCHANGE HOLIDAY.

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 2.—The New Orleans Sugar exchange today began its summer Saturday holidays. The exchange will be closed on Saturdays during June, July, and August.

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

It was said at the close Saturday that liquidation had carried prices for grains down to a level where short sales were not advisable, and those who had profits in their trades were disposed to even up for the week. The notice sent out by the government authorities regarding the grain futures act also had a good effect. At the last the trade, while bearish, was less pessimistic.

A number of the corn traders are friendly to the buying side. There has been heavy liquidation and the trade has been well evened up. There is no pressure of cash corn and handlers are outspokenly bullish. One of the largest cash handlers said at the close that he had no corn on hand, and was unable to buy any in the country. At no time during the day was there any pressure from sellers.

An increase of 1,435,000 bu of corn in receipts at primary markets last week reflected the first of the after corn planting movement that usually comes about this season. Prospects are that the marketing of corn will not be up to the usual average—owing to light stocks in the interior, the recent decline in prices, and to absorption of interior offerings by feeders who are paying better prices than those at terminal markets. Aggregate receipts of grain at primary markets last week were the largest in a month, being 11,328,000 bushels, an increase of 3,175,000 bu for the week and a reduction of 2,230,000 bu, being 33 per cent below the five year average. Chicago received only 1,924,000 bu of all grains for the week, or 75 per cent les than last year.

"Sales of glucose have fallen off, as they usually do at this season, and starch business is only fair," said a leading manufacturer. "It is difficult to buy corn in the country and values should advance later in the season. The crop has one of the most uneven starts of any season in recent years, and unless perfect weather conditions prevail there will be a most unsatisfactory crop in quality.

Elevator interests are buying December and selling September oats at 1c premium for the December. The latter is attracting more attention.

All defaults in May corn, 50,000 bu, have been settled. There was no settling price fixed.

FINANCIAL NOTES

Yesterday's market marched right down the hill and then right up again. There was some particularly sharp selling in the first half hour, possibly, in the opinion of most Wall street folks and aftermath of the sudden outbreak of liquidation on Friday. In this burst of selling the earmarks of professionalism became more and more apparent as the morning grew older and before it was half over, many of those who had sold for the decline earlier in the week, had started to repurchase their short stock. Final quotations were just about the best of the day.

During the early reaction, United States Steel common, which sold ex dividend earlier in the week, touched a new low for the year at 94¾, but rallied a point before the close. Bethlehem Steel also established a new low at 50⅝, but crossed 52 later for a slight fractional gain on the day. Motor and motor accessories shares were well bought on reports that production was running 2½ times that of a year ago. Willys-Overland preferred jumped 5 points to 64 and then eased to 62¼. Studebaker and Chandler each moved up about a point.

Some of the other outstanding strong spots in the industrial list were Baldwin and American Locomotives, American Can, Crucible Steel, Pan-American and Phillips Petroleums, Underwood Typewriter and California Petroleum, all up 1 to 3½ points. National Lead, American Sugar, and Federal Mining and Smelting preferred were conspicuously weak.

Nonpar Stock Valuation Attacked at Springfield

Springfield, Ill., June 2.—Passed by the legislature specifically to cure an unconstitutionality, the provision for valuing nonpar stock at $100 a share, was again the subject of attack today, when the Roberts & Schaefer company of Chicago filed a petition for a writ of mandamus to compel Secretary of State Emmerson to accept a fee of $200, instead of the $500 demanded on 10,000 shares of no par value stock.

The New York Times.

New York, June 2.—[Special.]—Taking today's stock exchange movement as a whole, there were only trifling changes in prices. Irregular downward reaction was followed by irregular recovery; net advances and net declines were intermingled at the close of the day, but both were mostly small fractions.

Comparison of the week's closing prices with those of a week ago is more interesting, the prevalence of rather considerable net declines for the week showing the extent to which the seemingly promising upward movement of two weeks ago has halted. On the whole, the tendency of the bond market has been opposite, but the continuing firmness of that market is not at all strange.

Recovery in Bonds Is Logical.

People who believed, two or three months ago, that we were headed for a prolonged and excessively violent rise in stocks and commodities and for uninterrupted trade expansion, would have sold their bonds if they were speculators looking for a profit or merchants shifting their capital according to the need of it. But these very facts would make logical a recovery in bonds when the expectation of an "inflation market" had been given up.

European exchange was generally rather weak today, but the center of the stage was again held by the German mark, which went to 12⅛ ten thousandths of a cent. Put in what is now the more intelligible form, the dollar could today buy 80,000 marks, compared with 75,000 the day before, 20,000 at the recent stabilized price, and 50,000 reached in the January "mark panic," which brought the Reichsbank into the field.

Export Trade Less Favorable.

The statement published by the department of commerce today on the destination of our April exports was in one respect very striking. In March, when the sudden and spectacular change to an "import surplus" first occurred, we sent Europe $15,300,000 less than the year before. But in April the decrease from 1922 was $26,700,000. Last year our exports to Europe were $3,000,000 larger in April than in March; this year they were $7,600,000 smaller.

These comparisons are the more striking because of the present higher range of prices; also because in April our exports to every other continent except Europe increased over 1922. Possibly this is one out of many proofs of the fact that the United States cannot "dissociate" itself from Europe.

New York Banks Show Expansion.

Important changes in the weekly statement of the New York clearing house banks were increases of $22,776,000 in loans, of $42,775,000 in net demand deposits, and of $17,995,970 in surplus reserve, which totals $28,061,000. Time deposits decreased $6,983,000. Government deposits are off about $23,000,000, compared with a week ago. Details of the statement, with comparisons follow:

Lindberg Elected Head of Bank Cashiers' Club

The annual meeting of the Bank Cashiers' club, composed of cashiers and assistant cashiers of banks on Roosevelt road and south within the city limits, was held Friday night. The meeting marked the first year of the club's existence and was a "ladies' night" with dinner and dancing. Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Edward F. J. Lindberg of the Stony Island State Savings bank; vice president, A. A. McKay of the Franklin Trust and Savings; secretary and treasurer, J. L. Laycock of the Calumet Trust and Savings; executive committee, Jordan B. Cottle of the Kenwood National, and V. R. Anderson of the Washington Park National.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

The weekly review of F. M. Zeller & Co. follows:

While the local unlisted securities market was again somewhat reactionary, fluctuations were with few exceptions confined to an exceedingly narrow range. Buyers showed little inclination to bid up values, but good underlying support was noted throughout.

Ford of Canada on few sales advanced some 10 points to 432 bid, 436 asked. Butler Bros. was fairly active at prices ranging from 35 to 36½. Stock was offered at 35½ at the close, with bids of 35¼. Hurley Machine was again wanted at 45, with offerings at 46. Elgin Watch relinquished 2 points at 48 bid, 50 asked. Burroughs Adding Machine was again quoted 127 bid, 129 asked, with few actual sales. Offerings of Interstate Iron and Steel preferred at 68 again failed to attract possible buyers. A few transactions of Albert Pick preferred were made at 93½@94½. Wahl preferred continued lower at 86 bid, 88 asked. Moline Plow preferred at 4¾@5¼ was off a minor fraction.

Offerings of By Products Coke at 58 reflected a loss of 2 points. Bucyrus common was active, improving from 32 to 35½ and then reacting to a close of 32½ bid, 33¼ asked. Avery Company was again lower, offerings at 6½ failing to bring out definite bids. Fairbanks-Morse was extremely quiet between 54 and 55. Edmund Jones changed hands at 34¼@35. Paige-Detroit closed at 19 bid, 19¼ asked, compared with last week's quotation or 20 bid, 20¼ asked. Motor Wheel at 10½ bid, 11 asked, and Timken Axle at 10¼@10½ were both off a major fraction.

Fractional losses marked a quiet session in the sugar shares. Closing bid and asked prices follow: Columbia Sugar, 6¼@6⅝; Godchaux preferred, 88@90; Holland-St. Louis, 4¾@5¼; Michigan, 5@5¼; Utah-Ihado, 3½@3¾.

Public utility issues were neglected, and as a whole without definite price trend. American Light and Traction common was in good demand, advancing 6 points to 121 bid, 123 asked. American Power and Light common was 2 points higher at 166 bid, 168 asked. A few transactions in American Gas and Electric common were reported at 38@39, preferred at 41@41½. Some improvement was noted in Commonwealth Power, Railway and Light common at 32 bid, 33½ asked. Commonwealth Power Corporation preferred improved a full point to 67½ bid, 69 asked. Grand Rapids Railway preferred was quoted 38 bid, 40 asked, little stock changing hands. Northern Ohio Electric common changed hands at 12@12½, up 1½ points, the preferred at 30½@31½, up ½ point.

A HOBBY

SOMETHING that sets you thinking in another corner of your brain. A little room, off by itself, decorated to your own tastes, neat and orderly if you wish, or untidy and a scrambled mess.

Our lives, generally, are more or less restrained. There is the restraint of business, the restraint of the wife, forever watching children, the restraint of just living in a conventional world.

The man who first thought of a hobby must have felt this restraint too keenly. He must have determined then and there to select some one thing out of the run of his daily tasks, and do that one thing in his own sweet way for the sheer joy of doing it.

It might have been raising guinea pigs, or wood carving, perhaps writing sermons. His wife probably followed his lead by declaring her hobby to be china painting, clay modelling or some charitable work.

The escape from the restraint of everyday life is best brought about by a hobby. Oftimes it has become possible, through investing in Real Estate Bonds, to find the necessary funds for this hobby, thus giving yourself one of "The Good Things of Life" and rendering your life more efficient.

This Popular Closed
Model Now Costs

$1295

F. O. B. CLEVELAND

It is Now the Lowest Priced
Six Cylinder Sedan
on the Market!

Today's Best Buy in Closed Cars!

FOR a two-fold reason, the Cleveland Six sedan merits the most earnest consideration from those who regard the purchase of a motor car as an investment:

—it is the lowest-priced six cylinder sedan on the market.

—and for that lowest price, it affords beauty, dignity, comfort and fine, economical performance to a degree that has made it one of the most popular cars of its type.

Body by Fisher

You should not confuse this model with any compromise type of closed car in which appearance, comfort, or solid construction have been sacrificed to achieve low cost.

Built by Fisher, the body has notable dignity and style. It is staunchly constructed, with the result that squeaks and rattles do not appear after a few thousand miles of usage. Its interior is richly done—low, soft, lounge-like seats neatly upholstered in rich taupe plush; octagonal dome light; and platinum finish window-lifters. The snugly fitting doors are of unusual width, thus providing easy access from either side.

A World of Power

An overhead valve type of the most advanced design, the Cleveland motor has established for itself a really enviable reputation, not only for power and flexibility, but for economy of operation, too. Cleveland owners take the long, steep hills in high without rushing them. Because the motor picks up quickly and buoyantly, they thread through traffic without constant gear changes. It shows exceptional mileage per gallon of both gasoline and oil.

No matter how much you have to spend, you could not wish for a smoother, sweeter or more dependable motor than that in the Cleveland Six.

Should Sell For More

It is our business to know motor car values. And we are convinced that we would have no difficulty in selling for at least $200 more, as many of these models as we could get from the factory. It is essentially a closed car for the thrifty—for those who want a dependable, economical, attractive, pleasing-to-drive six cylinder sedan at almost open car cost.

We are willing to have you be the judge of how much value it offers at the present price; to have you compare it closely with fours that sell for the same and with sixes that sell for more. For we know that when you have completed your investigation you will be convinced that the market contains no value to match it!

Touring Car—Long, low, and unusually attractive. Finished in rich Cleveland blue. Upholstered in real leather. A remarkable six for the price $995

5-Pass. Sport—A jaunty, dashing model done in smart Beige brown. Spanish leather upholstery. Khaki top; trunk; five disc wheels. The last word in sport cars $1260

Coupe—A three-passenger closed car of character for general use. Its distinction, reliability, and fine performance almost belie its moderate cost . . . $1195

4-Door Sedan—Superbly beautiful Fisher body, richly upholstered, exquisitely appointed, and unusually roomy. A closed car of exceptional dignity . $1495

DAY DREAMS BEFORE the WEDDING

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—Pleasant it is to be urged to take breakfast in bed on the morning of the great day., Hardly emerged from rosy dreams, she sits up in the scalloped pink crepe sacque into which mother tucked her like a baby before going for the tray and goes over every detail of the trousseau in happy reverie.

The gay red crepe trimming of her blue twill going-away costume peeps at her smilingly through a crack in the wardrobe door. The suit came only last night from Mme. Eugenie, accompanied by a darling high toque of blue straw in Russian style that becomes her so well, with a half-circle of red roses mounted on the crown and a tissuey blue veil over it all.

Eugenie is certainly understanding about her dark style. It was she who suggested a red slip dress under the suit, with separate panels of the blue on a red belt, to be snapped on when she wore the blue braided bolero. Everybody's wearing jackets like that now, and using detachable aprons and panels to convert various colored slips into parts of costume suits.

Later on she will pick up a gay embroidered jacket to wear with this red slip and her white crepe de chine ones.

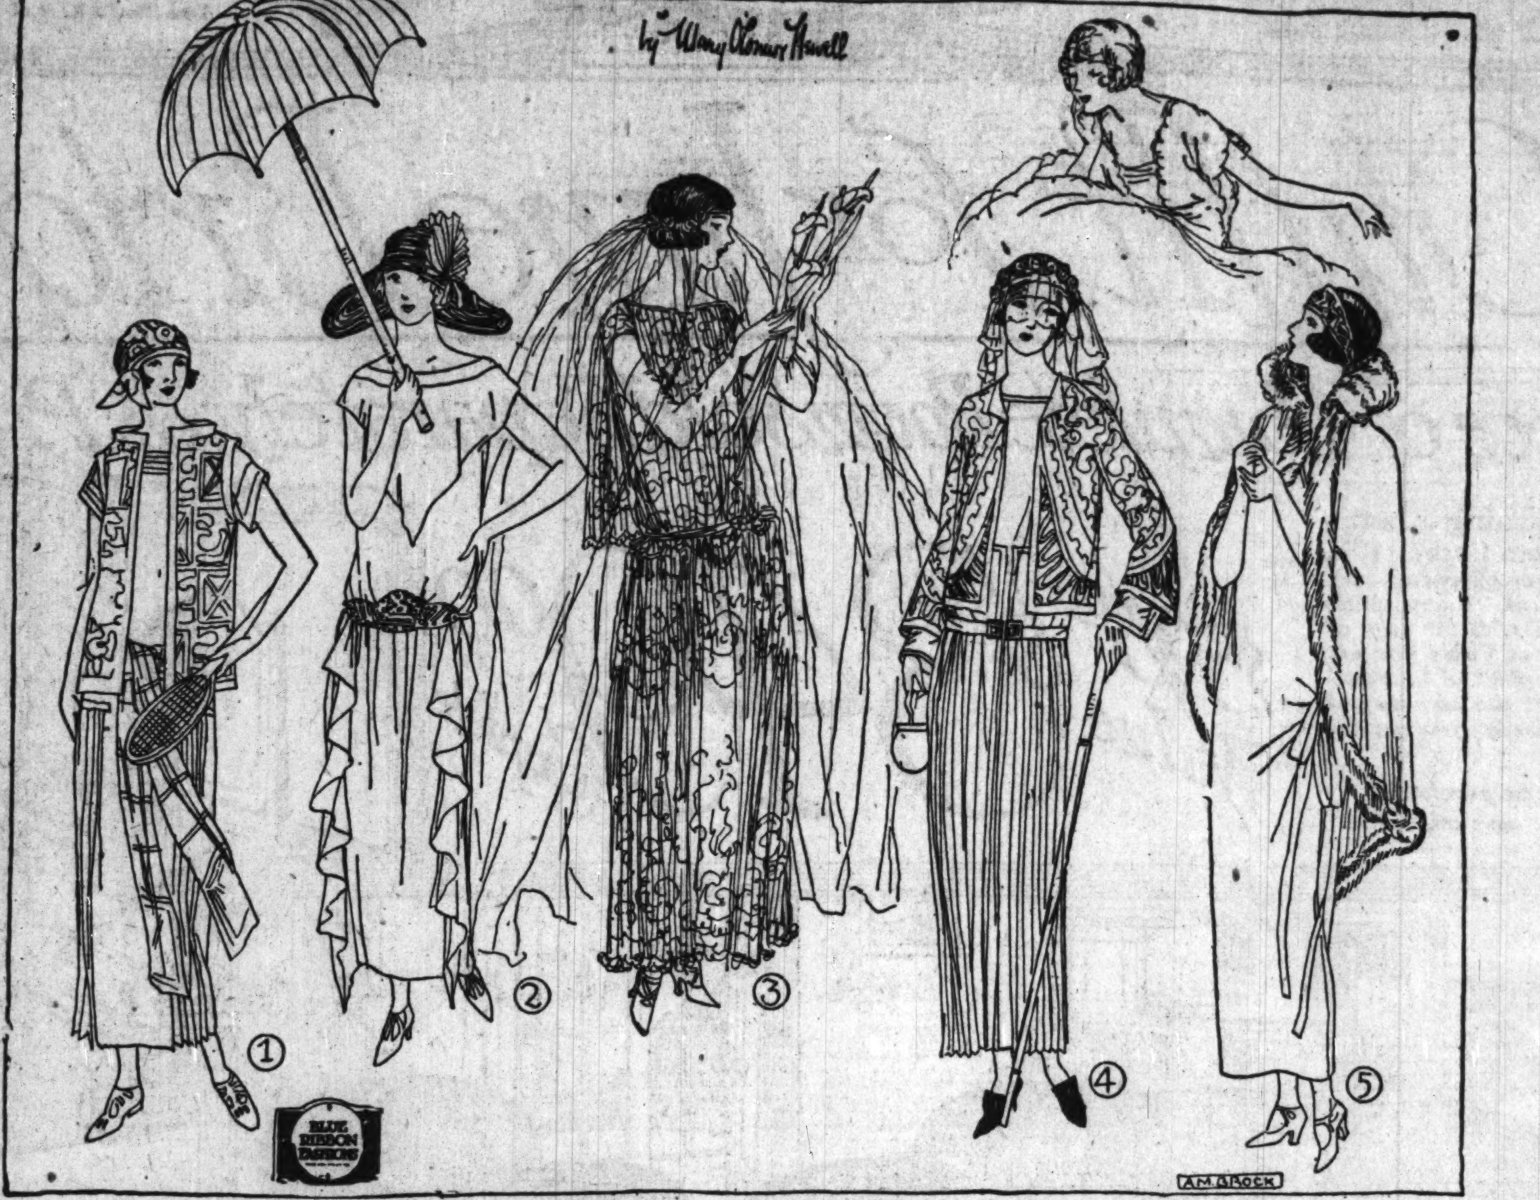
The circular summer cape of gray crepe was her own idea, collared and edged with squirrel; also the green lining and green shoes. But Eugenie suggested the little coat dress, flat crepe, tied at the side, to make a costume with the cape. It will be nice later with her gray fox fur scarf. She will wear her gray slippers with it then.

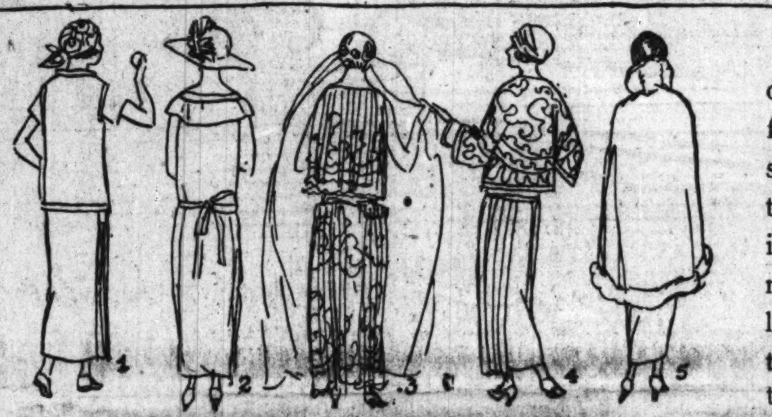
They are just the thing now with her rose colored flat crepe, made like the one the great actress wore that afternoon at the recital. The apron front fell in jabots at the side, and the bertha extended into a point in front. It was lucky Eugenie found a crystal beaded ornament exactly like the other to put on it.

With her gray crepe cape she can wear the rose frock of evenings, too.

In the afternoon at the Springs it will look lovely with the black horsehair picture hat. All the big hats at Eugenie's seemed almost without trimming, except flat appliques of ribbon or flowers like hers. The palm leaf trimming of white grosgrain ribbon is simply too stunning.

With the black hat between, she could carry her new green sunshade with the rose dress.





OTHER VIEWS OF TODAY'S FASHIONS.

It was fortunate she ordered a cretonne sports outfit before Billy proposed—so suddenly. Though in her trunk already, she could see it in all its brilliant smartness. First, a slip of white linen with plaited sides and touches of French blue at the edges. Then the jacket and sash in bright cretonne block colorings with binding of purple linen. And a pretty green lining to both. The colors were easy to match in a kerchief for her head. Of course, she might not play tennis or anything like that at the Springs, but one had to look sportslike of mornings.

And now the wedding dress. Really, it had never been out of her thoughts, even before Billy proposed so unexpectedly. The day she saw that dress on a mannequin at Eugenie's spring showing she said to herself, "My wedding dress will be exactly like that"; and there it lay, on the chaise lounge in her sitting room, not a wrinkle in its shining whiteness. Of silvery lace, with plaited sides, blouse and cape back, it was mounted on white crepe satin. Plaited white satin ribbon set on the hips raised the lace and gave width to her slim figure. Narrow white satin ribbon, edged with lace, finished the skirt and cape bottom.

A white chaplet of roses lay on her bureau. Eugenie was coming to arrange her tulle veil. It was to be held by this chaplet, fastened to narrow white satin ribbon. Only the ribbon would show at her forehead. She was going to carry white lilies. All the brides of her family did that. It was their French tradition.

Here comes mother with the tray. Now for the great secret. They are going to spend the wedding night in town. She will telephone mother the first thing in the morning.

Mother advises the gray cape costume with the green slippers for the theater that night, and the jeweled coral headdress. And agrees that gray slippers with the gray coat dress will be best for the visit to Billy's maiden grandaunt, from whom he has expectations. "Old ladies always love gray on brides." But not the green lined cape or shoes. Gray shoes for that; and the gray fox neckpiece if it's warm, but if it is chilly the new dark blue moire coat with the blue straw toque and roses.

Ting-a-ling—the bell! It's the bride's bouquet. And here is Eugenie herself. Tum-tum-ta-tum; tum-tu-ta-tum . . . in about an hour from now!

THE POTTERS

PROLOGUE.

We find the Potters this desolate morning in their small but costly room at the Astorbilt . . . Pa has put every cent he has and a thousand he raised on the faithful family tin can into Cosmic Radio corporation . . . when the market closed yesterday CRC was poised on the edge of 1½, all set for 3½, with full twister into the dark depths of dissolution. It looks like one more tombstone in the little graveyard at the end of Wall street, or else a dull splash in the river at the other end.

SCENE I.

(The morning paper is on the bed, but neither Pa nor Ma has the courage to look at the market page . . . neither is there any use packing; they haven't the money to pay their bill, but neither can they move until they pay it . . . so there they are.)

MA: Well, let's go out and get some breakfast.

PA (haggardly):
I can't eat. I didn't sleep a wink.

MA: You tossed and moaned all night. I guess I didn't sleep any too good myself. What are we going to do?

PA (hopelessly):
Stop asking me what are we going to do. How do I know?

MA: Well, you got us into this. You were going to show them. These smart Wall street fellows weren't going to take you into camp. O, no. Besides, who ever got anywhere by working and saving? You got to take a chance. Well, you took one. Now look at us.

PA (dully):
Aw, have a heart.

MA: Look at Rockefeller. Look at Schwab. All right, look at them. I bet Mrs. Schwab isn't sitting around a hotel room wondering how she is going to get the money to pay her bill. You've got to be a go-getter, says you. Up and at 'em! You have to have vision! Well, it doesn't take any vision to see our finish.

(Knock on the door . . . telegram.)

PETER E POTTER
HOTEL ASTORBILT NYC
NEW GENERAL MANAGER AT OFFICE WANTS YOU REPORT AT ONCE BILL.

MA (aghast):
Why, Pa, what does it mean?

PA (dumbfounded):
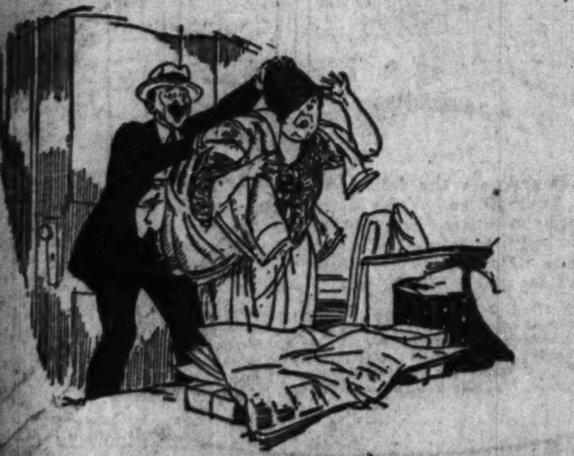
I dunno. I . . . I . . . dunno.

MA: We gotta go right home. Maybe you're going to lose your job. O, I knew you'd do something like this.



"Here's where we make our killing."

PA (thinking hard):
New general manager . . . wants me to come home at once . . . maybe he's reorganizing the office . . . wants to raise me, maybe . . . wonder who he is . . . maybe they put Simpson up there . . . well, I might just as well go out and look for another job if it's Simpson . . . but why should they put Simpson in that job? . . . big bull shooter . . . I've been there longer than he has.

MA: O, Pa, what are we going to do? How are we going to get home? Let's find out what our stock is doing. Maybe it's gone up.

PA (hopelessly):
Let's not worry about that now . . . we have enough troubles. (Bright idea.) Why don't you take some of that stuff back you bought . . . maybe you can get enough back so we can get out of town.

MA (with true feminine intuition):
Why, they won't take anything back, pa.

[That's right; they won't.]

PA: Well, if you had not bought all that fool truck we'd have been all right. I wonder if Simpson really did get that job?

MA: If you hadn't bought that fool stock we'd have been all right. Now you lose your job . . . and we're broke . . . and the car's mortgaged . . . and your stock isn't worth anything . . . and we're stuck here in the hotel and can't pay our bill . . . you fixed us all up . . . you're a go-getter, all right . . . only don't go-get us anything else . . .

TELEPHONE:
Br-r-r-in-g . . . b-r-r-i-n-n-g.

MA: I guess that's the office downstairs wanting their money.

PA (picking up receiver, lifelessly):
I suppose so . . . Hello . . . Who? . . . O, it's you . . . you got me into a fine mess . . . What? . . . I ought to be glad? . . . What do you mean glad? . . . Yes, I'm glad . . . What? . . . WHAT? . . . Going up? . . . Five? . . . FIVE? . . . Wait a minute . . . (To Ma.) The stock's going up . . . it's up to five . . . I've made . . . I've made . . . I've made $1,500 on the stock I bought yesterday.

MA: Fifteen hundred dollars?

PA (into phone):
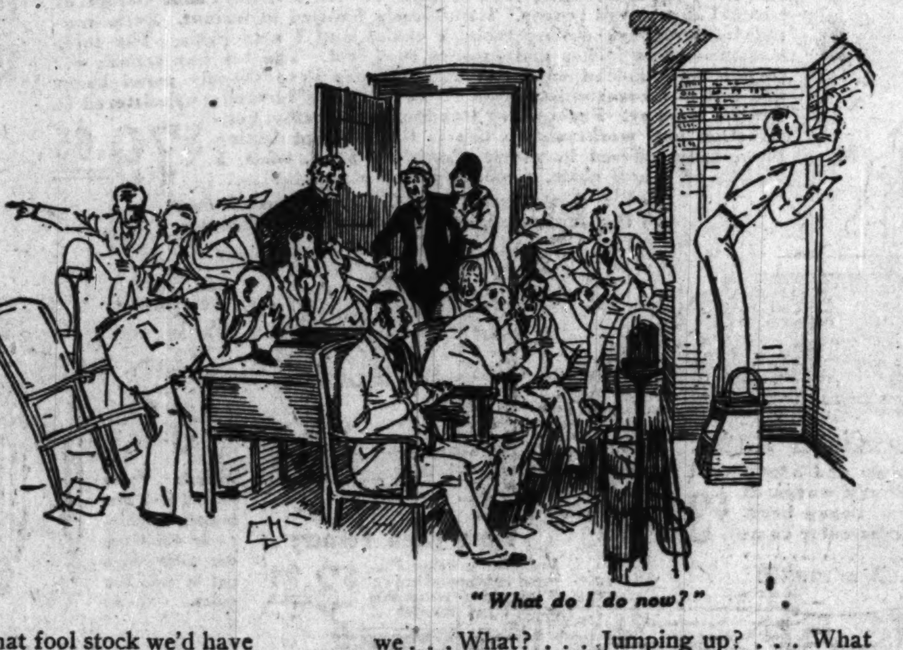
Hello . . . hello . . . O, he's gone. (To Ma.) What did I tell you? Didn't I tell you it would go up? Rankin said it was still going up.

MA: You better sell right away.

PA: Sell right away—and it going up? Are you crazy?

TELEPHONE:
B-r-r-i-i-n-n-g.

MA: I bet it's gone down again . . . let me talk to him . . . (Takes phone.) Hello . . . O, hello, Mr. Rankin; this is Mrs. Potter . . . what? . . . it's gone crazy? . . . Yes, so are we . . . What? . . . Jumping up? . . . What is it now? . . . Ten? . . . TEN? . . .



"What do I do now?"

PA (jumping up and down):
Did you say ten? (Grabs receiver.) Did you say ten, Rankin? . . . What? . . . I'm coming right down . . . (Grabs hat and coat . . . snatches Ma's hat and coat . . . slams hat on her head . . . throws coat around her . . . drags her out) . . . C'mon . . . C'mon, we're going down there . . . O, baby! . . . O, boy! . . . Here's where we make our killing.

(Poised and sophisticated loungers in expensive lobby gaze with consternation and concern on the strange apparition of two middle-aged, hysterical maniacs with their hats slanted over their eyes, madly trying to get through revolving door and out on to street.)

SCENE II.

(The offices of Russell, Hussell & Bussell . . . there is wild excitement . . . messengers dashing in and out . . . telephones are ringing . . . wild eyed men with collars askew and perspiration dripping are shouting hoarsely to each other . . . the Potters come tearing in, just a little more askew than the most askewest.)

PA (rushing up and grabbing Rankin):
What's the matter . . . what's going on here?

RANKIN (hoarsely):
Look at the board! Look at the board!

(Pa and Ma look at the board, and their eyes almost pop out as the marker hysterically marks up CRC, only to wipe it out and mark it up again.)

BOARD:
CRC . . . 12½ . . . 15 . . .

MA (hysterically):
Sell, Pa; sell!

PA: Are you crazy? Sell and it going up this way? Look at it!

BOARD:
CRC . . . 17½ . . .

PA (figuring madly):
Go on up; go on up . . . Attaboy, Radio . . . (To Ma.) Look; look; every time it goes up a point I make six hundred dollars!

MA (clutching at Pa):
Sell it now, Pa; sell it now. It'll go down again and we'll lose everything.

BOARD:
CRC . . . 20 . . .

RUSSELL (to Rankin):
Something funny about this . . . it shouldn't be jumping this way unless there's a corner somewhere . . . wouldn't surprise me if the shorts haven't oversold and are getting squeezed.

PA (wildly):
Squeeze 'em, Radio. C'mon, Radio . . . Atta-baby!

MA (piteously):
Sell, Pa! It's gonna go down again.

PA (glaring at her):
Sell and it going up like this? . . . it'll go to a hundred. Lookit the money we're making.

BOARD:
CRC . . . 25 . . . 30 . . .

RUSSELL (excitedly):
That's it; that's it! It's a corner. (Slaps Pa on the back.) O, boy, are you lucky? . . . hang on and ride.

PA: I'll say I'll hang on.

MA (wailing):
It's gonna go down . . . it's gonna go down . . . I know it . . . I can feel it . . . you'll be ruined.

PA (savagely):
Will you keep quiet? What do you know about the stock market?

RANKIN (feverishly to Russell):
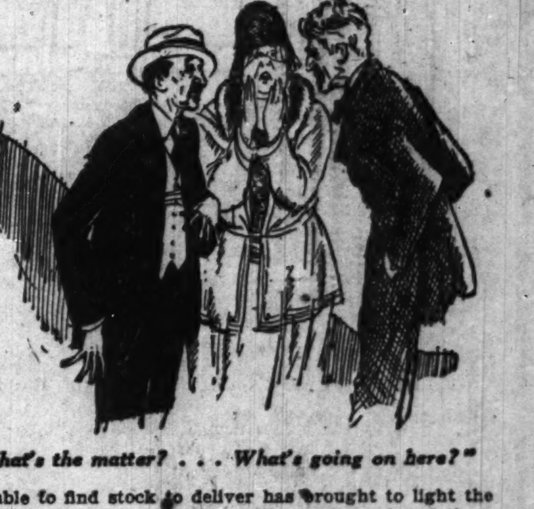
How high do you think it'll go?

RUSSELL:
If it goes much higher something's bound to happen . . .

(Meanwhile, over in the offices of Layfor & Rimmen, Hawkins of the CRC board of directors and his group of bears are beginning to realize that they have been taken in . . . while they were intent upon hammering down the price by selling short another group has been buying it up just as earnestly . . . they are oversold, and a mad scramble to find stock to deliver has brought to light the astounding discovery that it has been cornered and there isn't any to buy, borrow, or steal . . . the bears poked their noses into the hive once too often.)



"What's the matter? . . . What's going on here?"

RANKIN:
Something's bound to happen . . . look . . . it's jumped five more points.

BOARD:
CRC . . . 35 . . .

HUSSELL (rushing in):
CRC is cornered and shorts are trying to cover. (Hurries over to ticker.)

PA (babbling):
Attaboy, shorts . . . C'mon, Radio!

BOARD:
CRC . . . 40 . . .

PA: Whee! . . . WOW! . . . ZOWIE!

TICKER:
Stricken from the list . . . Cosmic Radio Corporation . . .

RUSSELL (reading fatal announcement aloud):
Well, that finishes it.

PA: What's happened? What does it mean?

RUSSELL:
It means the authorities have stepped in and stopped trading.

PA: Stopped trading? Isn't it going up any more?

RUSSELL:
Why, no; trading is stopped. (Hurries into private office.)

MA: There, I told you. I knew this couldn't last. Now we'll lose everything. Why didn't you sell when I told you to?

PA (helplessly to Rankin):
What do I do now?

RANKIN (incredulously, with a dawning idea):
Don't you know?

PA (still more helplessly):
No-o . . . I dunno.

RANKIN (to himself):
This is too good to be true. (To Pa.) Well, I'll tell you. You and Mrs. Potter run right back to the hotel and wait there until you hear from me . . .

(Something tells us the Potters will hear from him, too . . . well, anyway, Pa has made $23,120—on paper . . . if he can only hang on to it now.)

(And that's that—until next Sunday.)

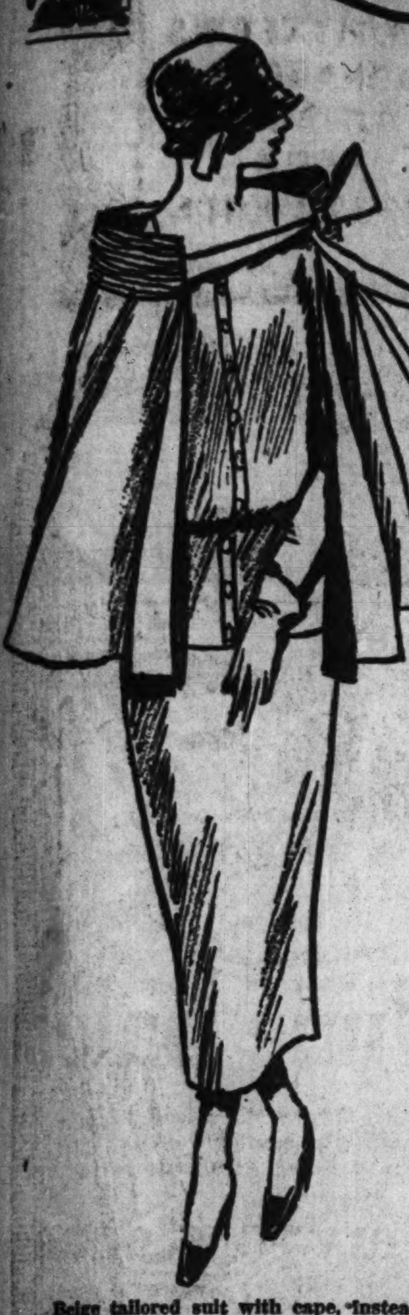
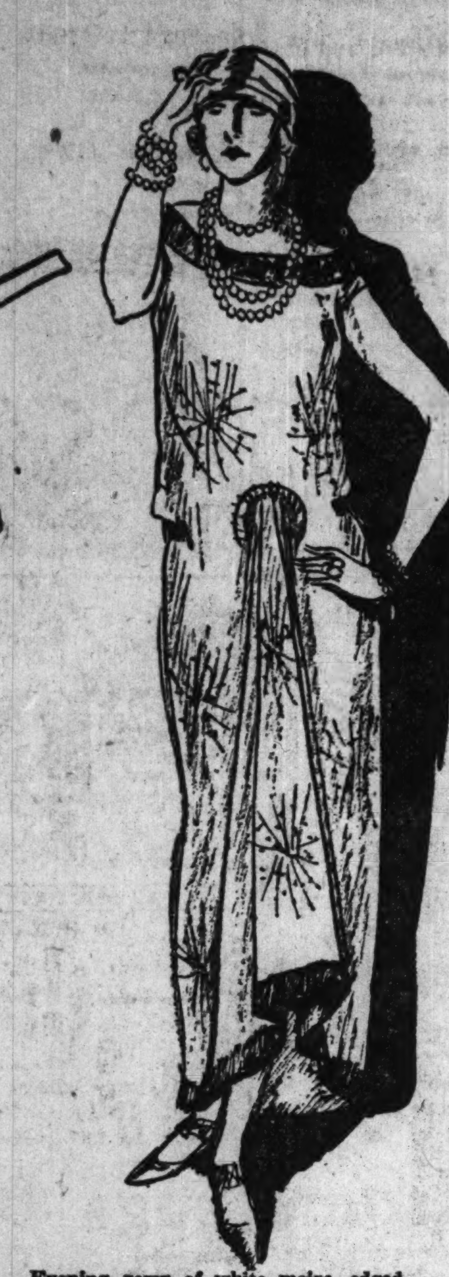
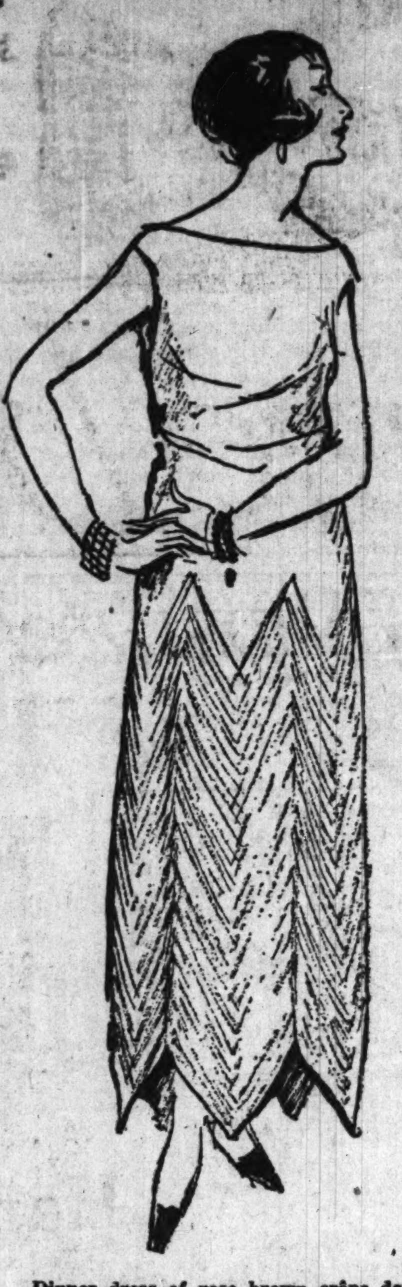
The Last Word in Paris Fashions



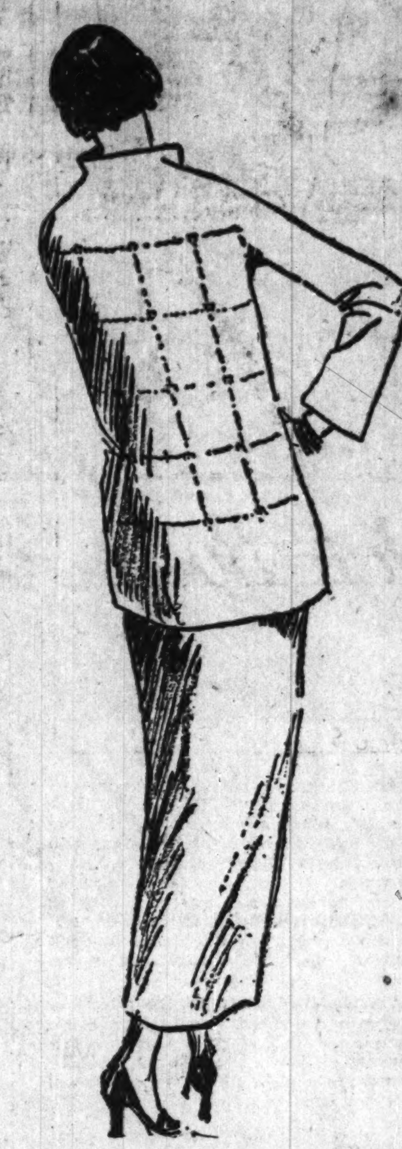
Beige tailored suit with cape, instead of jacket, and crêpe de chine blouse.



Evening gown of white moire, edged at neck and hem in green silk.



Dinner dress of rose brown crêpe de chine with tucked skirt and beltless bodice.



Tailored suit of white linen with jacket hemstitched in squares.

SKIRTS AT RIGHT LENGTH.

By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—One time I went back to America just when the chessboard of human affairs was set for some interesting moves. Large matters regarding war and peace and America's place in them were pending, and I was particular to get myself informed on some of the leading points under discussion in order to be able to answer all questions which I knew would be hurled at me.

And so they were hurled—the questions; or, rather, only one question, which came at me so many times that it sounded like a dozen or more. But did it have anything to do with the subjects on which I had informed myself? Not at all. It had to do with a detail of fashion, and it varied on different lips by scarcely a word. What will the length of skirts be?

It may be of more than casual interest, therefore, for readers to note that for the first time since some prewar era skirts are getting to be just the right length. That is, of all things you could possibly guess, they are getting to be the length which is becoming! And we have noted that in general there is such a conflict between the becoming and the chic. But now we cannot note that the smartness and the style are fading from French costuming just because skirts touch the ankle at exactly the right point. And this, as we all know, is in general about six inches from the ground. I believe they have been advertised for some time to come to this length, but it is only just recently that those which were too long have either worn out around the bottom or for other reasons been hemmed up, and those that mounted to an altitude which did not show the feminine ankle to the best advantage are hauling down their hems to a lower level.

And as the least interested man who takes himself along the French boulevards could tell you (but none are so very uninterested), all lines are straight. The most satisfactory style in the world, in other words, is prevailing. But life is not stationary in any of its phases, and least of all in its department of styles. Scarce is this good news fully launched and acted on before it is modified by an announcement supplementaire. Prophets of the subject and buyers of models say that in the near future skirts will get longer and full. Let's not accept these forthcoming models, and that would settle this branch of the subject for a little while.

Accompanying this news comes the complementary item that waistlines will mount to somewhere in the latitude of the normal. Belts at the same time are becoming almost as extinct as the buffalo on our western plains.

For the moment anything is stylish, so but it be straight in silhouette and accompanied by a short, full cape. The first illustration visualizes my thesis. Renee designed this very smart costume, but it is not in her public collection. She made it for Mrs. Herbert Worth, some of whose clothes we showed in previous letters. When you get one of the very successful French designers to create a model for one of the very successful American wearers of such creations, you get a combination that makes for the best costuming the world has ever known. The present offering, as worn by Mrs. Worth, is of beige cloth in the skirt and cape, and of crêpe de chine in the same color for the blouse. You will observe that the latter has buttons down the front and the cape is tucked into a yoke round the collar. The hat accompanying is of green straw and is by Reboux.

The fourth illustration shows one of the tailleurs as conceived on other lines by Cheruit. It forms an interesting contrast to the previous, newer conception of a cape in place of a jacket. This model is in white linen, but of course it is perfectly suitable in design for woolen materials. The jacket is hemstitched in squares, like many beautiful tea clothes. There are no buttons. The jacket is held in place—thus affording the wearer something to do with her hands. I have heard debutantes lament that they were sometimes at a loss to know how to employ theirs.

Doeuillet is becoming a rising power in fashions. The accompanying dinner dress is one of his creations in a rose brown crêpe de chine, and it shows an interesting use of tucks in the skirt, which the illustration is able to present more visually than I can. You may see for yourself that the tucks descend in columns of pointed scallops. The bodice shows the present tendency to omit all mention of the belt and all marks of where it used to be.

Here is Mary Garden in a Premet evening gown of white moire silk embroidered in diamond sunbursts. Thes. may be out of fashion in jewelry, but not in dress patterns. This gown follows the present tendency to hike up in front. You might say that the drapery is drawn through a knothole. The gown is edged with green moire at neck and hem. It is accompanied by a silver turban gorgeous with pearls and emeralds.

I think the beaded dress is now definitely and permanently on the wane.

Antoinette Donnelly's Answers to Beaut See' -,

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply, send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, The Tribune, Chicago.

G. F.: DID YOU EVER STOP TO think of how closely related to our mental condition is the mode of our breathing? One influences the other. Agitation makes us catch our breath; sadness makes us sigh. Slow, even breathing calms mental agitation. It is not without reason, in the east, breathing exercises are used as a means of cultivating mental poise and as an aid to religious life. In ordinary breathing, it is said, only about 10 per cent of the lung contents is changed. In deep breathing a much larger percentage is changed.

I. G.: THE LOWEST MORTALITY, according to insurance statistics, is found among those who average, as a group, a few pounds over the average weight before age 35 and a few pounds under the average weight after age 35. That is, after 35 overweight is associated with an increasingly high death rate, and at middle life it becomes a real menace to health, either by reason of its mere presence as a physical handicap or because of the faulty living habits that are often responsible for its development. Fifteen to twenty pounds overweight after 35, according to the Life Extension institute, should worry the possessor into immediate measures of reducing.

G. S.: I THINK YOU WERE WISE to choose the camping party over the stylish house party for vacationing. When you have only two weeks out of fifty-two you can get in more good on a regular camping trip than six weeks of house partying will give you. Hope you have one glorious time, which I envy you.

To Have Curly, Wavy Hair "Like Nature's Own"

Any one now can have just the prettiest curls and waves! And they will remain the longest time, when liquid Silmerine is used before doing up the hair. When the hair is combed out it will be nice and fluffy. Silmerine is perfectly harmless, of course, and is easily applied with a clean tooth brush. It can be obtained at drug stores and at toilet counters generally, and a few ounces will last for months. It serves also as a splendid dressing, keeping the hair soft and glossy.

Silmerine is fine for the outdoor girl, as it prevents the hair from stringing about the face and neck, even when the day is quite warm or windy. A boon to the bobbed haired girl!

LOVE LETTERS

The Tribune will pay $1 for every love letter published. As no letters will be returned, send copies of the ones you wish to keep.

FIRE THAT PURIFIES.

MARGIE, DEAR: I can see in your first letter, dear, your uncertainty and fear; the picture of the scarred and ruined birches is symbolic; you, too, are afraid of the fire; the fire that devastates, and the feeling that you are afraid hurts dreadfully.

Please do not think that I would reproach you, Margie, nor that I think your faith is too small, only I cannot, cannot see it as you do. To me the fire that burns eternally is not one of destruction, but the bright flame of an inspiration that purifies forever. Above all else, dear, the kingdom of love is one of certitude of utter and absolute faith and understanding and it compasses all things.

Words are idle, futile things when all is said and done. There is truly more understanding in one touch of the hand than in a thousand written pages; for the heart does not speak a given language nor are there words in the world to formulate and express the exquisite pleasure that come from actual companionship.

I know, dear, and I am certain of the knowledge, that without this, without actual, physical expression, even such love as is ours could never endure, for this is a part of love itself, and the desire is from love inseparable.

I, too, little woman, have seen the awakening your letter speaks of; the pitiable awakening that makes a travesty of the true and the beautiful, but I have seen it always and only in the small-souled people of the earth; in men and women who have no real understanding and comprehension of aught that surpasses the acknowledgment of the senses. Remember, dear, that we are not as they are. You have made of me a man apart and remote from his million brothers, cleansed of the grossness that, I sometimes think, is inherent in us all. And I love you for it; love you even though our continued separation has become a sharp, unending pain; though your letter seems to show that even you do not comprehend the things that has come to us.

I am writing this, Margie, away down here in a wonderful city where spring has long since given way to summer, and where the swaying sycamores outside my window seem to speak of age eternal and of the unchanging wonder of the world. Far away I can see the lake, the glorious Michigan, twisting like a silver thread under the sun, and I cannot but believe that all things that are must be forever.

Can love change, Margie? Does God in his heaven tire and change? And what other conception of God can be so true as this: that he is in part the soul of each of us; the soul of each lover in the world? for it is through love alone that we come to understanding, to the ultimate happiness of man.

My dearest, if I could but see you, speak with you, touch you with my hands, I know that you would believe; that you would see and understand. We, who have but discovered a new world, cannot be measured by the rules and laws that once we knew, and the hurt is very real that your question has given me; your question as to what comes of love when kisses become things of habit, commonplace. How could they, dear? Does a man pray through habit, and do his prayers, too, become commonplace and meaningless? Does he become sated even with those things that are enshrined in his innermost heart forever? As well say at once that there is in the world no permanency, no certitude, no love.

There is no more than I can say; words do not come easily where love is so all-embracing. I only know that were we two the sole possessors of the universe; if we alone lived together in the vast emptiness before the world was made; lived there together a million years and even until the end of time, then, when there came the inevitable end of life, my only prayer would be for yet another day with you.

For ever and ever, SIMPLICIO.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

I want to be the medium through which the friend in deed and the friend in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy, and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

FAMILY STARTED ON UPGRADE.

NOT long ago an 11 year old boy made a request which I want to tell today for all who would like to help those less fortunate but feel they have nothing worth giving. The boy's mother supported her little brood by "working out" in the homes of others—and it gave her mother's heart a twinge every night when she came home to see her children inside four blank walls with none of the things that made her employer's children happy. She was proud—too proud to ask for help—but her manly little son read her secret and decided to act. He wrote to us, asking for toys and a cheap phonograph, and promised to keep the other children happy as larks if some one would give the articles.

Several kind people gave the articles requested, and more. But what happiness it gave! But I'll let the boy tell about it:

"I want to thank all the good people who helped us and tell you what we did. The phonograph came right after school, and two dolls, a cap and stockings and shoes for me, and things for mother. I got my two sisters—baby brother is too little to help—and we put everything on the bed for a surprise party for mother. She wouldn't believe they were ours at first, but we told how they came, and then wasn't she happy!

"The next day some groceries came, so now mother says she'll have enough to buy a bed for me, so I won't have to sleep on a mattress on the floor any more. Will you let all the people know how happy we are and thank them for us."

When you think how easy it was in this case, won't you look over the appeals below and pick out one that you can help?

Who Needs These?

I have about thirty-five piano rolls that I would like some institution for soldiers to enjoy; also a bag of silk patches, a gas iron, two old fashioned irons and two wringers in good condition that someone in need might want. MRS. K. J.

We thank you, Mrs. K. J., for a generous donation.

Is Such a Flat Idle?

Could any of your readers help us find a flat, even a nice basement flat, where mother could use her electric washer and ironer, so that she would not have to go out by the day any more. I have a little sister who is subnormal and I can't stay home to mind her, as I just started to work. I will be 16 my next birthday. We are living in an unhealthy basement where there is no electricity so that mother has to go out every day to earn her living. If we had another place (we haven't time to look for anything) mother could stay at home with my sick little sister and my other sister and I could go out to work. It seems like a lot to ask, but we just don't know what to do, and perhaps some one knows of just the right place. MISS M. D.

Place for Old Furniture.

Could any of your kind readers help us furnish a small flat of our own which we have just taken after having lived in light housekeeping rooms for over a year? My husband has been ill for that length of time with rheumatism and has been unable to work. We are anxious to get back on our feet. Anything discarded will be appreciated. MRS. R. A. T.

Ailing Man Lacks Clothing.

I am a patient in a tuberculosis sanitarium. I have been unable to work for several years, therefore have had no clothing. I am badly in need of it now to enable me to go out and take some exercise. I can use a size 38 suit. I will gladly call. MR. F. S.

Piano Rolls to Give.

I have fifty player piano rolls, not all one size, which I would be glad to either separate or to give as they are to some institution or school where they would be appreciated. They would have to be called for on the north side. MRS. R.

I shall be glad to give the address upon receipt of application.

How to Be Happy Though Married

BY DORIS BLAKE

A Little Instruction Before Marriage May Avert Years of Trouble Afterwards, Survey Shows.

THE question, "Would a constructive and frank statement before marriage of the essential facts you discovered in early marriage have helped or harmed you?" brought answers on the Rockefeller questionnaire sent to 1,000 women, which formed the basis of the following table, computed by Dr. Katherine Bement Davis, head of the bureau of social hygiene:

Helped	257
Harmed	29
Neither	44
Preparation unnecessary in their own cases	12
Information might have delayed marriage	3
Information would have prevented marriage	11
Information would have lessened love	1
Prefer ignorance if husband is considerate	18
Do not know	15
Unanswered	48
Total	438

In the study of the lives of married women it was found the average age of the group at the time of answering the questionnaire to have been 38 years. This means that their mothers and teachers were of the generation to whom for the most part any discussion of sex was taboo.

Happy Majority Was Instructed.

The bureau considers, however, that it is significant that their research shows that nearly 57 per cent of the group admittedly happy had received some general sex instruction, while only 44 per cent of those who admitted unhappiness had been so instructed.

Of the group of 438 who stated they had no preparation for married life, 257 regret the fact that they went into marriage blindfolded as to its relationship, and believe that adequate instruction would have helped them in adjusting their lives.

It is rather appalling to note in the table listing items of preparation for the sex side of marriage, which I cannot give in full here, that only one woman of the 554 gives "high ideals of home life" in answer. Only one cites "the need of a healthy body." And one answer gives as claim for preparation knowledge of the "result of improper living."

Among the comments made are these: "Instruction would have saved years of difficult adjustment."

"It would have kept me from misjudging my husband and avoided years of unhappiness for us both."

"Why should not husbands be taught more?" one raises the question.

Still another, who says married relations came as a shock, speaks of "the terrific contrast to the beauty of the religious ceremony" which preceded.

There's a Large "If."

Twelve believe, theoretically, in preparatory instruction, but say it was unnecessary in their own cases because of the consideration shown them by the men they married.

Eighteen prefer ignorance with the large "if" of consideration on the husband's part. In spite of her preference for ignorance, one believes "it is dangerous to take the chance." She writes: "My own experience was so perfect I would not have it different. If I could be sure my daughter would have the same experience, I should prefer them to be ignorant. The risk is too great, however."

Only 29—or 6.6 per cent—feel that special preparation would have actually harmed them. Eleven others go so far as to say that had they known what to expect they would never have married. In spite of this feeling, 8 of the 11 have been able so to adjust themselves that they consider their marriages happy.

Information from the 1,000 women who answered the questionnaire—well educated women, who evidently gave time and thought to the formation of their statements on the question of desirability of special preparation before marriage for the sex side of married life—the bureau considers an important contribution.

Word "Adequate" Taken Variously.

Under the heading "Marriage" in the questionnaire the first question asked was: "Had you been at all adequately prepared by instruction for the sex side of marriage?" Of the 992 who answered this question 554, or 55.8 per cent, replied in the affirmative.

Many of these, however, believed a meager amount of information sufficient. So the question of adequate preparation provides little enlightenment from the report. Fifty-two women in the list seemed to consider a knowledge of birth control—a rather frail, if not dangerous, plank to hold to in matrimonial seas—adequate preparation. However, the bureau contends that those women failed to note the significance of the word "adequate." The majority of the answers contributed knowledge of anatomy and physiology and general information—including the purpose of marriage—so it may be assumed that the principles of hygiene and high ideals were not confined to the few who itemized them. But on this I shall touch later in this series.

Taking the replies to the questionnaires as their working basis, the bureau of social hygiene presents the following table on the relation of adequate preparation to happiness of married life.

	Entire	Happy	Unhappy	Happy
Instructed	554	504	44	65
Uninstructed	438	362	71	48
Total answered	992	866	115	113
Unanswered	8	6	1	3
Total group	1,000	872	116	116

"If we compare the unhappy 116 either with the total happy group of 872 or the happy group of 116 of the same age and education," the report concludes, "we find the difference in the percentages so large as to be certainly significant that proper preparation is a factor for happiness."

NOTE: Of the 1,000 women who answered the Rockefeller questionnaire, 872 answered in the affirmative to: "Is your married life a happy one?" One hundred and sixteen answered "unhappy." As it appeared probable that there was a real difference in the age and education between the two groups, a group of 116 who were happy and whose age and education corresponded exactly to the unhappy group was selected to eliminate these two factors.

Doris Blake's Answers to Love Problems

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

Have you a perplexing love affair on which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, care The Tribune, Chicago. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped, addressed envelope.

Does Not Return Affection.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have recently held a party and invited a fellow whom I dearly love. I asked him if he would come and he said he positively will be there, but did not. The following day I met him, he smiled, and that was all. Weeks have passed and he has not as yet apologized or made any comment at all. Each time he tries to smile to me I turn away. As I love him, kindly advise me what to do. TROUBLED."

I am afraid, dear, you will simply have to accept the fact that the young man does not return the affection. When he offered no apology there should be no doubt in your mind that it was a deliberate attempt to discourage any further advances from you. These things I know are hard to face, but it were better that you realize the truth at once in order to save you any further unhappiness.

Cousin May Be Uncousinly.

"Dear Doris Blake: One of the girls in my office has a very good looking cousin, who is in love with me. Although I have only seen this boy once, I know that I could learn to love him. He has asked me to go to a show with him, but his cousin tells me he gets very affectionate to the girls. Now, Miss Blake I want to go so badly, but I thought I would seek your advice. I am 16 and attractive. BROWN-EYED."

I think the cousin is putting in a thrust whose motive is none too kindly. I would not let that interfere with my accepting the invitation. You can ward off the affectionate demonstrations, if there is ground for her accusal, by conducting yourself in a manner to discourage such conduct.

Something to Forget.

"Dear Miss Blake: Through your answers will you kindly tell me if it would be proper for me to ask an old fiancé of mine for a picture of himself as a remembrance? HOFFIE."

If you broke the engagement that would be heaping the proverbial coals of fire on his head, now wouldn't it? If he broke it—why contribute to his vanity by making the request? And, anyway, what do you want with an old fiancé's picture hanging about for a new fiancé to become inflamed over? Or, is that it?

WHAT was the greatest stumbling block to happiness in your married life?

Did you have to struggle with too idealistic and too romantic a viewpoint toward mate and matrimony which was naturally due for a revisal?

Was it incompatibility of temperament or interests and how did you work out your individual problem?

Was there an economic reason for the reef you nearly struck? The high cost of living or the high cost of living beyond your means? Was your stumbling block age disparity? Religious differences? Too much mother-in-law? Poor housekeeping? Extravagance? Jealousy? Unfair division of the pay envelope? Husband unfaithful, thoughtless, unkind, alcoholic, lazy, deceitful?

As a wife, upon what duty or duties did you fall down? Were you shiftless? Too "settled down," too self-sacrificing, nagging, complaining, exacting, extravagant? Did husband and wife forget the sweetheart and the lover's role after marriage?

Perhaps it was some other stumbling block about which you can tell us and which may help some other couple about to embark upon the good ship Matrimony.

Tell us about it, won't you? The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published.

HOW TO ORDER YOUR CLOTILDE PATTERNS.

Write your name and address plainly on dotted lines, giving number and size of each pattern you want. Inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred; wrap it carefully) for each number, and address your order to Clotilde, CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE, Chicago.

How to Use the Patterns.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

RATINE would be a good material to choose for pattern No. 1713. The lines of the dress are straight and long, and will be becoming to a full figure. The dress is cut in two pieces—front and back—and there are set in one piece sleeves that may be full length, gathered in and set into narrow wrist bands; or cut off for shorter length, perforations on the pattern showing just where.

A perforation on the middle front of the waist part of the pattern shows the depth to which the slash is cut, and this is faced and rolled back. A collar that goes across the back is joined to this front, making a very good neck finish. Two collar pieces are cut, and one of these is joined to the top of the front, notches showing just where. The seam must come to the wrong side of the dress. The outside collar section and the front facings are joined according to the notches given, and when the dress and all other small parts are cut, the seams lines should be plainly marked in some manner with French chalk, tracing wheel or bastings. If this is not done, the seams may not come just where they should in a place like the neck. The seams of the inside and outside of the collar and facing must be pressed open, and then the right side of the collar and facing laid to the right side of the neck of the dress and carefully basted together all around the outside. Then they are stitched—making the seam as narrow as possible where it ends in the front. Turn the collar right side out and baste down, press and finish.

If the opening and collar were to be bound, the outside collar and facing could be laid in place over the other—right side out, and the edges basted together, and the binding put on.

This design is suitable for about any material one may wish. Wash materials, crêpes, voile, some lightweight woolen or silk making up equally well, all depending on when it is to be worn.

Pottern No. 9442 is one that every mother should have, if she has boys to sew for. Of course, it is possible to buy all garments ready made, and very satisfactory ones, too; but to many the prices are prohibitive, especially when one has several to buy for. Madras, pongee, and percale are all of them good materials for the purpose; and if percale or madras is used, be sure and shrink the cloth, and set the colors at the same time.

The pattern tells just how to put the shirt together, and the diagram on the envelope shows the most economical way of laying the pieces on the material. Do the work carefully, and see that the stitching is all evenly done—for instance, across the bottom of the yoke that goes across the back there should be two rows of stitching, and if the space is not the same all along, it will not look well. Time is always saved by going slowly enough to avoid mistakes and carelessness.

Dotted voile, combined with plain, would make up charmingly by pattern No. 1701. It would be summery and smart looking. The upper part should be made of the plain, and the dotted used for the skirt and trimmings.

The dress, as you can see, is long waisted, and the sleeves are cut in one with the waist, but there are seams on the shoulders. The opening is on the left shoulder, and this is a part that must be done with care, facing the front edge of the seam and setting on a narrow hem on the back edge. Then the smallest size snaps should be used, and pin the opening together and stick pins straight through both parts and mark on the front and back edges with a sharp pencil, making a tiny dot close to the pin. In that way you will be sure to put the snaps on evenly. Always set them in about one-eighth of an inch on the upper side so the fastening will not show.

Most women will probably choose the short sleeves, but the long ones are pretty when made of some sheer material, and the wrist bands could be made of the dotted material.

For a dressy gown this simple design would be lovely made of one of the heavy crêpes, with the lower parts of the sleeves made of lace or net. Any of the wash materials will also make up attractively, and the sash can be of ribbon, taffeta, or the dress material.

Growths on Her Ears.

One day, on a car, I had my son with me. He had never seen long earrings, and when he spied a woman with a pair he cried, 'O, mamma, look at the long potatoes growing on the lady's ears. She don't wash her ears, does she?" The woman got off at the next corner and we got off the one after that. Z. S.

Fib Comes Home to Roost.

"I know I'm a very poor housekeeper," confessed the little southern bride to my mother.

"Why, I think you do fine," sympathetically fibbed my mother. Then, in a minute, "Are they all like you down south?" G. E. P.

The Retort Scathing.

A certain young man in our set was an awful bore, and we avoided him when we could do it.

I met him at a party one evening, and before several others he said: "Do you know, Miss L., I'm afraid I passed you the other day. Immediately afterwards I realized to my horror that I knew you." L. B. K.

Comfortable Shoes Are Setting the Style

Today, real style calls for a shoe more closely modeled upon the real lines of the foot than was the case two years ago. Pointed toes are no longer fashionable. Even the style magazines are illustrating and recommending properly-shaped shoes for all except the formal social functions.

Many women have found great comfort and happiness in Cantilever Shoes. You will like them, too, because they look so well and because they harmonize so naturally with the shape of your foot. You get real enjoyment out of Cantilever Shoes.

There is no crowding of the toes, no pressure, no restraint. The shoe is modeled upon the lines of your own foot and the flexible arch of the shoe is like the flexible arch of your foot. The great comfort in Cantilever Shoes is simply the perfect freedom they allow.

The freedom of the muscles to exercise and keep strong safeguards you against weak or fallen arches. The free circulation helps to keep your feet in good condition, and cool in summer, for feet swell from restricted circulation.

Graceful in appearance, well made, of fine leathers, Cantilever Shoes will give you economical service and a degree of foot comfort which you will appreciate best after you are wearing them.

Nemo Editorial on Corsets

An Ounce of Prevention is Worth a Pound of Cure

The tight-lacing era of twenty years ago was not more harmful to general health than the lack of support which the present corsetless period produces.

Do not be misled by the corsetless figure craze. If you are, you will pay the penalty by spreading out of proportion and aggravating physical disorders.

Do not sacrifice health or good looks for the sake of adopting abnormal style effects. You can preserve both by wearing a Juspul Corset. Try one.

Nemo No. 775, illustrated, for short stout women. Closed in back. Lacing device, which gives correct support, concealed beneath the front of the corset. Low top, sizes 28 to 44—$7.50.

Correcting the National Malady

By Antoinette Donnelly

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The most common of all impairments of health is constipation. Approximately $50,000,000 is spent each year on proprietary remedies for it. The sales of one laxative alone for infants and children average $1,500,000 yearly.

It is estimated that twenty-five millions of our population are sufferers in one form or another. The beauty ills which naturally follow neglect of hygiene are numerous. Skin, hair, eyes, teeth, breath, complexion, and mental outlook are affected through the malady. And in nine cases out of ten the prevention of this trouble and the remedy for it are nothing more than simple matters of food regulation and adequate exercise.

Suitable Diet Best Cure.

Undermastication, eating irregularly, overeating, and a concentrated diet are the prime causes of sluggish intestines. A suitable diet is the chief means of cure.

Daily we need a certain amount of nutriment, but for intestinal health we require a certain amount of indigestible material in addition. The right combination is the secret of health and beauty.

Improper eating habits are responsible for most cases of indigestion, and when indigestion exists constipation does also.

To digest food well the mouth and teeth must be in a healthy state. Swallowing food that has been infected by diseased teeth and gums starts indigestion. So the condition of the teeth must be improved first of all.

Meals at Specified Times.

Regular hours for eating are important. At the accustomed meal hour an abundant flow of gastric juice occurs. If the meal is postponed, the flow of digestive juices is not so potent. The stomach is apt to be overworked.

Good cheer at meal time has a distinct influence on digestion. The jesters and buffoons used by our forefathers were established upon medical principles. A pessimistic frame of mind checks the natural flow of digestive juices.

Adequate mastication is important. Unless food is well chewed, starches and sugars ferment in the stomach. Remember, the stomach has no teeth, and the breaking up of hard, lumpy masses has to be done by the teeth.

To properly masticate food be sure the food is well chewed. This does not mean to chew until the jaws ache. If you have to remedy the habit of bolting, it will take time at first, but with practice you will soon learn to masticate with scarcely any conscious attention.

Valuable Beginning Treatment.

Dr. William S. Walsh suggests a diet which is valuable in beginning treatment and food regulation for constipation, especially if the trouble be of long standing.

"For four or five days," he says, "the person should confine his diet to raw fruits, or to raw vegetables, or to cooked vegetables, or to a mixture of all three. Among suitable fruits are melons, apples, oranges, grapes, cherries, pears, figs, dates, plums, peaches; among vegetables, lettuce, tomatoes, celery, and cucumbers (in small amounts); among cooked vegetables, cabbage, turnips, spinach, kale, beet tops, dandelions."

In addition, one may take several tablespoonsful of bran or agar, with or without petrolatum, twice a day. As a rule such a diet will cause free movements within a few days. After this occurs the diet should be increased, meats being added in small quantities at first. A diet like the above should not be maintained more than a week.

Things to Avoid.

In most cases of constipation the following foods should be avoided:

Eggs, except in small amounts and then scrambled; sweets, pastry, rice, sago, cheese, liver, strong condiments, milk as a drink, meat extracts, newly made bread, fried foods, richly seasoned foods, thick gravies, strong tea, cocoa, chocolate, dried beans, coffee. Indigestible foods, as steaming bread or buns; greasy foods of all kinds; improper combinations of foods, as ice cream and oysters; sweets and acids; melons and liquor are also to be avoided.

Meat should not be eaten more than once a day, and then sparingly.

The selection of the right diet is not difficult, as it requires only that among the food one eats daily there be those with a laxative effect.

A diet partial to vegetables not only helps constipation but lessens an obesity tendency and diseases of the arteries and kidneys. Vegetables exerting the most laxative effects are fresh greens—such as dandelions, spinach, kale, turnip tops, and beet tops. Rhubarb is laxative. Tomatoes, salsify, cabbage, lettuce, asparagus, celery, corn, beets, squash, pumpkin, and boiled Spanish onions are good. Potatoes used three times a day are not good. The starch contained in potatoes is the hardest of all starches to digest. The potato intake should be limited or entirely omitted. With other starches, such as white bread, they should not be eaten at the same meal.

Two different vegetables at two meals a day is recommended as of valuable assistance.

Fruits Are Useful.

Most fruits are useful in constipation. Huckleberries, persimmons, and bananas are the possible exceptions. Raw fruits possess certain advantages over cooked fruits. Eaten between meals, fruit is more laxative. It enters the intestines more promptly. If it is inconvenient to eat it between meals, the next best time is at the beginning of the meal.

Figs, as well as dates and plums, are valuable. A few figs eaten between meals or at bedtime, followed by a glass of water, will often keep the bowels regular.

Prunes are best utilized by soaking overnight in clean water, using the best California prunes. Eat during the day, following with a glass of water.

In raw form, in fruit salads, cooked, stewed, baked, unfermented fruit juices—as grape juice and apple cider fruit—are laxative in practically any form. Besides being laxative, both vegetables and fruits furnish the body with various acids and are excellent cleansers of the teeth.

Bran is in no sense a drug, and may be taken profitably. A tablespoonful three times a day is not too much. It may be incorporated into breads, cakes, and used on cereals. Some one article of the diet should contain it daily, and if a sufficient amount of bran containing food is eaten daily most cases of ordinary constipation will be removed.

THE NEW BABY'S OUTFIT.

THE advent of a baby, particularly if it be the first one, is an event of paramount importance, and the prospective mother probably has no more delightful task than the planning and making of a dainty layette. Babies grow so rapidly and it is considered wise to put them in short clothes so soon that a large number of small clothes is foolish.

It is fine to have those that are provided as pretty and dainty as possible, using the best materials one's purse will allow, and making them as perfectly as possible.

It is a good idea to decide on what is necessary for the complete layette before buying. Make a complete list, then go over it carefully, and cross out every unnecessary thing. It is a temptation to have a great variety and number of garments, but many things provided are a clear waste and should be eliminated.

For a layette providing enough of everything there should be six dresses, six petticoats, four night dresses, three or four flannel skirts, six shirts of about the same size, four flannel bands, four pairs of stockings, three or four sacques, two wrappers, and six dozen napkins—two dozen of them about 18x36 inches, and the rest a larger size. Include then whatever out of doors garments you think necessary. Of course there are comforters, blankets, booties, etc., to remember.

If possible, plan exactly what is to be bought and made—buy everything possible, get all the long seamed garments cut, stitch them on the machine as you can, and do the rest of the work by hand at your leisure.

In buying the shirts, select the light weight half cotton and wool, or silk, and use every care in washing them. Stockings and shirts should be dried on wooden forms, so they will keep their shape. Six or more bands should be provided for the baby, and these should be made of fine, soft flannel. Tear it in strips 6 inches wide and 24 inches long. The edges may be finished with the blanket stitch. The barrow coats may be made of a light weight flannel either set into a band or made of a straight strip with three box plaits in the back and one each side of the front. These, of course, are only laid to the depth of a band. These little plaits are held in place by feather stitching, and the armhole is cut out and the fastening over the shoulder done by ribbon.

If the flannel and white petticoats are put into bands, the band of the former should be a good inch deeper than the band of the latter, so as to avoid having two thicknesses of seams coming one over the other—making a hard place to press against the tender flesh. The best way to avoid this is to cut the flannel petticoats princess fashion, having an under arm piece that reaches the entire length, and one piece for the front and another for the back. The garment is well shaped under the arms, and there is no unnecessary fullness anywhere. The armholes and neck should be finished with a small, embroidered scallop. The bottom will be pretty finished in the same way.

Leave this garment open on the shoulders, and fasten with small buttons. Above all, take care that pins or buttons do not come one over the other or discomfort and pain will surely be felt by the baby, and will be sure to affect its nerves and health.

Fine cambric is nice for the white petticoats, and these may be finished at the bottom with a deep hem, or fine ruffle of embroidery—or an inch wide edging of Valenciennes lace. When finished they should measure one inch shorter than the dress, and the flannel petticoat should be still shorter—not usually measuring over 25 inches. Outing flannel is nice for the night gowns, and there should be no fullness at the neck or shoulders, and should button down the front.

It is a good idea to make them considerably longer than the dresses; then finish the lower edge with an inch wide hem, and through this run a narrow tape, which should be drawn up and tied, in that way affording protection for the feet and limbs and yet allowing freedom of movement.

Next week there will be some hints given for the dresses and wrappers.

BRIDE'S TABLES.

IF every prospective bride and every mother of a bride, and every person who wishes to entertain a bride-to-be, would have for the basic things of the meal only such items as she is sure she can easily prepare and serve without nervous strain and has prepared enough times to know it for sure, then gayety and grace at such affairs would be promoted, and the one responsible would not be found, even after her guests had arrived, in dishevelment and disarray, and with every prospect of a delayed meal. This is bad enough when girl friends are to be entertained. It constitutes bad manner when the event is one so important as a wedding breakfast.

Let us consider the wedding breakfast menu. At almost any June wedding the first course might best be strawberries, the best and sweetest and most immaculate strawberries that can be secured. If some leaves of the plant can be procured they make the most perfect mat on which to serve the berries. They should be washed, dried, and chilled with the berries. The dishes on which they are to be served should be cold. Taste and circumstances will determine whether to use a plate or glass, but a plate is best if some sugar is to be served in a little mound at the side. It is easier and more quieting to start a meal, after an exciting event, in some such way as this than to have something to eat with a fork or spoon. The hors d'oeuvres are largely finger foods.

The coolness of the strawberries, their perfections, their beauty all count, because foods serve us in more ways than we realize, and some are distinctly quieting, as strawberries served thus may be.

Second Course Hot.

When each thing served is nearly perfect the number may be lessened. The meat and vegetable course should be as agreeably hot as the first was cold. If only a few people are to be served it may be the conventional fried chicken, with creamed new potatoes, but if a large number are to be served it is much better to have something creamed—chicken, lobster, or any nice fish—in ramekins, than to have the fried chicken. They keep hot.

Rolls to go with this course should be as faultless as the carnation boutonnieres of the groom and his groomsman—presented by the bride. A little practice and any woman can make them, and by the garnish she gives them make them fit in with some general scheme. The sweet roll, full of surprises, is called by the Italians a love bun, because it has the surprise. With creamed dishes this is more acceptable than with fried chicken. If large, it might be surfeiting. Try it small.

Frying the Chicken.

No recipe can teach a woman to fry chicken, but with hot butter and seasonings in the pan, when she puts the chicken in, and the caution to prevent this butter from burning and to prevent the chicken juices which are released by the heat from drying up—a cover part of the time helps and the fire may also be lower when it is used—she ought to succeed. Most pieces of chicken require at least twenty minutes of cooking, though little broilers—half to each person—may not require that.

A nice little garnish for the chicken is some lettuce cooked, pressed dry or dried over the fire with butter or cream and seasonings, and then molded in a small cup or similar thing. Or beets chopped fine and buttered and pressed into a cup come out in a beautiful mold. Or mushrooms may be used. It takes but a bit to relieve the chicken of any everyday quality it might have by giving it the grace of a garnish.

It is a good plan for any woman cooking for her family to practice with the garnish almost daily, whether she serves a steak or a chop or what not. Fried onions with beefsteak represent a garnish which may be worked up from, if people have not been bred up to garnishes and feel that they are a little "too nice." That feeling may often be in spirit not unlike that the little girl had who would say "awful nice," because "very nice" seemed to her "high brow," although that was long before that latter idea had become one of reproach or the term invented. I know because I was the little girl, and yet lived to suffer reproach for liking the finest intellectual things as well as the finer things of speech and cookery.

Raising Cookery to an Art.

There are innumerable things that may be worked up into garnishes. I saw a young woman, now a young housekeeper, cook some scrambled egg in the home of a friend and on the spur of the moment, as it were. She cooked enough for ten of us, and even as she put them on a platter she cast her eye around for something to be used as a garnish. What she found was some raspberry jam, and she used it most effectively, increasing the attractiveness of the simple preparation by at least 100 per cent.

Now, in her kitchenette she finds ways of doing similar things. She perhaps has a mushroom or two left over, and that is treasure trove in her cooking as garnish for cakes of Hamburg steak, or something as simple. Of course, mushroom cookery is as easy and quick or easier and quicker than egg cookery.

This seems to be a diversion from the bride's table, but practice in such little arts raise kitchen work from a mechanical performance to an imaginative art, and leads as straight to brides' luncheons and happy brides, and then to a mother who can keep her children entertained while feeding them, as anything I know of, and I have kept my eyes open about this matter.

Finishing the Breakfast.

The salad, the ice, the coffee, or other beverage to finish up the breakfast should all be within the range of the one who would undertake to serve a wedding breakfast, or even to oversee its serving. And then all these, and all the other things, may be illumined by the accessories, or on the other hand fussed up by them.

I went shopping the other day just to see what were the table favors in favor this year, mainly those for the bride's table. And right here I must ask that no prospective bride ask me to buy for her any of these things I am about to describe. I have not time for that sort of shopping. Some of my correspondents do not realize that and send me money to make purchases for them. The highest grade candy stores, the favor sections in large department stores, and sometimes the stationery sections have what I am about to describe, although the latter section usually has place cards only.

Suggestion About Place Cards.

As a suggestion about the place cards, I would say it was much better to have the name attached to the little candy basket, or similar favor rather than to have a separate piece since a number of such things may make the table seem cluttered.

A table I saw set up the other day with service plates, glasses, the little basket of candies, etc., had for the tiny pink and white candies of the old buttercup or pillow order, a little heart-shaped basket of pink and white, but since the service plates were Lenox half covered with their bands of gold, the little baskets which look like solid gold it seemed to me might have been more suitable. The paper is cheaper looking, generally. One with basket weave, just about large enough for four almond meats, costs only 8 cents. One for 15 cents is larger and solid, so will not leak any crumbs of any sort. Its handle looks like a string of gold beads.

Wonderful Things for Candy.

Of course, there are wonderful things for candy in rose likeness. A white one with a long sort of parasol handle coming up out of it, with two imitation white moss rosebuds tied to it with narrow white gauze ribbon, seemed to me about the most bridelike of anything I had ever seen. These had been rather expensive, but any one who makes such things could get them up for a few cents apiece, with white crepe paper for petals and to twist around the wire, which was bent at the top to hold a place card, and with green crepe for the hip and the mossy-like leaves of the calyx—each calyx leaf was split at the end into three, the middle part much the longer, and there were five of them.

The gum drop has certainly come back into popularity, and has had its sphere of usefulness vastly increased. I fancy it was a mother giving a party for a child who first thought of making gum drops into little plants and bouquets, but probably I am mistaken—the confectioner undoubtedly originates these things, which are really attractive whether made up into large nosegay size, or only as small boutonniere size in a little holder edged with plaited gauze ribbon and with the stems (wire) bound with silver foil. Some to which a slip was attached for the name had the foil, but a bow of narrow white ribbon took the place of the holder.

The gum drop, the large ones, are convenient for another service. For instance, one cunning favor, I found, was a tiny lollipop covered with a hood and face and looking out of a sort of flower, tied down as though at the waist, and the rest of the stick covered like a skirt, and firmly implanted, so as to stand up, in the large gum drop. Some of the little things that are made to go on cakes would more appropriately be placed at each plate as a favor; for instance, the charming hyacinths in sugar. When the cake is cut they make a muss, and if any table in the world should keep unmussed, from first to last, it should be a bride's. It should never have a wrecked look even when the meal is over. It is bad manners, tablewise.

For the wedding bonbons, I would always have the white sugared almonds, because of their wedding history, but marshmallows covered with fondant and topped by a sweet pea or something in sugar are one sort used for the bonbon dish. They cost about $2.50 a pound, and are sometimes flat like patties, but heart shaped. Any woman skilled at making a snow white fondant could get these up for a small sum. They are all fondant dipped.

Cake May Be Fun Giving.

Of all the entertaining things at a wedding breakfast the cake, which the bride cuts, may be the most fun giving. Here is a description of it from a recent book of etiquette: "The top is usually made like a cover so that when the time comes for the bride to cut it, it is merely lifted off. The bride always cuts the cake, meaning that she inserts the knife and makes one cut through the cake, after which each person cuts himself or herself a slice. If there are two sets of favors hidden in the cake there is a mark in the icing to distinguish the bridesmaids' side from that of the ushers'.

"Articles, each wrapped in silver foil, have been pushed through the bottom of the cake at intervals; the bridesmaids find a 10 cent piece for riches, a little gold ring for the 'first to be married,' a thimble or a little parrot or cat for the 'old maid,' a wishbone for the 'luckiest.' On the ushers' side, a button or dog is for the bachelor, and a miniature pair of dice as a symbol of lucky chance in life. The ring and the 10 cent piece are the same."

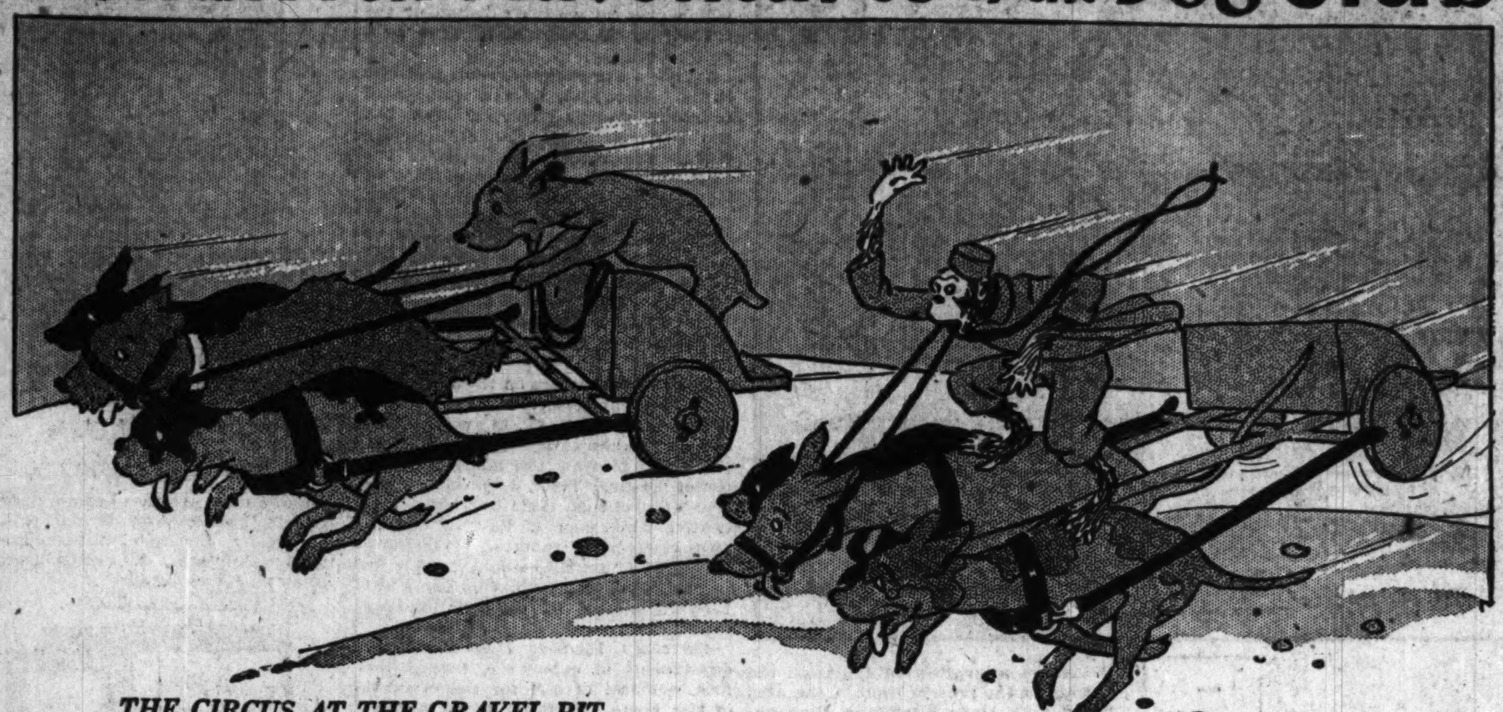
Wonderful Adventures of the Dog Club



THE CIRCUS AT THE GRAVEL PIT

By Raymond Kelly.

Of course, the Gravel Pitters gave their circus on a Saturday, because there wasn't any school that day and the children could come. When the sunflowers said that it was 10 o'clock, the sides of the pit were black with people waiting for the show to begin, and so Carlo, who was ringmaster, got up on a big box and waved his flag for things to start. Then, out from behind a clump of willows, marched all the performers, and everybody stood up and cheered as the parade went round the floor of the gravel pit.

It was a very fine show. First, Toodles walked a tight rope that had been stretched from the top of the old derrick to an oak tree on the side of the pit. He carried a little umbrella to balance with, and when he pretended he was afraid of falling everybody held his breath, or her breath, or its breath, or their breath, as the case might be.

Next Nick Borzoi, the Russian wolfhound, and Limberlegs, the greyhound, had a jumping contest and went over a pile of boxes and barrels that was ever and ever so high. I don't know which would have won, because they didn't have enough barrels to tell.

There was a chariot race, too, with Ginger driving one team and Wiggler the monkey driving the other. They had three dogs to pull each chariot. Round and round that old gravel pit the chariots tore, and such a noise of cheering and barking was never heard as broke out when Wiggler, in his excitement, jumped on to the backs of his team and stood holding the reins in his teeth, while he clapped his hands for them to go faster.

Cannonball, the educated horse, spelled words and told time and added numbers in a wonderful way, and then, when the crowd began to get a bit tired of that, he gave a bucking and kicking exhibition. Everybody liked that, but nobody wanted to take the ride he offered to let them have.

But the best thing they had in that circus wasn't down on the program at all. It was a rabbit chase. The rabbit was one that lived in the gravel pit, and so thought that he had a right to see the show without paying anything. But when all the dogs in the club took after him at once he made up his mind that a rabbit's left hind foot really was lucky, if you used it often enough, and went out of that pit in a hurry. I hope that he knew, too, that it is very wrong to try to see a circus without paying your way.

"Well, Brother Bailey," said Carlo to Bull when folks had gone away after the show, "how much did we take in?"

"Eleven dollars, a pint of nickels, and a peck of pennies," answered Bull.

"Whew!" said Ginger. "That's a lot of money. What'll we do with so much furniture?"

"Let's dig a cave for a clubroom," cried Bingo, and all the Gravel Pitters stood up and gave him nine rousing "Wows."

It's a lot of fun to dig a cave, and if you'll promise not to leave your toys where I stumble over them, I'll tell you next time about the one that the Gravel Pit pups dug.

Bright Sayings of the Children

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

Elinor and Margaret discovered a new kind of wild flower in the woods near their playground. "I'll ask my mother what it is," said Elinor.

"Maybe she won't know," discouraged Margaret. To which remark Elinor replied with great loyalty:

"She will, too—the things my mother knows are every one." E. L. R.

The other morning Junior and I were the only ones at the breakfast table. He was in a hurry to get outside to play, but nevertheless, I was surprised to hear him say, "Mother, pass the butter." I looked at him in silence, until with a grin, he said, "I forgot the 'pass' word, didn't I? Please." N. C.

Ralph and Harold had a scrap, and Ralph ordered Harold out of his yard and warned him if he ever came back he would get even. The next morning Harold tried to sneak over to play, but Ralph called out: "The time I meant for you to stay away is all the days of your life." E. L. R.

Johnnie was a little boy of 6. One day I saw him diligently sweeping his neighbor's walk. I stopped and asked him what he was getting for his work.

"Oh," he said, "Mr. Corley promised that he would let me smell his flowers when I got through!" M. K.

Aunt Sue took up a stick to chastise Shep, because his muddy paws had marked up her kitchen floor.

"Gee, Aunt Sue," expostulated Chester, "you can't teach a dog nothin' with a stick; you ought to 'splain things to him, just like he was people. You leave it to me an' I'll 'splain it to him—see if I can't!"

He got the chance to 'splain to Shep. M. M. C.

I heard Robert ask his little brother to bring him his ball. The brother paid no attention. He asked again with the same result. Finally he yelled in a loud, commanding voice for him "to hurry and bring that ball." When the brother hurried to him I said: "My, that was an awful voice I heard you call to Sonny in."

Robert looked up from his play and explained at once: "Well, I softed my voice twice and he didn't come. You have to loud your voice to get him to move." J. R.

> The Tribune will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

Ruthie, 3½ years old, had always wanted a little sister, so when she was presented with a little brother, she was somewhat disappointed. Her mother took her to see a friend who had a new baby girl some time later, and Ruthie seemed to think it belonged to them and that they should take it home. When told that she couldn't, it belonged to the lady, she cried, and then said: "Well, I don't know what is the matter with that stork. I told him my right house number." R. W. N.

As my wife was getting ready to go to a concert, I made a remark about it being necessary to pay for a ticket for our daughter. My wife said, "No; I'll have her on my lap." When our daughter heard that, she turned around in lady-like manner and half crying declared "I want to sit like a lady by myself." F. E. M.

My young son has been most exasperating the last few weeks. We have planned a long trip and visit with old friends this summer and I have been rather worried for fear this restless and mischievous spell should last throughout the visit. Tonight when he went to bed I said to him, "Son, are you going to be a good boy while we are away?" And he replied, "Yes, mother, I am. I'm saving all the good for then." S. W. B.

Seeing a lady stop Sonny as he was coming down the street, I said, "What did the lady say to you?" and he calmly replied, "She told me, 'how did I do,' and I told her how did she do, herself." Mrs. E. H.

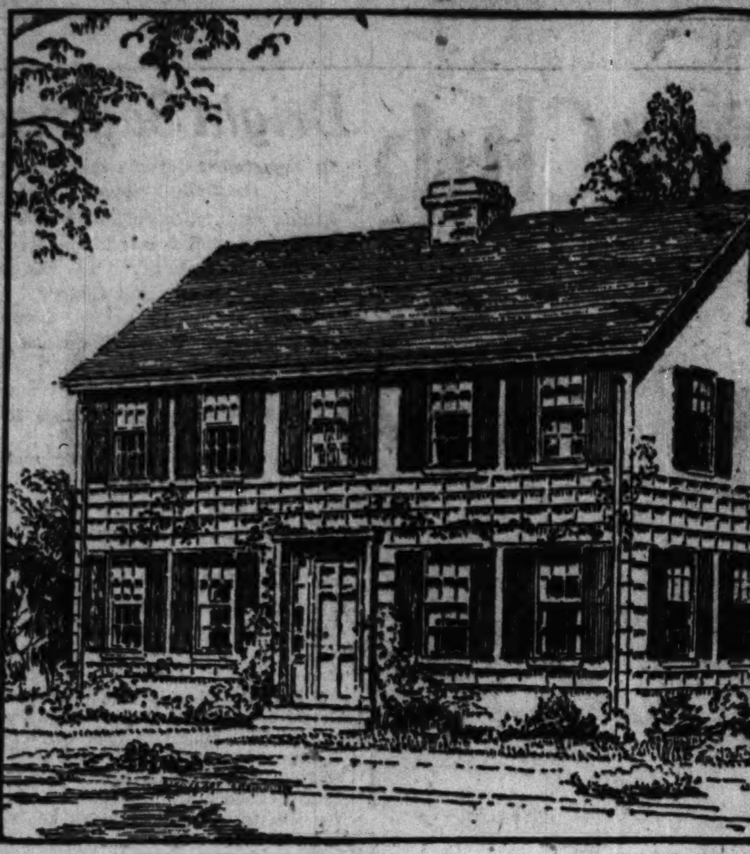
"Home, Sweet Home" of Payne Rebuilt to Inspire Home Owners

Anita de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to home building and home furnishing. Address your letter to Anita de Campi, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.



By Anita de Campi.

TO the majority of people, how vague is the dream of possessing a home! Yet, realization of this dream is a practical possibility to all, or nearly all of us. Would you like to see the home that you might have? If seeing is believing, you have only to attend the exhibition of the Better Homes in America movement.

The 1923 campaign, which opens tomorrow and continues to June 10, will have several attractive displays in various Chicago department stores. There will be interiors completely furnished and equipped, representing ideal homes for families of five with incomes of from $2,500 to $6,000.

You may select any one of the charming models exhibited and be instructed then and there on the simple ways and means of attaining it. No, I shall not give you all of the particulars of financing, for I consider a visit to the exhibits so highly educational that it assumes the proportions of a lesson in achievement that ought to establish every human couple on a plane of equal rights with the inhabitants of nests and lairs.

Mindful of the powerful appeal of the song of "Home, Sweet Home," and desirous of promoting the idea of better homes and more general home ownership, the Better Homes in America movement and the Home Owners' Service Institute of New York have sponsored construction of a modernized "Home, Sweet Home," patterned after John Howard Payne's own home in Long Island. Exactly 100 years ago John Howard Payne, American playwright and actor, "an exile from home," while in London, composed the words to this soul stirring song, which were set to music by his friend, Sir Henry. It is a universal favorite, and second, in our minds, only to the national anthem. It is not to be wondered that the home which inspired Payne's immortal poem should have been chosen for reproduction, as a model for home makers. This reproduction has just been completed on the White House grounds in Washington.

The new house is modernised in construction, not in spirit. All of the intimate touches which lend a magnetic appeal to the home remain.

In showing that a home can be built substantially and of permanent materials, still retaining the comfort and spirit of welcome of the homes of our forefathers, much can be done toward encouraging nationwide ownership.

The original Home, Sweet Home, is still standing. It is located in Easthampton, Long Island, 105 miles east of New York, and the Atlantic ocean is almost at the doorstep. Built by whalers in the early colonist days of 1660 of rough hewn, heavy oak timbers, it was on the verge of being destroyed to make way for a modern building when it was purchased by Gustave H. Buck, an admirer of Payne. It has been carefully restored by Mr. Buck, and his loving care has preserved from destruction one of the few landmarks of our early history.

Oak timbers, such as were bountiful and cheap two hundred and sixty years ago, and even in comparatively recent years, are scarce and, to say the least, expensive nowadays. In view of our dwindling supply of hardwoods their use for framing would be considered wasteful. Their particular field at present is to supply the increasing demand for oak flooring, trim, and furniture. Likewise, the solid oak pins, used to fasten the timbers together, have been relegated to the limbo of forgotten construction practices, and modern nails or bolts take their place. Instead of oak timbers the walls of the modernized Home, Sweet Home are made of inexpensive concrete blocks laid up in cement-lime mortar and covered with an attractive stucco finish. Such blocks, unknown to our forefathers, are now procurable in any part of the country, and are widely recognized as a permanent and economical form of building wall unit. Knowing the durability of cement stucco when applied on fairly rough textured concrete block, which, basically, has the same composition—cement and aggregate—experts agree that 260 years from now, and in the years intervening, the modernized Home, Sweet Home will have cost only a fraction of what Payne's old home has cost for upkeep. They also agree that at all times this better stucco house will retain its freshness and charm to a far greater degree than its predecessor, and as an heirloom will be handed down to generations yet unborn, a memento of a time when architects unstintingly gave their time to study of materials and arrangements of construction.

A contemporary facetiously remarks: "The first hundred years are the hardest!" This, no doubt, is the wail of many a home owner who has built his home during recent years, with insufficient foundations, improperly constructed walls, cheap plastering, inadequate heating and plumbing facilities, and the like. Very few will withstand the rigors of time. More substantial buildings will grace the sites they once occupied.

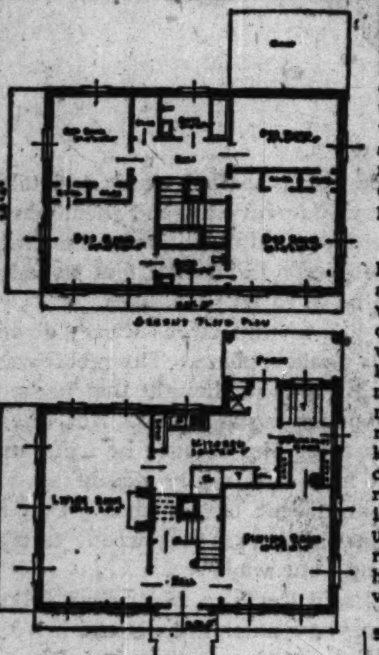
The modernized Home, Sweet Home has, therefore, been built as a demonstration, to show the necessity of overcoming the modern tendency to substitute shoddy, for tried and tested materials, and the inclination to spend money on decorative effects and outward appearances, which can be "shown off." It is the substantial foundations, walls, reinforced plaster, safe electric wiring installations, and other essentials which are not so readily susceptible of exhibition, but which, with the passing years, inevitably maintain the original value of the construction.

The interior, as well as the exterior of the home must be substantially built. Therefore, the floors and interior partitions of this model home are of carefully framed and proportioned lumber construction, well braced. Wherever door openings occur, the lumber is reinforced, so as to avoid sagging floors and binding doors. In a similar manner, crackless ceilings have been achieved by using expanded metal lath as the plastering base for walls and ceilings.

Just as modern steel or reinforced concrete was not dreamed of in the colonist days, so this highly efficient steel mesh plastering base was unheard of. All indications justify a belief that had it been used, the work of restoration by Mr. Buck would have been greatly simplified. In its use as a plastering base, the metal lath in the modernized home functions also as an admirable fire retardant, which authoritative tests have shown will confine fire to the room of origin for upwards of one hour. Had this modern method of protecting sound lumber construction been available at the time that the early colonial houses were built, it is safe to say that many of them, long since destroyed by fire, or abandoned and torn down because of their general dilapidation due to racking, fallen plaster, and deterioration, would, at slight cost to their owners, have been kept up and preserved to this day. Their value in keeping fresh and emphasizing the traditions of our country would be inestimable.

Old colonial and Puritan candle holders and chandeliers have their counterpart in modern electrical fixtures of the same style, so that nothing is lost, and much gained, as respects this decorative feature.

In proceeding to describe other changes it will be interesting to note that considerable rearranging of the rooms was necessitated by the modern conception of the needs of the average American home. As will be seen from the original floor plans, heating and cooking facilities were provided by a large central oven and stack combined. In it there was space for several open fireplaces, as the relatively modern coal stove was unknown in early days and each room to be heated had its own fireplace.



The central chimney stack for the heating plant in the basement is maintained in the new home, but note the large saving of space made available for other purposes—this despite the fuel burning fireplace in the living room.

A home as big as this needs domestic help, and, with this fact in mind, modern housekeeping advocates that all of the bedrooms be above stairs. Therefore the two smaller bedrooms at the rear of the old Payne homestead have been placed on the second floor and the space formerly occupied by them is used to enlarge the living room and provide a breakfast nook. This results in a large and much better lighted and situated living room with dimensions of 13 feet 7 inches by 24 feet 3 inches. The cheerfulness and welcome of the real fireplace can easily be accentuated by the very comfortable modern living room furniture which is on the market at the present time. Concealed lights with their intriguing shadows, draperies hung on modern metal curtain rods, permitting effects impossible with the old fashioned kind, and hot air, water, or steam heat make this room more livable and attractive than our forebears might have conceived possible.

Consider also the changes in the kitchen. The old one was 20 feet long and 12½ feet wide, with an uncertain wood burning fire for the preparation of the family meals, without running water, and with hot water only in the kettle. How difficult it was to keep meat and poultry fresh during the summer months in those days when ice manufacture and storage were unknown. In the new kitchen, which is considerably shortened but still of rather better than average size, there is a modern one piece sink, set just under the window; a gas range and a refrigerator, built-in pantry cases, a handy broom closet, and other conveniences.

Then there is a delightful breakfast room. Doubtless the dining room of Payne's home was used but seldom, and breakfast, in particular, was eaten in the more comfortable kitchen. Modern housekeepers prefer the attractive arrangement shown in the new plans, with the dining room for somewhat more formal entertaining. Just between the nook and the dining room, are two cases or sideboards which may be used for dishes, or the space may be arranged to serve as a butler's pantry.

Upstairs are four bedrooms and two baths. Reduction in the number of bedrooms was first contemplated, but the National Federation of Women's Clubs argued that the needs of the modern American family require at least three, if not more, sleeping rooms, so that four were finally provided, the smallest one being used as a servant's bedroom. Each of the rooms open on to a convenient central hall, at the head of the staircase. Being corner rooms, all are well lighted, and airy.

The two bathrooms on the same floor with the bedrooms, are present day necessities which might well please the old whalers of 1660, should they be privileged to view the modern Home, Sweet Home. Then, too, considering that only one of their bedrooms was heated, while each of its four has its own register or radiator, it is quite conceivable that they would chuckle inwardly, when contemplating the great forward strides of modern building science.

Secretary Herbert Hoover of the department of commerce, turned the first spadeful of dirt for the erection of this home. Experts, at his suggestion, formulated a model building code for the construction of small dwellings. It was his desire to reduce the excessive costs and wastefulness hitherto common in housing construction, and at the same time insure permanence and safety of construction.

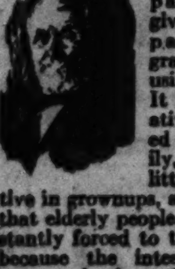
Donn Barber, the noted New York architect who designed the modernized Home, Sweet Home, has been governed by the requirements of this new Hoover code in planning this building. It, therefore, may be considered a model in the wise choice of materials, and methods of construction.

With its trellised, vineclad walls, and decorative window blinds, this attractive stucco home, will draw thousands of people to the White House grounds during Better Homes week. It has been so constructed that it can be moved later, to another place in the capitol city, and used there as a permanent exhibition, under the auspices of the National Federation of Women's Clubs.

Third Generation is Using Syrup Pepsin

No other Laxative can replace Dr. Caldwell's in the confidence of those who use it

THERE are thousands of healthy, robust young men and women who have never in all their lives taken any other laxative for constipation than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Their parents were given it by their parents; the grandparents are using it today. It is the one laxative ideally suited to all the family, safe for the little ones, effective in grownups, so compounded that elderly people, who are constantly forced to take a laxative because the intestinal muscles are weakening, find increased dosage unnecessary. This wonderful constipation remedy has been used continuously for 30 years, and over 10 million bottles are now sold annually, the largest selling family laxative in the world! The cost averages but a cent a dose. Every druggist sells it, and under a guarantee to do as claimed or your money will be refunded.



Millions of carefully conducted homes are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

Mr. J. B. Belk of Shaw, Miss., relies on it entirely to keep his children in health, and Mrs. Catherine Connolly of Jersey City, N. J., declares that not only herself but all her neighbors and friends use it and tell others about it. There is scarcely a day that someone in a family does not need it for constipation, flatulency, auto-intoxication, biliousness, intestinal poisoning, headaches, colic and cramps, and to break up fevers and colds.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a scientifically-balanced compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics. The formula is on the package. As the popularity of this natural vegetable laxative increases, the public discards the harsher physics like calomel, coal-tar in candy form, salt waters and powders. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin empties the bowels more cleanly and without any danger.

MEN'S FASHIONS

Suggestions for Keeping Cool.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Unless a certain Canadian farmer's prediction comes true, and we have a cold summer, there are going to be many days when the business man, who cannot travel around in shirt sleeves and shirt open at the neck, will find life exceedingly warm in his heavy worsted suit. If he is wise, he will turn to a light weight summer suit.

Of late, manufacturers have been specializing in light weight all worsted suitings for the dog days, and so it is possible for a man to have in a summer suit exactly the same cuts and the same service as in his regular spring or winter clothes.

This material is known as tropical worsted, and although the idea in all the brands is an extreme lightness in weight and a porousness which will enable the air to pass in and the heat of the body to pass out, certain manufacturers have their own special weaves which do all this in a special way. One main idea is to achieve a comfortable effect, and most of them do.

Although these light weight worsteds are loosely woven to insure coolness, they are fine and smooth looking, and are quite suitable for either business or sport wear, depending upon the model. More and more well dressed men are getting away from mohairs and Palm Beach suits. They want something that will stand up under hard wear. Cotton and silk goods will not. The heat radiated from the body causes most of this type of summer stuff to wilt and wrinkle and so, although a man may start out in the morning fresh and neat, by high noon he is apt to look as though he had fallen into the lake and partly dried off.

Light weight worsteds hold their shape as well as an all year round suit, besides which they can be tailored, and a cotton or silk suit cannot. Men who have tried both kinds of summer suits report that the worsteds are just as cool as the cotton or silk, and cost little more.

However, there will be mohairs and Palm Beach suits to be seen. Certain elderly men will stick to their dark blue or black mohairs, merely as comfort suits, and not because they want to appear well dressed. And a certain type of jazzy young man will cling to his high waisted, tight fitting, black mohair, not to be well dressed, either, but to give the appearance of a second or third rate vaudevillian. Nor can this kind of suit be especially cool, for one of the important points of a hot weather suit is that it be rather loose in fit. Tight clothes are never cool, as you have found, doubtless, from experience. And so these light weight worsteds are made up most frequently in the looser cuts in both coat and trousers, to give perfect freedom.

The models for strictly business wear will be the plain sack coat, with flap or patch pockets, and no trimming on the back. Sport models of various kinds will be looked upon favorably, but as in the case of the heavier goods, the plainer they are the more will they conform to the well dressed man's idea of good dress.

A coat with a small belt in the back and a small plait or gusset at each side of the back to give freedom of movement to the arms was a four button sport model I saw in one show room. I saw others with three buttons and a small half belt. There was one plain two button coat with patch pockets, which could be used for either street or sport wear. In fact, many of these suits come with both regular trousers and knickers, so that the suit will serve all purposes. In this case, the plain coat is preferable, as it is then more in keeping with a conservative business costume.

These light weight suits come mostly without vests, as many men do not wear vests in hot weather. However, the most careful dresser does not allow himself to become lax in the matter of waistcoat, and with street clothes is never seen without one.

Colors in summer suits in general tend towards the lighter shades. Light clothes not only look cooler—and the mental effect has much to do with it—but they actually are cooler.

But if for economical reasons or because of complexion or figure a dark suit is preferred, the dark blues are suggested. Even as in the heavier suits, this color is universally popular.

MY NICEST COMPLIMENT

What was the nicest compliment you ever received? Was it a tribute to achievements, social gifts, learning, beauty? Was it forthright and blunt, wittily done, or something subtle? Write it out and send it to the Compliment Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. One dollar will be paid for each letter printed.

"Angel" Unmasked.

The nicest compliment I ever received, although I wasn't intended to receive it, came from a 12 year old lad who was one of my pupils. He had been noted for his dislike of all teachers and had caused them endless trouble. I worked hard to win him, but he continued to be mischievous, and I could not tell his attitude toward me. I was about to give up when I overheard him and another boy talk at recess. They were beneath my window and every word came to me. The one boy, an "angel" in the school room, had made some remark about me, but before it was fairly out the lad had him down and was telling him to take it back, declaring that I was a good sport and the only teacher he had ever liked.

I could have sung with joy, for I knew I had won him, and with this knowledge in my heart I kept on working until he was one of the best in the class. This, incidentally, brought me many nice compliments from the school board. L. R.

Childhood's Tribute.

I am a graduate, and my nicest compliment was paid me by my little grandson, 3 years old, on Mother's day. All my children had been making a big fuss over me with flowers and candy. One of my daughters had just handed me a beautiful bouquet and Billy boy was taking in all the tokens and lovely remarks made to me. All of a sudden he disappeared in the yard. Finally he came back with a big bouquet of dandelions, and, running straight to me, he said: "For my mamma's grandest mamma on Mamma's day." Needless to say they meant more to me than all the others, and I tell you they stood withered a few days before I could part with them. M. C.

Si's a Real Man.

I have a brother who is several years younger than I am. Most of the girls whom I know who have younger brothers or sisters regard them as "pests," but I have always tried to be a chum and helpmate to Billy. One day he said, "Sis, you're a real man, God worked double time when he made you." L. L. F.

My Queerest Boss

There are good bosses and bad bosses, and then again there are bosses who are just queer. Will you ever be able to forget the queerest boss you ever had? The perplexities, and the frowns, and the laughs he caused you? Was it his attire that yielded the comedy? Some odd personal habit? Some eccentricity that reduced you to despair? Write out your story, using one side of the paper only and telling it as briefly as possible and send it to the Queerest Boss Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. One dollar will be paid for each letter published.

He smoked great big black cigars all day long and would always be out of matches. He would walk all around the office looking for matches. Whenever anybody would come into the office the greeting he would give them would be "Got a match?" So I decided to keep a supply of matches in my desk all the time. Up to date I have never been able to keep a sufficient supply to keep him going. M. H.

ALKALI IN SOAP BAD FOR THE HAIR

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified Cocoanut Oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three tablespoons of Mulsified is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified Cocoanut Oil shampoo at any drug store; it is inexpensive and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure and ask for "Mulsified."

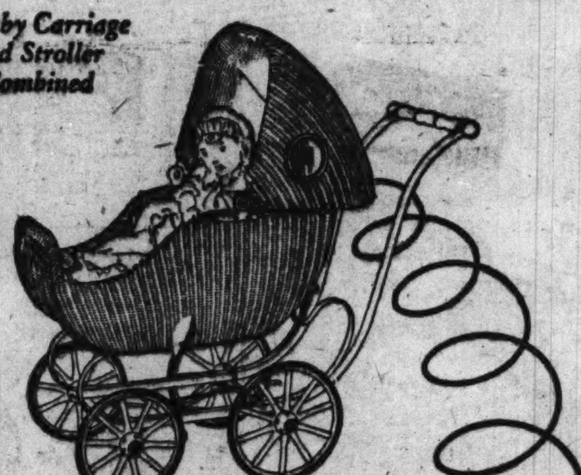
A Baby Carriage and Stroller Combined



The New Lloydalet

Only a mother, who has the daily handling of a baby carriage, can fully appreciate this unusual new baby conveyance. It combines Baby's first and second carriage in one; is smaller and lighter than any other baby carriage; yet almost as roomy as a large carriage.

Naturally, it is easily handled; and it serves perfectly as a stroller when Baby has outgrown a baby carriage. Because of the small space it occupies, apartment dwellers find it invaluable.

Like all Lloyd Baby Conveyances, it is woven on the wonderful Lloyd Loom—of one fine, endless wicker strand—around and around, in a graceful bowl shape, flawless, smooth and strong. Because of this remarkable loom—the invention of Marshall B. Lloyd—weaving far more perfectly and thirty times faster than human hands, Lloydalets can be bought for a lower price than has ever before been asked for a baby carriage of similar quality.

Ask your dealer to show you Lloydalets.

The only carriage woven in desired shape from one endless wicker strand. Don't accept a substitute. Find the Lloyd name-plate on the seat.

Cool, Summery Rugs
*throughout the whole house for an unbelievably small sum

WHY NOT give your home this summer a really summery look? Take down the stuffy draperies. Roll up the thick, heavy rugs.

In their place you can have the most charming floor coverings imaginable—lovely, cool-looking rugs that cost only a trifle, and that transform the whole house into an airy, inviting home.

Kimlark Rugs, woven by a remarkably new method, are wonderfully attractive. They come in the most fascinating designs, the softest colorings. There are gay little patterns to give the room a bright and festive air; or, if you prefer, there are subdued, neutral designs or solid colors, that are quiet and restful.

Use them everywhere—in bedroom, hall, living room, dining room—even on the porch you can afford them. They stand wear wonderfully; are washable and waterproof; are finished on both sides, giving you two rugs for the price of one, and double the wear of an ordinary rug.

Women the country over have adopted these lovely rugs for year-'round use, because of their unusual beauty and unquestioned durability. They have a number of unusual features which you do not expect to find in any rug.

All the better stores are showing now very complete displays of Kimlark Rugs. Be sure to see them, and learn how much farther they will make your rug money go.

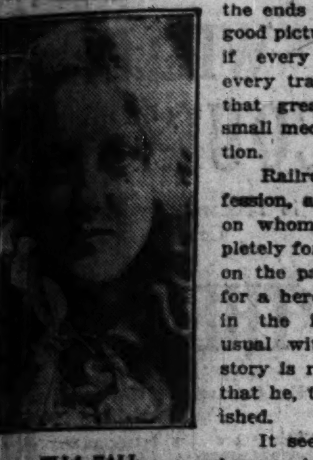
By Inez Cunningham.

THERE are thrills and more thrills, and shivers and quakes, and then thrills again in "The Westbound Limited." It is a story about railroading, always an interesting subject to the imaginative American, whose country is like the human system with the thousands of miles of railroad tracks for veins and the trains for the blood of commerce carrying the vitality to the ends of the continent. It is a good picture of what might happen if every one of the molecules, every trainman and dispatcher of that great system, didn't do his small mechanical part with perfection.



ELLA HALL.

Railroading is a romantic profession, and the railroad engineer, on whom we all depend so completely for our safety, is a fine idea on the part of the movie director for a hero. The picture fails only in the inconsistencies that are usual with most directors. The story is rather too full of incident that he, the director, leaves unfinished.

It seems rather a shame, too, because in some ways he is one of our directorial best. He does certain scenes with great promise—even skill. For instance, in the scene where the villain attacks the girl he does a number of things to give it unusual verisimilitude. He makes the man's strength seem to count over the woman's and they seem actually to struggle. He gives us a moment before the hero arrives to see her long enough for actual suspense. So I suppose we will have to forgive him some of his other sins and hope that enlightenment will bring repentance—as it always does in the movies.

Leap to Flag Train Thrilling.

The ride and the leap which Johnnie Harron takes to flag the train are thrilling and exciting. His acting, too, is excellent when later he is picked up by his father. There is much to be commended in the picture, and you are sure to be entertained and excited in spite of some discrepancies in plot and continuity. Henry is played well by Taylor Graves, and it is an exceedingly theatrical part which he could easily have overstressed. The women in the cast are nothing to brag about, but then one does not expect them to be much more than sightly in such a drama which has to do with the bravery of men rather than the fascination of the vampish sex.

Filmland Debutantes Play Some Very Brainy Games

By Mildred Spain.

LOS ANGELES.—[Special Correspondence.]—The debutantes of filmland wish it to be known that their round of social pleasures differs from that of the older stars. Their parties, dances, and teas are far less formal. The naiveté of their games will startle even high school girls of other cities, so old fashioned, so girlish are they. Now take a favorite game. This one is called "aviation" and requires only a few giggles and a new victim to play. The victim is blindfolded and put on a board. Two of the rollicking debutantes now lift the board just a few inches. Then the blindfolded one is commanded to jump—and a terrible leap ends in all sorts of fun.

HELEN FERGUSON.

Another pastime had its origin in Greenwich Village, if we can believe the "sophisticates" of Gertrude Atherton. Every one writes a subject on a slip of paper, "prunes," the "psychology of a soda," or "bougainvillea." These are put into a hat and every one draws his topic for a minute of snappy speech. If there is any stuttering or acknowledged ignorance of the subject a forfeit must be paid. This game is a favorite with even such famous stars as Charley Chaplin and Douglas Fairbanks.

The late dance and short hair are frowned on by the movie mamas. Only on Saturday night is the ban lifted on the former and then there must be an early homecoming to preserve those lovely features. Helen Ferguson begs to be allowed to have her hair shorn, but the latest news on the ticker said mama had not lifted the barrage.

On Monday night "Our Club" meets, Vola Vale, Helen Ferguson, Lois Wilson, Carmel Meyers, Laura La Plante, Maryon Aye, Mildred Davis, Patsy Ruth Miller, May McAvoy, Clara Horton, and Gertrude Olmstead. A naughty visit to the "Dutchman's," Hollywood's only delicatessen, follows and chicken sandwiches are devoured with an abandon that shocks your cool young lady of the same years.

On one memorable occasion hard cider was drunk!

Aid Church Corner Stone Laying.

It was only last Sunday that Helen Ferguson, Claire Adams, Clara Horton, Carmel Meyers, Lillian Rich, Patsy Ruth Miller, and Vola Vale assisted the Rev. Neal Dodd in breaking the ground for "The Little Church Around the Corner," to be erected for the centennial celebration of the Monroe Doctrine to be held at Exposition park. The church is to be a replica of St. Mary's of the Angels in Hollywood, the "movie people's church."

Some of the debutantes are married, some have children, and one or two have been divorced, but they retain that sweet simplicity through everything which makes their standing in the younger set impeccable.

Mildred Davis, who was, or is, one of the most popular members of "Our Club," is going through the chrysalis stage which will make her one of the leading society matrons of Beverly Hills. Her husband, you call him Harold Lloyd, has started building a country home on his fourteen acre estate in Beverly Hills. The Lloyds are staying for the present in a rented home in Hollywood replete with Chinese rugs, Louis Quinze furniture, an orchid taffeta boudoir for Mildred, and a picture gallery that is exceptionally fine.

Harold Lloyd also keeps open his old bachelor home that was bought in the pre-Mildred days. They intend to take a trip around the world—after that the question whether Mildred Davis will become simply "Mrs. Lloyd" or continue her screen career will be settled.

Ravinia Promises Its Finest Season

By Edward Moore.

RAVINIA is the next item on the musical docket. The other north shore event, the Evanston musical festival, has put away its banners and dismounted its organ, other opera and orchestra companies are working behind closed doors for another autumn, the dozens and scores and hundreds of recital artists are learning new programs. So Ravinia has the right of way for the summer.

MARGARET FARR.

[Mocett Photo.]

It will be another three weeks before this fascinating inclosure is ready to open its gates to the public, but even that far in advance there is pleasure in anticipation. Ravinia has been in operation for twelve summers. Each one has done its part to make manifest the fact that there is nothing like it anywhere else in this country or abroad; each one has been distinctly in advance of the one before. If one may judge by what is promised—and Mr. Eckstein is in the habit of keeping his promises—there will be better opera and concert there this summer than there was last, as last summer was better than the one before.

Consider what Ravinia has to offer, physically as well as artistically. Twenty-two miles out north from the center of Chicago, its air even is a stimulant after the smoke and grime of the city; its walks and trees and vistas are restful to the eyes grown weary of pavements and buildings. A group of the most noted musical artists of the world come there each summer, many of whom can not be heard during the winter because they are busied in other communities. The great singers appear in their most famous rôles, the great Chicago Symphony orchestra plays, there are operas and concerts for ten weeks and three days. In such an atmosphere there is a degree of pleasure in going to Ravinia that one would hardly experience in going to the greatest opera houses of the world during the winter.

The names of the principal artists engaged for the coming season at Ravinia, which opens Saturday night, June 23, have already been announced, but they are well worth repeating. It is an imposing array and it shows that Mr. Eckstein, in arranging his work for this season, has followed his usual custom of procuring the finest talent available. Here are those who will be heard in the leading rôles of the thirty-three operas to be presented during the ten weeks' season at this north shore music shrine: Florence Easton, Elisabeth Rethberg, Graziella Pareto, Tito Schipa, Giacomo Lauri-Volpi, Josephine Lucchese, Morgan Kingston, Armand Tokatyan, Ina Bourskaya, Marion Telva, Giuseppe Danise, Vicente Ballester, Margery Maxwell, Leon Rothier, Virgilio Lazzari, Desiré Defrere, Paolo Ananian, Louis D'Angelo, Giordano Paltrinieri, and others. Armando Agnini returns as stage director and Gennaro Papi, Louis Hasselmans, Wilfred Pelletier, and Giacomo Spadoni are the conductors.

How the Season Will Start.

According to present plans, the season will open with "La Bohême," which because of its ingratiating music, the opportunities it affords for acting, and the magnificence of its ensembles, is one of the most beloved of all operas now found in the standard répertoire. Mr. Eckstein has selected an all star cast for this initial performance, with Elisabeth Rethberg appearing as Mimi, Giacomo Lauri-Volpi as Rodolfo, Giuseppe Danise as Marcel, Virgilio Lazzari as Colline, Margery Maxwell as Musetta, and Louis D'Angelo and Paolo Ananian in other leading rôles. Gennaro Papi will conduct.

The second night of the Ravinia season will witness a presentation of "Lohengrin," which also takes high rank not only among the great art works of the world, but also as an opera having universal appeal. This will serve to mark the debut this season of Florence Easton, who was a member of both the Chicago and Ravinia forces several years ago and who today occupies a place in the front rank

"Adrienne" Wins Favor as Broadway Summer Show

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—It might be said of the typical Broadway summer show that it is not a bit different from the Broadway winter show, save in the matter of raiment. And the first manager to invade the spring with a frankly undressed chorus—that is to say, a chorus that wears barely enough pearls to cover it from entrance to exit or from overture to finale—is usually sure of considerable acclaim. In other words, it might be written of summer shows that when they are bad they are very, very bad, and when they are good they are torrid.

VIVIENNE SEGAL.
[White Studio Photo.]

This year the trick—and it is a trick to adjust the time, the setting, and the girls to the attitude of the audience—this year the trick has been turned by a young man named Werba—Louis Werba, who used to be in the producing business with Mark Luescher, until together they lost their all, including wardrobes.

The piece is "Adrienne." In it Vivienne Segal, Philadelphia's favorite child of song, is a heroine who is enamored of occultism and a yogi. Through them she hopes to hear the spirit voice of the lad who was a king in Babylon when she was a Christian slave, or vice versa.

Falling into the hands of fakers, one of them just out of Sing Sing, she is lured to a shrine and cautioned to bring her jewels. It is in the shrine that the lights are turned low and the barest of the chorus numbers is performed orientally, sinuously, and with sufficient grace and beauty of flesh lines to excite the wearied merchants seeking relaxation from too much or too little golf.

In the ensemble, which has been trained to the minute, there are no less than three of those naked, muscular fellows who deftly wrap their contortionistic dancing partners now around their necks, again around their waists, and finish by holding them aloft in postures resembling the Goldbergian candelabra.

Carle Back as Light Comedian.

Miss Segal, one of the best of our prima donnas, is saved from the boys who would do her wrong by the tenor, Harry Fender, who himself impersonates the lover of the earlier incarnation. She departs the place with her honor and jewels intact, singing merrily in celebration of her fortunate escape.

Richard Carle is back as a light comedian, and in better form than he has been in years, vocally and physically, and there are few better than Richard when he is at his best. "Remember," says he wisely, "a long engagement makes a shorter marriage." Billy B. Van does the coarser and funnier quips, such as "They are giving us the gate, but let us not take a-fence." Again Mr. Carle: "A husband is a sweetheart with the nerve extracted." And Mr. Van: "Could I use $5? Could a fireman use a red shirt?"

And so it goes—much better than it reads—with an audience largely moronic, if you know what I mean.

He was a calm and contrite manager who faced Judge McIntyre the other day to receive sentence for having produced what a jury had decided was an immoral play in "The God of Vengeance." If hizzoner pleased, the manager asked, would he not assess a nominal fine against himself and the convicted actors of his troupe? A jail sentence would be severe, and the fact that the verdict against the play had killed its commercial possibilities, thereby virtually destroying a $100,000 property, was in itself a fairly heavy sentence.

The judge was so minded. He fined the manager, Harry Weinberger, and the chief actor, Rudolph Schildkraut, $200 each, and released the other actors on suspended sentences. It is a good thing for the theater, it seems to me, that a conviction has at last been secured against it at a jury trial. There will be less talk of the need of censorship in the future.

Shall We Name the 'Best Plays' Again?

By Sheppard Butler.

A YEAR ago various readers of this department—and various others, no doubt—found it amusing to express by vote their opinions as to the best and worst plays of the season then drawing to a close. The plan has its advantages, not the least of which is that it relieves the dramatic editor of the solemn duty of making the choice for himself. It is, therefore, submitted again. A blank form appears on the next page, which, if the spirit so moves you, you are invited to use.

FRANK BACON,
whose play of "Lightnin'" was voted last year the best of its season.
[Lewis-Smith Photo.]

Of course it makes no difference at all which we label the year's best or worst play, for, in the last analysis, no such thing exists. What John Doe likes Richard Doe may not care for at all, and Jane Doe is reasonably sure to dissent from both. Nowhere, I find, is this matter of divergent tastes so sharply manifest as in the theater.

But there is a profound satisfaction in speaking one's mind, and when the thing is done collectively it is likely to carry some weight. Your vote of last year interested the managers and perturbed them a little, since it was not an ipse dixit over which they were privileged to laugh themselves sick, but the composite view of a considerable number of their customers. This year one particular member of the managerial fraternity is on tenterhooks lest he fail to win the vote for a play which, he thinks, added greatly to his prestige in these parts. At least, that's what he tells me.

So you have an audience. The case awaits your verdict.

The Season in Retrospect.

Glancing back over the season, one discovers that it brought sixty-five plays, as against only forty-nine for the preceding theatrical year. The fact that the number of theaters was increased by two when the Selwyn and Harris were opened is not enough, of course, to explain this discrepancy. The difference was chiefly caused by many quick failures, and a consequent rapid shifting of attractions. Of the plays which visited us, seventeen—more than a quarter of the total—departed in three weeks or less; eleven lingered only a fortnight.

A depressing circumstance in connection with all this was that it was not by any means the bad plays alone which failed. The brief Chicago career of Galsworthy's fine "Loyalties" was an unhappy incident, and though Allan Pollock bravely kept "A Bill of Divorcement" in town for nine weeks, it was a losing venture. "To the Ladies!" "Bulldog Drummond" and "Kempy," uncommonly effective diversions of their kind, were disappointments to their sponsors; "The First Year" and "Six Cylinder Love" achieved longer runs, but in neither case were expectations fulfilled.

On the other hand, Chicago did surprisingly well by one or two plays which attracted no great attention elsewhere. This matter of varying fortunes in different cities was sharply emphasized by the case of "The First Year" and "Thank-U." "The First Year" was a record-breaker in New York, having run there for virtually two seasons; "Thank-U" had only moderate success in the east. Yet the latter stayed four weeks longer than the former in Chicago, and did better business!

The really outstanding phenomenon of the season was the sudden eagerness of producers to make Chicago a scene of theatrical experiment. After neglecting us in this respect for years, they came back with a rush; of the sixty-five plays we saw, twenty-four had their first important showing here.

This was flattering, perhaps, but no great solace to the playgoer, for, as might have been expected, the experiments yielded much chaff and only a little wheat. The list included "The Dice of the Gods" for Mrs. Fiske, "Under False Pretenses" for Leo Ditrichstein, "Greatness" for Miss Jobyna Howland, and "Field of Ermine" for Miss Nance O'Neil, all of which were quickly laid aside. Some—such as the Tarkington-Wilson "Bristol Glass" and Samuel Ship-

Old Reliable Draws the Line Between Quality Folks and Poor White Trash

By Harris Dickson

ODORS of greasy cookery came percolating out through every crack of the Hot Cat Eating House as Old Reliable hustled to its door, digging both hands deep into his pockeets, for it was a cold day in Vicksburg. His coat might have wrapped twice around him and buttoned in the back; it once had fitted the bulkier Colonel Spottiswoode. Fluttering now upon Zack's skimpy figure, the garment seemed more of a convulsion than a fit. Fits or convulsions, however, mattered not when his nose sensed the seductions of frying catfish. Turning the doorknob he paused to sniff, to grin, to anticipate and to enter.

First he eyed Aunt Fannie, who floated amidst a heavenly cloud of incense, bending over her skillet while she flopped the thin pink slices. And it tickled Zack upon his front teeth to consider that he'd soon be chomping such juicy morsels. With a mouth hankering for catfish he plotted no arguments and hatched no debates. Disputation was not the joy he craved; yet no sooner had he stepped within the Eating House than Unc Eli Mundy passed a remark which pestered him.

Corporal Eli Mundy and Brother Sandy Spriggs were Grand Army Republicans, drawing their pensions, drawing their breath, and argufying beside the Hot Cat stove, where Zack heard Eli glorify the name of a prosperous white man and assert:

"I tell you he's wuth a million dollars."

"Shet up, Eli!" Zack strode forward. "I don't care if dat feller's wuth a thousan' dollars, he ain't wuth nothin' to me. Po' white trash! Po' white trash!"

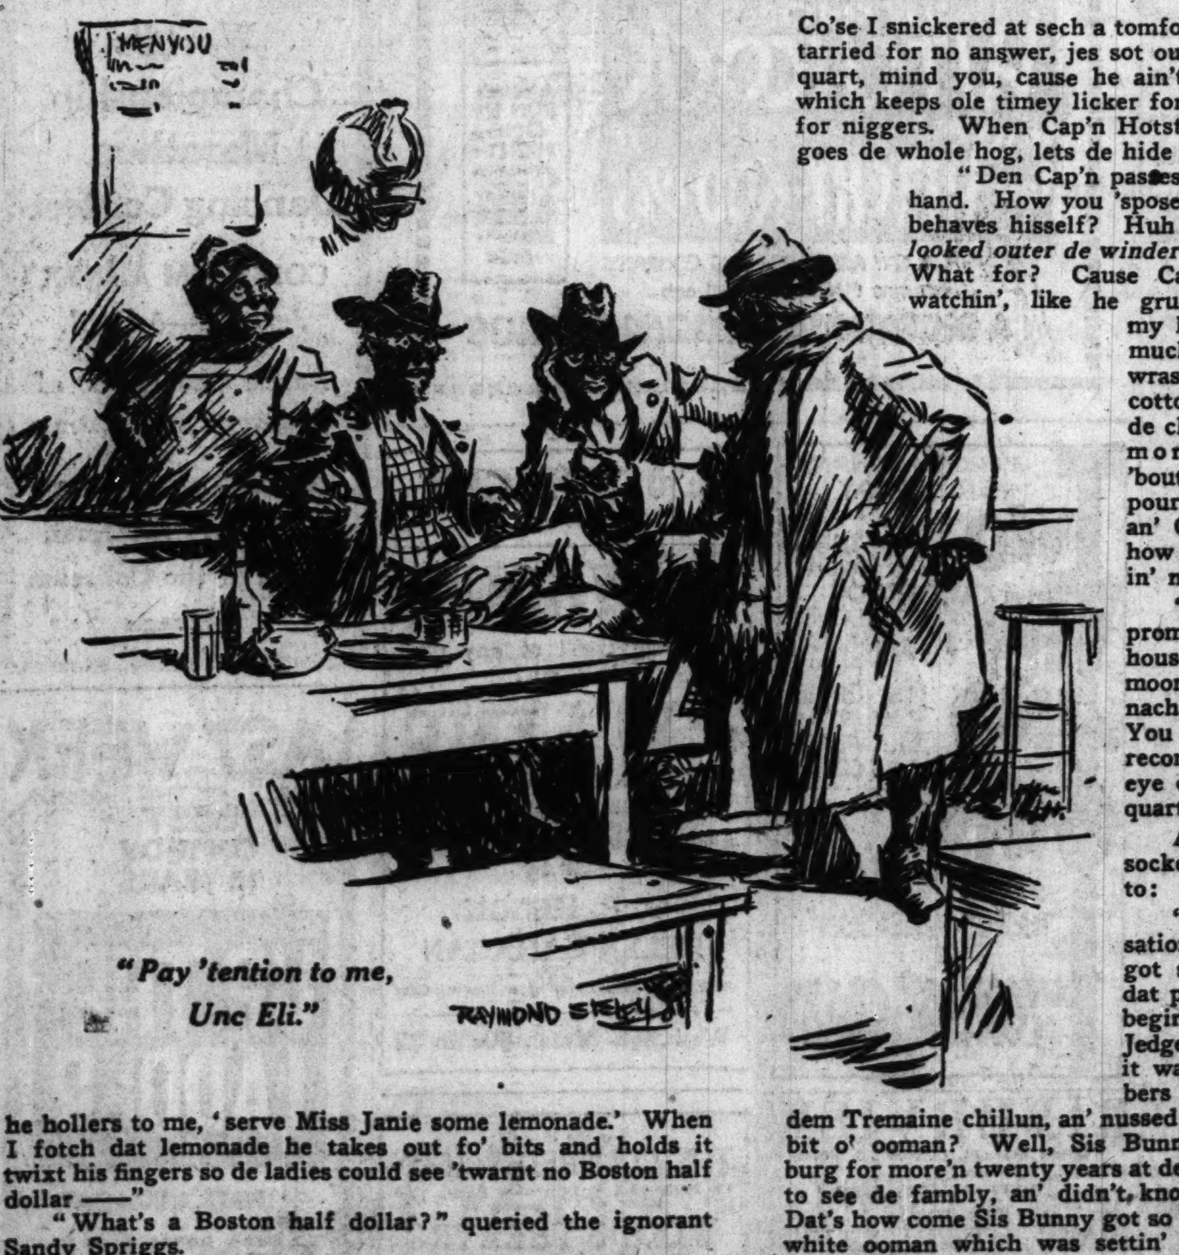
"Don't he live in a fine house?" Eli bristled up. "Ain't he got plenty money? An' two autymobiles?"

"It don't signify what he got," Zack maintained. "I'm talkin' 'bout what he is. Dat feller's so scrubby, ef he was a hoss his fetlocks would drag de groun'. An' ef he ain't po' white trash den he oughter take down his sign; 'cause de good Lord don't put wrong marks on His packages."

Nowhere else would Old Reliable have been so outspoken. But here, in this sable sanctuary, blacks could discuss the white problem as freely as the paler race were forever jowling over the negro problem. And Zack's internal barometer never lied to him about white folks. By instinct he sized them up more accurately than they judged each other by their logic. Any shrewd adventurer might come to Vicksburg and deceive Colonel Spottiswoode; yet if that stranger lacked a certain grace of life old Zack promptly got his number.

"Pay 'tention to me, Unc Eli," Zack insisted. "I kin pick quality folks in de dark, wid bofe hands tied behind me. Dis feller which you brags about, he acks powerful nice befo' de big bugs, cause dat's de side his bread is buttered on. But he don't cornsider it's wuth while to fool a nigger; so I sees plum through him, same as a pane o' glass.

"Huh! De fust day he ever hit Vicksburg I noticed him perticular at Christ Church picnic, showin' off befront de ladies, an' spoutin' a heap o' language. 'Here, ole man,' he hollers to me, 'serve Miss Janie some lemonade.' When I fotch dat lemonade he takes out fo' bits and holds it twixt his fingers so de ladies could see 'twarnt no Boston half dollar ——"



"Pay 'tention to me, Unc Eli."

"What's a Boston half dollar?" queried the ignorant Sandy Spriggs.

"Dat signifies a nickel, 'cordin' to dese sleepin' car porters. Dey say Boston drummers gives 'em. Anyway, dis feller held it up ontil de ladies made sure 'twarnt nary nickel, den flips it me same as a button, oratin' right noisy, 'Keep de change, ole man.'

"Huh! Dese po' white trash always seeks to make a nigger feel like a nigger. Now dere's Cap'n Pepper—Cunnel calls him Cap'n Hotstuff—done spent his money, an' lost it besides; but when Cap'n Hotstuff do sump'n for you, he do it complete. Last night I goes to Cap'n Hotstuff's house wid a note from Cunnel, an' bein' it was so cold de Cap'n 'spress hisself jesso, 'Zack, don't you want a little drink?'

Co'se I snickered at sech a tomfool question, an' Cap'n never tarried for no answer, jes sot out his own bottle. His own quart, mind you, cause he ain't one o' dese short hosses which keeps ole timey licker for hisself an' white lightnin' for niggers. When Cap'n Hotstuff gives you anything, he goes de whole hog, lets de hide go wid de horns an' taller.

"Den Cap'n passes me a goblet an' waves his hand. How you 'spose a high-qualified gen'leman behaves hisself? Huh! He jes' turnt aroun' an' looked outer de winder whilst I poured my drink. What for? Cause Cap'n knowed ef he stood watchin', like he grudged ev'y drop, I'd stay my hand befo' pourin' nigh as much as I wanted. Den I'd wrastle wid nightmares until cotton-pickin' time, dreamin' of de chance I lost to take a little more. Huh! Jes studyin' 'bout dat whisky what I didn't pour would hurt my feelin's; an' Cap'n Hotstuff onderstan's how to ease along widout hurtin' nobody's feelin's.

"Lord! Lord! When I promenaded away from his house I was steppin' on de moon an' de stars, cause I nacherly felt so fine. Huh! You can't pay no man a higher recommendation dan to take yo' eye off him whilst he tilts yo' quart."

As Zack administered this sockdolager he commanded Eli to:

"Hush yo' mouf. Conversation ain't reached you yit. I got some mo' to say: When dat po' white trash commenced beginnin' to git rich, he buys Jedge Tremaine's house, 'cause it was stylish. You all 'members Sis Bunny what nussed dem Tremaine chillun, an' nussed the Jedge to boot? Little bit o' ooman? Well, Sis Bunny hadn't been in Vicksburg for more'n twenty years at de time she 'rived back home to see de fambly, an' didn't know dey done moved away. Dat's how come Sis Bunny got so bumfoozled by dat strange white ooman which was settin' on Jedge's front gallery, wearin' a fine silk dress. Huh! Dat's de wife o' dis feller which you brags about. An' when Sis Bunny 'quire for de Jedge's chillun, dat ooman ack kinder uppity an' tole Sis Bunny, 'Dey done busted an' gone. Dis is my house now,' which injuce Sis Bunny to set down on de step an' cry. She done traveled so far to see dem chillun. After while she tried to talk some 'bout de chillun, but 'twarnt no use. Den she ax, nice an' perlite, 'Please ma'am, can't you gimme some onderclo'es? I'm most naked.' What you reckon dat white ooman done? Shall We Vote Again on Plays of the Season?

man's "The Crooked Square"—face an uncertain future, having made no great impression in these parts.

A few, however, developed into valuable properties. "Peter Weston" seems an undebatable success, and there are high hopes for "Two Fellows and a Girl," "Light Wines and Beer," and "Chains."

Not as many musical entertainments reached us as before—twenty-two this year, as against twenty-nine in 1921-'22. The showmen are increasingly frugal, and it costs money to put on a musical show. Those that came included the best of their diverse kinds: "Sally," the "Music Box Revue," "Bombo," "Shuffle Along" . . . but there I go expressing opinions, a duty of which you are supposed to relieve me. I shall say no more.

Gossip of Plays and Players.

William Hodge took "For All of Us" away last night after what has been in some respects the most unusual run in Chicago theater history. The piece was pooh-poohed by the hardened playgoers when he brought it—I was roundly kidded for finding in it some elements of appeal—and there were solemn conferences as to whether it should be taken quickly elsewhere. Mr. Hodge insisted that he didn't care anything about the aforesaid hardened playgoers; he would, he said, create an audience of his own. He did, luring thousands to his ministrations who seldom attend a theater and never read the dramatic columns—and "For All of Us" has had the second longest run of the year: twenty-eight prosperous weeks.

"Chains," the initial venture of Lester Bryant and John Tuerk, newly faring forth as Chicago producers, has settled into a sound success at the Playhouse. Mr. William A. Brady, the godfather of the enterprise, is giving voice to words of good cheer; Jules Eckert Goodman, the play's author, is coming soon to see what he has wrought, and now arrives the inevitable thing involving Miss Helen Gahagan. She has, says her press agent, a yearning to play Shakespeare—"not Rosalind or Viola or Juliet, but Katherine the shrew." Some day, perhaps, we shall have the novel experience of a risen actress without a yearning to play Shakespeare.

Mme. Olga Knipper-Tchekhova, of the Moscow players, has been telling them briefly in New York what she thinks of Chicago. The vista of Lake Michigan from the boulevard thrilled her, she said. "It is beautiful—a beautiful city. But it is very commercial, isn't it? I don't like them to kill the cattle, either." The Muscovites closed their American engagement last night and will depart soon for Russia.

Ernie Young submits a new entertainment at the Marigold tomorrow night, inaugurating the outdoor season in the garden and bringing into view Roscoe Arbuckle for his long-heralded "comeback." Arbuckle will be teamed with Frank Libuse, a dependable Marigold cutup, in various comedic incidents.

"The Broken Wing" is being made into a musical play, with Miss Eleanor Painter, the vivid songstress of "The Last Waltz," named as the prospective star of the production.

The New Play

OPENING TONIGHT.

"The Dancing Girl" (Colonial)—An opulent compendium of entertainment from the New York Winter Garden, variously designated as a musical comedy and as a revue—which means, no doubt, that it started as the one and wound up as the other. Many shows do. The principal dignitaries of the cast are Miss Kitty Doner, who dances; Mlle. Conchita Piquer, a beauty from Spain; Miss Llora Hoffman, and Miss Jane Green, given to song; Lou Holtz and Bard and Pearl, cutups; Miss Gilda Leary, who acts, and Miss Edythe Baker, who plays the piano.

The Season's Best—and Worst

If you care to record your opinion of the theatrical offerings seen in Chicago during the season of 1922-'23, fill in the blanks below and mail this ballot to DRAMATIC EDITOR, THE TRIBUNE, CHICAGO. Film Buds Play Brainy Games

there will be a reunion of the Pickford family. Marilynn Miller will be met at San Bernardino by her husband, Jack Pickford. The rumor that Miss Miller will be co-starred in a picture with Jack is without foundation, as that young star has signed a new three year contract with Ziegfeld.

Francis Ford has sailed from San Francisco to penetrate the South sea isles of Mr. Frederick O'Brien. Mr. Ford will be unattended in his quest for adventure through Samoa, Java, the isles, and Hawaii, save for a servant who will be furnished to him by the different governments. A book of his travels is promised by Mr. Ford on his return.

There have been so many new arrivals and such a shakeup in the film industry, borrowing stars and changing contracts, that there has been but little entertaining. Small informal dinners is the usual form that hosts employ for friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Hector Turnbull gave a farewell dinner for Bert Lytell at the Beverly Hills hotel on Monday night. Mr. Lytell will go to Italy, where he will be co-starred with Barbara La Marr.

'Adrienne' Wins Broadway's O.K. as Summer Show

If the courts will attend to those managers who, grown daring, overstep the bounds of decency and good taste in the production of plays, there will be no need of censorship. The trouble heretofore has been that by one technicality and another these managers have escaped the law's correction and grown bolder with each production. The fate of "The God of Vengeance" will at least give them pause.

"Sun Up" Comes Into Own.

It is told of Lulu Vollmer, who sells tickets for the Theater Guild, that after she had finished a play called "Sun Up" she was afraid to let any of her guild friends know about it for fear they would think she had the "playwriting bug" and relieve her of her job.

She sent it around to the Broadway managers, however, and they all sent it back to her. All but Lee Kugel. Now it is being played at the Provincetown playhouse and is the nearest thing to a success they have had in Macdougal street since "The Hairy Ape" was staged there.

It is a curiously plaintive comedy of wartime in which the heroine is the Widow Cagle, 50 years old, and a defiant feudist. She has never been more than ten miles from the Carolina cabin in which she was born. She hates the law and rebels at authority. The civil war killed her "pap," the revenuers "got" her man, and now along comes the great war and drafts her son. She can't understand it.

What's the use of going to a place called France to fight when there's fighting enough at home? Why shouldn't her Rufe stay in Carolina and continue gunning for the men who killed his father? France, to her, is some place about forty miles the other side of Asheville. And the fighting in France is some sort of a continuation of the trouble with the Yanks.

Of course, if Rufe wants to go to France to fight, as he says, she will let him go. She isn't one to stand in his way. She doesn't even object to his getting married before he goes. If he is big enough to fight she reckons he is old enough to get married. But she doesn't want him to be "druv" into an engagement with the authorities or any one else through fear.

Son Killed in Action.

The day the boy goes away to war she sits calmly smoking her corncob pipe before the grate. There is no show of sentiment. She does not rise to embrace him, and kissin' is not at all in her line. But after he's gone and she stands in the doorway shading her eyes to watch him down the trail, her lower jaw trembles a little and the pipe falls to the floor.

Months after a letter somes. The old lady can't read, but she knows it must be from her son. She saves it until one of the readin' neighbors can tell her what's in it. It is a notification from the government that her boy had been killed in action. The shock staggers her, but only for a moment. Calmly, philosophically, she goes back to her pipe and her meditations. But her soul is the more embittered against the law that has again robbed her of her kin.

She has been helping a deserter from one of the military camps elude the sheriff. Now, in the midst of her misery, she learns that he is the son of the revenuer who killed her husband. Here is sweet revenge thrust into her hand.

Overcomes Spirit of Hate.

The law of the feud gives her the right to kill this boy and even the score. She gets her gun and summons her guest from his hiding place, but as she raises it to fire the spirit of her dead son whispers to her. It is hate, says son, that has caused all the wars and all the feuds the world has known. It is love that the world must learn about. Only love can save any of us. Which induces the old feudist to put aside her gun and prepare to spend the rest of her days in peace.

Pretty arbitrary and a little oversweet, this ending. But the audiences have not seemed to mind particularly. Lucille La Verne gives a striking performance as the Widow Cagle, a perfect characterization so far as we know the type.

Miss La Verne, incidentally, has been going through her scrapbooks and counting up her record. On Wednesday night of this week, she figures, she will have played 10,000 performances since first she went on the stage thirty-five years ago. And she can't remember that she was ever late to a rehearsal or that she ever missed a performance through illness. Which indicates either an amazing record or a bad memory. Miss La Verne you probably recall in several of her southern rôles, colored and white. She is a fine character actress within the range of her Tennessee limitations of accent. Her biggest success was as the loyal housekeeper in "Clarice," with William Gillette, fifteen or eighteen years ago.

Farces of Little Strength.

There were two farces produced last week, but neither amounted to much. One is called "Not So Fast," which was tried in the west as "The Blimp." Then Herbert Corthell or some other rotund comedian represented the globular hero. Fat men, however, are not, in the estimation of most audiences, at all romantic. This one was not. Comic, yes.

But as a lover, as a sad-eyed guardian from Kentucky bent on saving a pretty ward's inheritance, not at all moving. So they whittled "The Blimp" down to the waistline measure of Taylor Holmes. Now the play has considerable story value. Holmes is an agreeable comedian, with better than the average comedian's intelligence. Playing opposite him is Ann Davis, a modest and attractive leading woman, and romping through the lighter comedy is Marian Mears, a lively soubrette of recent discovery.

The other farce is called "Cold Feet," and is likely to be calling for hot water bottles before the summer is well started. May Vokes is helping to sustain it at the moment. She offers her usual grotesque maid-servant, saving tips, on this occasion, to have her face lifted, straightened, and otherwise made possible for the movies. The story of "Cold Feet" has to do with the adventure of a young physician who gives a bride chloral by mistake and is forced to spend the rest of the evening parking her here and there when she goes to sleep. Glenn Anders is playing the doctor, and Annette Bade, a blonde beauty who used to decorate the dance floor of the Century roof in the "Midnight Frolic" days, is the heroine.

Vaudeville Wit

RIALTO.

"Your brother is certainly taking on flesh rapidly."

"Yes, he eloped with a two hundred pound widow today."

"I hear that the babies in Chicago are about to start a riot."

"That's nonsense."

"Well, anyhow, they are up in arms."

"What do men mean when they speak of common stock?"

"Home brew."

"Well, then, what is the meaning of preferred stock?"

"The other man's."

"My husband is in bed today, and I've sent for the doctor."

"Is he as sick as that?"

"No, but he's just dying for a drink."

"I got a letter from my brother at college, and he says he's got a beautiful lamp from boxing."

"O, I just knew he'd win something in his games. He's such a wonderful athlete."

"What sort of girls make the best show girls?"

"Those who have the most to show, of course."

Thrills, Shivers, Quakes, in This Railroad Movie

May had nothing particularly notable, but a few good ones, which follow as a list:

"TRAILING AFRICAN WILD ANIMALS" would be my first choice. It is perfect of its kind, and given an interest in the jungle to start with, is a 100 per cent film.

"THE RUSTLE OF SILK" deserves about 85 per cent. The full 25 apiece is given for direction and photography and cast, with 15 per cent off for falseness of story.

"BAYU" is about 75 per cent, but that is high—is it not? It has beautiful photography and a great deal of "atmosphere," which raises it above the rank and file.

"THE GIRL OF THE GOLDEN WEST" is one of the best because it is valuable as a national tradition—an historical and literary vignette of the gold rush.

"BRASS" is 90 per cent — 25 for story, 25 for cast, 25 for direction, and 15 for photography. It is my second choice of the month.

"A KNIGHT THAT FAILED," in the "Fighting Blood" series, is 100 per cent, being far above the average.

CLOSEUPS

The title of Mary Pickford's new play, it is said, was arrived at by contest among the employés of the Pickford-Fairbanks-United Artists' association, reversing the order which usually bars all employés of an organization from such a competition. The title will be "The Street Singer."

J. A. Brehany and William McStay are interested in producing a "Frate Sole," an Italian presentation in picture form of grand opera with a score by Luigi Mancinelli, which they expect to have ready sometime in June. It will be given first in Los Angeles and is the first attempt of its kind ever made on this continent.

The first of the two reel comedies based upon Ring Lardner's "You Know Me, Al" stories, is said to be in the hands of producers now and may be released soon.

At a sale of saddle horses in Kansas City last week the Famous Players-Lasky company acquired a pair of horses for $3,000 apiece which will be used in the production of "Pharaoh's Chariot." The horses are Black Ball and Midnight Rex. Josie Sedgewick is to be Larry Semon's leading woman in his next Vitagraph comedy.

Theodore Roberts has been three months in vaudeville and now is going back to pictures for a rest. He says that the films are mere play compared to the spoken drama, with its confining hours and continual nervous strain.

Barbara La Marr and her new husband, Jack Dougherty, will shortly go to Europe, as Miss La Marr's new picture will be filmed abroad.

A new arrival in Hollywood is a fascinating countrywoman of Pola Negri, who will soon make her debut under the personal supervision of William Earle.

Bathing in clean sparkling running water just makes you feel good all over. It's a luxury—thanks to Kenney Showers—available to everyone—every morning. Now, today—this afternoon—a shower can be had in your home, in any bathroom.

There's no reason why you shouldn't equip your bathroom with a Kenney Shower; there's every reason why you should.

The SIX BIG Reasons:

1. No overhead deluge. No wet hair. The several needle streams converge and hug the body.
2. No unsightly, cold, clammy curtain. No pools of water on the floor
3. If you want to fill the tub, a valve turns off the shower.
4. Portable models—fit any tub. You can attach or detach in five minutes.
5. Stationary models for permanent installation. Ask your architect to specify and your plumber to install.
6. All models brass, nickel plated. No rubber hose.

Take home a portable model today—$8—attach it yourself—enjoy it tonight.

Plumbers, hardware and house furnishing dealers listed below will be glad to show you the portable models Niagara and Palm Beach; and your plumber will also show and explain the installation of a stationary model—Congress or De Luxe.

Movie Questions and the Answers; Ask Me! Ask Me!

DEAR DOROTHY: Submit your manuscripts to some motion picture magazine with address plainly typewritten and inclosing stamps for return. Don't be discouraged if they come back "until seventy times seven." It takes lots of grit to break into the "litry" world. Lots of the fans would be glad just to know the moving picture actress and actor you do without trying to make copy out of them, but more power to you, say I. I hope you succeed.

"Will you please print a picture of Joseph Schenck, Norma Talmadge's husband, in the Sunday rotogravure section? Hoping to see this picture soon and good luck to your corner, I remain, A MOVIE FAN."

Dear Fan: I am afraid I cannot comply with your request until the gentleman in question goes into the movies. He is not as ornamental as his wife and sisters-in-law. Sorry to disappoint you.

Dear Friend: Will you, please, or can you, tell me Miss Dorothy Dalton's address, and where Florence Reed is appearing on the living stage? Miss Reed is a personal friend of mine; Miss Dalton I adore: she is my favorite.

NORMAN.

Dear Norman: Address Dorothy Dalton in care Lasky studios, Hollywood, Cal. I am sorry I cannot tell you where Miss Reed is playing at present, but a letter to her addressed to the Dramatic Mirror, Zit's Weekly, or some other theatrical paper will reach her eventually, I am sure, if you will put "Please forward" on the envelope. Miss D. is attractive, to be sure, but "adore" is a big word for a little boy. Call again.

THE KICK KORNER

Its Object—Objection

Dear Miss Tinée: I would like to send in this kick in answer to "A. D. G." of May 20 against Thomas Meighan. "Monotonous," is he? And as for knowing how his part will be put through—yes, we know that it will be put through in just the best manner possible. "No personal magnetism!" Well, just let me say this much—I go to see every picture starring Mr. Meighan that comes anywhere near where I can get to it. And, furthermore, I'm not the only one. "A. D. G.," if that isn't personal magnetism what in the world is it then?

"No expression!" I'd just like a talk with "A. D. G." personally, whoever he or she may be! I suppose he or she has something to say against Wallace Reid, too. The screen lost one of its greatest and best actors when Wallie Reid passed on. No one can take his place in the movies. You have quite a bit of spunk, "A. D. G.," to send in a kick like that, because you are the only person I know of who has anything against our Tom, except that we don't see him often enough. Male and female alike admire him.

E. S.

You have quite a bit of spunk yourself, dear E. S., and I hope you keep it when you grow older, because you may need it, as we all are apt to do at times. It's a great thing to be sincere. Whether you like Howard Chandler Christy or Zoualaga stick up for it. The main thing is not to pretend.

Mae Tinée: A lot of us think it's a thundering shame we don't hear more about Richard Dix. If he isn't a darling, who is? Go on with your "virile" Thomas Meighan. He's a stick! Has one expression—that of being bored. While Richard's face is full of expression and you can see he feels what he is expressing. Can't you tell us all about Richard? Is he married, and, for heaven's sake, who is the lucky female? Also, what has become of Rodolf? There is an actor who has been treated like a dog. In place of boosting somebody who really can act (if they give him decent material) they hound him until he disappears out of sheer mortification. And they laud to the skies somebody like Douglas Fairbanks. All he can do is run up a tree or over a building. He can't act. Also we are convinced that D. W. Griffith is a nut. We have suspected it for some time, but "One Exciting Night" settled it. His silly, chattering, ogling heroine runs around in circles. What's the matter with him?

THE DEADLY DRAGOONS.

Dear Deadly Dragoons: The letter which came some while ago was meant for Miss Tinée and therefore for me as her substitute. I don't know how it was overlooked so long. For the delay I apologize. For the expurgation I do not. However—first, I won't tell you anything about Richard Dix in private life. Not that I know anything scandalous. But unless you insist I would rather you kept him for the hero instead of marrying him to any human female, no matter how favored she is. We do not all share your interest in Rodolph Valentino. I think he is a fair actor and not unpresentable looking, but that is all, and last Sunday, as you probably saw, there were other females who thought less of him than I. "One Exciting Night," my dear children, was SATIRE, the greatest force for good in the world. Do go and see it again. You are welcome.

Ravinia Plans Give Promise of Finest Season

of sopranos. Miss Easton's interpretation of the rôle at the Metropolitan Opera company has caused her to be rated as the greatest Elsa of the present day. Morgan Kingston, long a favorite with the Metropolitan and Ravinia companies, will be heard as Lohengrin, a rôle in which he has many times demonstrated his exceptional worth. Miss Easton and Mr. Kingston sing "Lohengrin" in both German and English and during the course of the season this Wagnerian opera will be heard in both of these languages. Others to be heard at the first "Lohengrin" performance are Vicente Ballester, Desiré Defrere or Mark Oster, Ina Bourskaya or Marion Telva. Mr. Hasselmans will conduct.

There is perhaps no opera singer heard in Chicago who is more popular than Tito Schipa of the Chicago Opera, who will make his debut as a member of the Ravinia forces this season. Mr. Schipa will be heard for the first time at Ravinia in a gala performance of "La Traviata" to be given on Tuesday evening of the first week. This is one of Mr. Schipa's favorite operas, and in his extensive répertoire there is no rôle to which he does greater justice than that of Alfredo in this melodious and heart appealing Verdi work. Graziella Pareto, the Spanish coloratura, who was a prime favorite at Ravinia last season; Giuseppe Danise, one of the greatest of all Germonts, and others will be heard at this performance.

A feature interesting from several points of view is being emphasized this season. It is that the present Ravinia company is prepared to repeat nearly all of its répertoire of thirty-three operas with entire changes of cast. Many rôles have the opportunity for wide varieties of interpretation, and these varieties will be presented through the change. It is also quite probable that each artist will be striving to outdo his predecessors and successors in each part and thereby the audiences will be insured performances that will be not only varying in kind but at the top pitch in degree.

Success counts. Ravinia has made itself known. This season looks as though it will be the most important from the artistic standpoint that Ravinia has ever known. Even now letters have begun to pour in from cities all over the country written by music lovers who expect to attend the performances this summer.

Russ Chorus Seeks U. S. Music.

The Ukrainian National chorus, now in South America, is coming back next season with a campaign on foot to make itself international in scope. Its conductor, Alexander Koshetz, desires to make a comprehensive research into the folk songs of the United States, arrange them for the chorus, and have them sung in future American concerts. Max Rabinoff, the manager of the organization, writes thus of the movement:

"In every important country of Europe a group of musical investigators has been at work for years collecting folk music for the benefit of their composers, but in the United States there is no national organization to coöperate with our native musicians. Hence our composers are accustomed to seek inspiration abroad. It seems to me that every patriotic American ought to be interested in preserving the folk music of the United States, since the only solid basis for a national school of music lies in folk songs."

That there is, or has been, plenty of folk music in this part of the country is unquestioned. That it is known to fewer people every year, and at that chiefly by word of mouth, is equally true. A national society of American folk music is now being formed in the east to make a careful research into the subject throughout the country. Local committees, especially one for the middle west, are desired. More particularly information about old songs that belong particularly to this district is appealed for.

As Mr. Koshetz will do all the arranging, nothing more than the words and the tunes are necessary. The editor of this department will be glad to serve as a communicating medium between whoever may have such material in his possession and the Ukrainian chorus management.

Here and There in Music.

The combined music organizations of Dvorak, Eckhart, Holstein, Pulaski, Shedd, and Stanford parks will present an annual music festival at the Municipal pier auditorium this afternoon. The program promises choral music with and without orchestral accompaniment, orchestral numbers, children's choruses, vocal solos, cornet solos, and an address by L. R. Decker. The musical directors will be Le Roy R. Decker, Lester W. Groom, Adolph Erst, Sherman Shoup, and Mrs. M. Trubeck.

The musical sororities are taking the principal part of what activity is left in concert circles. An event called an Inter Musical sorority program—the grammar is not guaranteed—will be given by Mu Phi Epsilon, Sigma Alpha Iota, and Phi Beta this afternoon at Fine Arts recital hall, with Margaret Farr, pianist, and Nesta Smith, violinist, representing Mu Phi Epsilon. Monica Graham Stults, soprano, will represent Sigma Alpha Iota. It is the first of a series to be given under the direction of the Inter Musical Sorority council. Another item tells that Luella Meluis, coloratura soprano, will appear at the Evanston Woman's club auditorium on Tuesday night, and that the proceeds of the affair will be devoted to a fund for building a home for Sigma Alpha Iota.

Gustav Holst's one act opera, "A Perfect Fool," received its first performance at the opening of the Covent Garden season in London a few nights ago. Reviews of the piece indicate that it is a setting of the old tale of the princess who refuses many rich and talented suitors and finally chooses the "perfect fool" who is not particularly good looking and can do nothing. A point is made of the ballet which precedes the actual opera, and also a bit of musical satire wherein one of the suitors, a would-be singer, indulges in parodies of the operatic styles of Italy, Germany, and France.

Mrs. F. S. Coolidge, former Chicagoan and the moving force of the annual Berkshire chamber music festival at Pittsfield, Mass., has been in Rome to present the principal works that have received special notice at past festivals. Among them were Malipiero's "Rispetti e Strombotti," Bloch's suite for viola, Waldo Warner's trio, Leo Sowerby's trio for piano, flute, and violin, Leo Weiner's quartet, and Rebecca Clarke's trio.

The Calumet High school glee clubs will give a concert at the Chicago Normal college on Friday night. The cantata, "The Wreck of the Hesperus," and songs and dances by the Merry Middies are announced. Leading parts will be taken by Raymond Middleton, Mary Nixon, and Sidney Anderson, who are pupils, and by Ralph Forsyth, who is an alumnus.

Mme. Bass Ami, soprano, has come to town with the claim that she can sing more continuously than any other singer in the world, and with a challenge to any and all claimants to sustain her challenge. No holds—beg pardon—no methods are barred. She sang on a straightaway course for twenty-seven hours in Memphis, played most of her own accompaniments, and has newspaper clippings to prove it. "It's all in breath control, of which I have the secret," she says. "I have a pupil who has been with me for two years and is better than Galli-Curci." In the meantime Mme. Ami is ready to meet all comers, amateur or professional, operatic or concert, in what she declines to call a melodious marathon. She is at the Granville hotel.

John McCormack has been singing with the Philharmonic orchestra in Berlin under Bruno Walter, and has greatly pleased a writer for Die Signale, whose name, Prof. Max Chop, is a bit of a symphonic poem in itself. Here, he says, is a master of song, a full blooded musician, an artist of the highest rank, who has a really wonderful voice and gains effects with it, especially in the middle register, of radiant beauty. The secret of legato, of the great line, is here revealed in an amazing manner, and there is nothing calculated for exterior effect, but everything is gained from the music itself and with the greatest naturalness. A rondo by Mozart was genuine in style and finely wrought. The power and endurance of his interpretation reached moving grandeur in the rarely sung aria from Beethoven's "Mount of Olives." Mr. McCormack also sang in Paris, and netted 80,000 francs for the benefit of the devastated regions.

IN BENEFIT

LUELLA MELUIS.
[Apeda Photo.]

A highly developed coloratura soprano and a former Chicagoan, Mme. Meluis will sing at the Evanston Woman's club auditorium on Tuesday night for the benefit of the building of Sigma Alpha Iota sorority.

HOW to REDUCE a DOUBLE CHIN

The Davis Chin Strap (worn while asleep) is the ideal, sensible, healthful way to reduce double chin.

It fits snugly around the lower portion of the face—gently supporting the relaxed facial muscles. The Davis Chin Strap also corrects drooping mouth corners. The circular non-slip headpiece is an exclusive feature of the Davis Chin Strap. For size measure over crown of head and point of chin.

Congregational Churches Launch Campaign Today

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

IN all Congregational churches of the Chicago association today the fortieth anniversary loan fund campaign for $250,000 will be launched, not by taking of subscriptions but by explanation of what the fund is and what it will accomplish.

Decision to make the campaign was voted at a largely attended banquet at the Auditorium hotel last December. It is hoped that the amount will be fully raised by December next. The plan is to loan to needy church building projects $50,000 a year for five years. By the time the last loan is made the churches who have been beneficiaries of the first year's loan will have returned the amount and the returned $50,000 will be available for the use of other projects.

"The value of this revolving plan," according to the statement of Dr. J. R. Nichols, superintendent of the Chicago Congregational Missionary and Extension society, "is not in its being a charity or a gift, but a commercial convenience enabling churches to obtain cash promptly and on terms they can meet. The Bryn Mawr church ten years ago was helped by a loan of $3,000 which it has repaid and is now in a campaign itself for a $300,000 church plant. Grand Avenue church with a Sunday school enrollment of over 1,000, a church membership of 816 and property valued at $100,000, was helped by the missionary society by grants of $12,200. Other churches could be named as equally worthy examples of wise investments."

The anniversary exercises and spring convocation of Garrett Biblical institute, Evanston, the theological school in affiliation with Northwestern university, will be held today, tomorrow, and Tuesday. The Rev. Prof. William D. Schermerhorn, '04, will preach the baccalaureate sermon today at 10:30 in the First Methodist Episcopal church, Evanston. Tomorrow at First church the alumni business meeting will be held at 10 a. m. and a joint meeting of the alumni association and the Chicago Methodist ministers' meeting at 2:30 with an address by Bishop Homer C. Stuntz, '84. President Charles M. Stuart's reception will follow at 4:30 to 6 at Memorial hall, and at 6:30 the alumni banquet will be held at First church. The commencement will be held at Memorial hall on Tuesday at 2:30, the speaker being the Rev. Don S. Colt, D. D., '91, Baltimore. Bishop Thomas Nicholson, '92, is president of the alumni association.

Union Theological college began its seventh commencement exercises last evening with a banquet at the Elm tearooms. This evening at 7:45 the baccalaureate sermon will be preached in the New First Congregational church, Ashland and Washington boulevards, by the Rev. Gilbert Wilson, D. D. Graduating exercises will be held tomorrow evening in Carpenter hall, 50 North Ashland boulevard, at 8 o'clock. Dr. W. E. Barton will preside; President J. Alexander Jenkins will present the diplomas and the Rev. C. A. Osborne will give the salutation. Graduates will speak.

THE REV. RALPH A. JENSEN.

The Rev. Ralph A. Jensen will preach today his initial sermons as pastor of the Second Baptist church, Lincoln street and Jackson boulevard. He succeeds the Rev. J. J. Ross, who resigned some months ago to become a pastor in Boston. The Second Baptist church is one of the most widely known churches of the denomination and is especially significant because of its location near one of the largest student centers connected with hospitals and medical colleges. The Rev. Mr. Jensen was born in Chicago, the son of the Rev. Julius A. Jensen, former pastor of the First Danish Baptist chuch. His education was obtained by attending the Chicago public schools, Central college, Pella, Ia.; the University of Chicago, and the Chicago College of Law. He is also a graduate of the Southern Baptist theological seminary at Louisville, Ky. He has held two pastorates at Osceola, Neb., and Mankato, Minn., from which he comes to Chicago. He served in the war as building secretary and religious work director at Camp Cody, N. M.

A pontifical high mass sung this morning by the Rt. Rev. Bishop E. F. Hoban in the presence of the Most Rev. Archbishop Mundelein, will mark the close of the double silver jubilee of the organization of Presentation parish, Springfield avenue and Lexington street, and of the pastorate of the Rev. James J. Jennings. The Rt. Rev. Bishop P. J. Muldoon of Rockford will preach. Mayor William E. Dever and many visiting clergymen have promised to be present. The parish began with eighty-five families and a church attendance of 169. Today it has 1,368 families and an attendance of 6,200 persons. The present property is appraised at $1,190,000, with an educational fund of $175,000. The Rev. Fr. Jennings, in addition to his regular parish work, has exerted a wide influence as a member of the archdiocesan school board.

The Rev. Frank Dyer of Los Angeles, formerly of Chicago, is seeking to raise funds for the erection of a memorial to the late Dr. Frank Gunsaulus in connection with the new Wilshire Congregational church of Los Angeles. The memorial will be one of the three units of the new church, to be known as "Gunsaulus hall," and will cost $50,000. John C. Shaffer of Evanston, a Methodist, contributed the first $1,000. The Gunsaulus family is coöperating in the movement.

The diamond jubilee of St. Mary's college, Kansas, beginning next Sunday, will be signalized by the dedication of a memorial arch to Lieut. William T. Fitzsimmons, the first American army officer killed in the World war. The governor and both United States senators of Kansas will be present at the unveiling. President Harding has sent a note of appreciation to be read. Chicago has an active Chicago alumni association of St. Mary's, Charles A. Comiskey of White Sox fame, being one of the number. President William H. Agnew of Loyola university, Chicago, will receive the degree of LL. D. at the commencement exercises which closes the diamond jubilee week on Wednesday, June 13. The memorial arch will be dedicated on Monday, June 11. The jubilee will mark the conclusion of a campaign for $750,000 for new buildings and development.

A new playground is being built at St. Mary's (Episcopal) Home for Children at 2822 West Jackson boulevard. A benefit for the purpose of providing the necessary equipment for the playground will be given the afternoon and evening of June 16 at the home by the junior players of the Grace Hickox studio, who will render three Stuart Walker plays.

Church advertising will be one of the features of the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, which begins today in Atlantic City, N. J., continuing to Thursday. Walter R. Mee, executive secretary of the Chicago Church Federation, and A. D. Brush, a member of the committee on publicity, have arranged an exhibit of church advertising which Mr. Brush will take to the convention. Mr. Brush will speak on the subject "What Our Exhibit Teaches." Other speakers from Chicago will be W. Frank McClure, "The Advertising Man's Laboratory," and the Rev. J. T. Brabner Smith, chairman of the commission on church publicity of the Church federation, on "The Church and the Newspaper."

The sixtieth anniversary of the organization of Grace Methodist Episcopal church, Locust and North La Salle streets, will be celebrated next Friday evening at 6:30 with a dinner and next Sunday with special sermons. The church is listed in the $3,500,000 drive of all Rock River conference for $100,000 with which to erect a parish house and dormitories. The original church out of which Grace grew was formed in the Indiana street chapel seventy-six years ago. The building now in use was erected immediately following the Chicago fire of 1871, which destroyed the building then standing. Among the speakers at the anniversary dinner will be Dr. Channing W. Barrett, John C. Shaffer, Henry S. Henschen, and the pastor, the Rev. Raymond L. Semans. Next Sunday morning Dr. Charles E. Guthrie, general secretary of the Epworth league, will preach and in the evening Dr. John Thompson, a former pastor, will preach.

A Bible conference will be held in a tent at South Taylor avenue and Harrison street, Oak Park, beginning today at 3 o'clock. Dr. A. C. Gaebelein will speak this afternoon and every evening until next Friday. Ministers who will follow will be Dr. W. B. Riley, Dr. A. H. Carter, Dr. J. C. Massee, Dr. A. B. Winchester, and Dr. L. W. Munhall.

Colorado Springs
Manitou and the Pikes Peak Region

But a Few Hours to the Foot of Colorado Moutains

Whether you motor out or come by one of the comfortable fast trains, the Colorado Mountains are but a few hours away from your home.

Then within twenty minutes from your hotel or room in Colorado Springs you can be right in the mountains themselves. At Manitou mountain peaks tower on every side.

Sound, refreshing sleep—undisturbed by any nocturnal pests—is yours every night.

You can golf, motor, play tennis, hike, climb—do the things you like to do—with a new thrill in pine-spiced air under turquoise skies.

This Pikes Peak Region is a natural gateway to hundreds of mountain streams where trout wait for the leap in clear, cool pools of tumbling streams.

You, the children—all the family—will have found a new meaning to a restful, upbuilding kind of a vacation with the never-ending lure of the mountains as its setting.

The Chamber of Commerce will be glad to give you any detailed information.

Highlands of Ontario

If you answer this appeal we can tell you of a summer resort very different and far better than any you have ever known. We speak of the HIGHLANDS of ONTARIO, north of Toronto, 1,000 to 2,000 feet above sea level, where hay fever is unknown and perfumed breezes emerging from great forests sweep across innumerable lakes.

There is no similarity between this thrilling land of happiness and the commonplace domestic resort. Is it not time you made a distinct change? Comparatively speaking the forests are virgin, the lakes not "fished to death," nor are there too many big hotels, boarding houses and grasping trading communities. It is the land so frequently and delightfully pictured upon the silver screen—lakes, islands, portages, romance, Indian guides, trappers and canoes. "Blessed change" does not half express the total difference between the never-to-be forgotten days at Muskoka Lakes, Lake of Bays, Algonquin Park (nearest great governmental park to Chicago), Timagami, Nipissing, French River and 30,000 Islands of Georgian Bay and what you may have been used to year after year. Fortunately a complete guide book has been prepared for free distribution. It's yours for the asking. It's not too early to plan. Apply to

7 Days of Wonderful Cruising—
Chicago-Buffalo Line—Georgian Bay Route

When friends ask—"where did you go for your vacation?" you'll take real pride in answering "I went to Buffalo and back on one of the finest boats on the Great Lakes, enjoyed so many wonderful sights and visited so many places, Mackinac Island, Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo—and a whole day at Niagara Falls. Cruised on Lakes Michigan, Huron, St. Claire, Erie and among the 30,000 islands of Georgian Bay. Some trip, I'll say—over 2,000 miles—beautiful scenery all the way, every comfort and luxury and wonderful meals. Had a great time—everybody friendly—was introduced to so many nice people on the boat by the social hostess, enjoyed the dancing, music, entertainments, games, etc. Those cool, invigorating lake breezes put new life into me—felt like a new person when I got back home." YOU can start on a similar vacation trip any Tuesday or Saturday, leaving Chicago at 3:30 P. M. Central Standard time, on one of

The place you decide to go for your summer vacation should be selected with the same care you would give an important investment, for a summer vacation is after all an investment in Happiness, Good Health and Recreation.

IT COSTS as little (or less) to travel to the Philippines as it does to live in a large hotel. If you are seeking an ocean trip, investigate this one! Few people appreciate the really wonderful travel opportunity that a trip to the Philippines—our country—represents, on one of the palatial ships of the American fleet from Seattle!

And the expense is amazingly low!

Egypt's Most Enduring Gift

—the balmy oils of palm and olive

The recent opening of King Tut's tomb has focused public interest on ancient Egypt.

Women's fashions feature Egyptian ornaments and design. Everything is popular if it is only Egyptian.

But while this interest and popularity are transient, and will quickly pass, one great Egyptian discovery is of everlasting importance.

The value of palm and olive oils as cleansing beautifiers was learned 3000 years ago. And in all the centuries that have passed the world has found nothing better.

So while Egyptian fashions may come and go, Egypt's beauty secrets will live on. Cleopatra's secret of youth is now embodied in the smooth, creamy lather of Palmolive Soap.

How it beautifies

By cleansing the tiny skin pores of all clogging accumulations which enlarge and irritate them. Yet this cleansing is so gentle and so soothing that it leaves your complexion softened and refreshed.

Women who use Palmolive never complain of dryness or irritation, and many don't even use cold cream. This is because palm and olive oils impart their cosmetic qualities to the profuse, fragrant Palmolive lather.

Massage it carefully into your skin—don't be afraid to be thorough. Dirt, oil and perspiration must be dissolved and washed away. Then use your favorite cold cream, powder or rouge, for most cosmetics are harmless when applied to a clean skin.

Bedtime is the best time for thorough cleansing, that your skin may be refreshed during sleep. In the morning stimulating rinsing is sufficient to produce radiant, rosy freshness.

Palm and olive oils —nothing else—give nature's green color to Palmolive Soap

MANY forces contended last Tuesday for the privilege of providing entertainment for Chicago's "beau monde." The sportively gay element attended the Leonard-Mitchell boxing match at Dexter Park pavilion, given especially under auspices of the Near West Side Boys' club. The energetically gay went to the Pirates' ball which the Chicago Yacht club gave at the Congress hotel and where there was dancing until a late hour. The musically gay (and one can be musically gay as well as anything else gay) attended the thirty-second great North Shore Music Festival which Evanston annually arranges under the supervision of Dean Lutkin of the Northwestern university. The Patten gymnasium holds over 4,000 people and was crowded at each of the seven concerts given.

It is an impressive spectacle to see a large and attentive throng listening intelligently to high class composition. The nonmusical listener wonders what mysterious thoughts are going on in all those absorbed and concentrated brains, what these intricate combinations of sound mean to the initiated, and feels rather left out in the cold and as if he (in this case, she) were groping in darkness and ignorance.

The hall was beautifully decorated and the imagination of the benighted one entertained itself by projecting itself through the garlands of flowers into the dense, dark depths of the jungle of greenery at the back of the huge stage. Ensconced there, the imagination fancied that the clamor of all those many instruments, coming through that tropical drapery, was composed of the manifold voices of nature, not the creation and work of man. But Cesar Franck's symphony did not summon up the primeval nor respond to the call for the romantic. It struck the benighted one as being an intellectual triumph, one that led the listener up to heights where the air was too rare for the common mortal and once more the realization came that there was a chasm both deep and wide between the enjoyment of the genuinely musical and the mere tyro, the unhappy mortal who loves music without having any intelligent understanding of it.

Special Treat in Store.

For the musical the concert announced for Saturday afternoon, June 16, on the Italian terrace of Mrs. Daniel H. Burnham's residence at Evanston will be a special treat. It will be given by that section of the Chicago Symphony orchestra which is known as the "Little Symphony orchestra." The affair is being gotten up by the women's board of the Northwestern University settlement to help raise money for that excellent institution. Even the unmusical will find more than their usual portion of enjoyment at this al fresco concert, as the setting is one of the most delightful open air effects on the north shore. It was an artistic achievement of the late Daniel H. Burnham.

The Burnham residence, an old gray stone mansion, stands with its back to Forest avenue, and with the lake shore nearly two blocks to the east of it. The grounds cover the intervening space with groves and gardens One approaches the terrace through shady woods and flowering inclosures. One of the features is a rose embowered pergola nearly a block long through which lies the way to the Italian terrace.

This terrace overhangs the lake just as in Italy the terraces of those lovely villas at Posilipo, just outside of Naples, overhang the Bay of Naples. To be sure, there is no Vesuvius smoking in the distance, no curving shore line of rose tinted houses, and no lavender pink mountains melting into the blue of an Italian sky, but there is a wide sweep of iridescent Lake Michigan with its suggestion of infinite distance as its horizon loses itself in the faintly smoky eastern skies. It is a soothing, restful, and lovely outlook and, combined with the music of this delightful "Little Symphony," makes an ideal setting for an afternoon's pleasure.

Apropos of matters musical, the report of the annual meeting at the Casino on Wednesday, May 23, of that excellent organization, the Friends of Opera, lies on my desk. This association of lovers of operatic music was formed some years ago to promote and widen the interest in this delightful and stimulating form of music. Its honorary chairman is Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, who, with Harold McCormick, has in the twelve years that we have had opera in Chicago given millions to make this opera company possible. Mrs. Arthur Meeker is chairman, the first, second, third and fourth vice chairman are the Mesdames Julius Rosenwald, John Alden Carpenter, John Borden and Jacob Baur. Mrs. John H. Winterbotham is corresponding secretary, with Miss Carolyn Hazard as assistant secretary. Miss Mary Waller is recording secretary. The society has a membership of about 700 men and women. Its most important function is to help the opera company in the sale of boxes and seats. Its aim is also to increase among Chicagoites an interest in and an understanding of the importance of grand opera as a civic possession which should be supported by a widespread sense of individual responsibility. It likewise gives its members lectures during the season on the various operas produced by the company, and also one or two entertainments to which operatic artists from the company are invited. This helps form a personal connection between the stars and the world on which they shine.

Assist Music Students.

Mrs. William H. Scriven, who heads the musical students' service committee, a sub-committee of the F. O. O., gives an interesting report as to what has been done this last winter to put opera within reach of the music students in Chicago. The F. O. O., with special subscriptions from its members, bought a box and several seats for the season. These were distributed to the various musical schools in the city and by them awarded to the most deserving students. Also, some of the clubs, like the Three Arts club, the several Eleanor clubs, the Y. W. C. A., Casa Maria and Hull House were given seats when unused subscription seats were turned in. The great number of enthusiastic and grateful letters received from those to whom these seats were given testified to the value of this especial department of the F. O. O.'s activities.

Mrs. Baur's box sale committee (I call it hers as she is chairman and does so much of the hardest kind of work in this committee) has toiled early and late to sell boxes. There are in all 224 boxes to be disposed of. Of these 95½ have been taken under two or three year contracts. This committee has sold over 37 new boxes, if all the contracts promised are signed and returned. There are also nearly 19 probable boxes which will be sold, some of them renewals and others promised, but situation of boxes not decided on, which leaves 72 boxes yet to be sold. To one not familiar with the intricacies and difficulties of selling opera boxes this may not seem a very encouraging report, but as a matter of fact it is a better showing than has been made for many years and, with five months still before them in which to work and with a permanent secretary, Miss A. M. Barkman, "on the job" all summer at the Auditorium (Harrison 1240), the committee hopes to sell almost all of them before the opera opens in November. An exceptionally fine season is promised for next winter by Mr. Insull and the executive committee, with many French and German operas, as well as the delightful Italian operas in which our Civic opera has made such a name for itself.

Just over the immediate horizon Ravinia's open air opera is rising like a radiant star of promise. Have you noticed, O, traveler, on that branch of the Northwestern railway which carries passengers from Chicago to Milwaukee, the lovely white lilacs which are stretching their fragrant heads out through the high fence that surrounds Ravinia park? They look as if they were seeking to greet the crowds that will in a few weeks gather there to welcome the twelfth season of opera there. By that time the lilacs will be but a memory, but the petunias and other flowers will be out in full force.

Popular with Men.

It has been remarked by Ravinia "fans" that it is probably the only grand opera in the world, certainly the only one in this country, where the men equal, if they do not outnumber, the women. It makes even Wagner endurable to the nonmusical male if he can smoke his cigar and sit in unmolested and delicious twilight, while summer breezes fan his brows and night moths flutter about overhead, occasionally invading the stage itself and adding a poetic touch to "Le Chemineau" or other out of doors scenes.

The entire North Shore is planning to turn out the opening evening, June 23. First choice as to seats is to be reserved to guarantors that night. Already applications are pouring in.

It won't be the fault of Samuel Insull and Louis Eckstein if Chicagoans do not in time become enthusiastic fanatics on the subject of grand opera, clamoring for it wherever they go and even conversing intelligently as to whether this or that opera or artist is the better. At present there is an undercurrent of protest and reluctance on the part of many when approached on the subject of supporting and appreciating our two extra fine opera companies. Those who are molesting the unintelligent apathy and stupor of the average so-called intelligentsia are only asking them to widen their capacity for enjoyment and to give themselves the opportunity to become a little more cultivated and intelligent. The habit of attending operas and concerts in time engenders a genuine love for and understanding of music, just as the habit of eating well cooked food served at attractive tables lifts hunger from being a purely animal appetite to being an occasion for charming companionship and good manners. It's a long, slow climb from the ooze whence we came and high class music is one of the agencies which lifts us up. This is the opinion of a hopelessly unmusical mortal who, from infinite boredom when undergoing music, has slowly come to a realization that life without it would be unendurable.

An American Noblewoman.

Will this little story bring a lump in your throat, such a lump as comes on hearing of a superfine action? It is told of Mrs. Howard Spaulding (once known as the $30,000,000 bride). When she was in Paris a few months ago she was approached by a Russian woman of excellent family, who asked her to buy a fine string of pearls belonging to one of the hapless Russian refugees, a member of the highest nobility. Mrs. Spaulding asked whose the pearls were, but the go-between said that the would-be seller wished to have her name kept secret.

The pearls were brought to Mrs. Spaulding, who took them to an authority on pearls for examination. He pronounced it an exceptionally valuable string and well worth the sum asked. Mrs. Spaulding sent word to the woman managing the sale that she would buy it only on consideration that she could meet the Russian great lady who was parting with the jewels. After some hesitation and delay a meeting was arranged.

The great lady came, bringing her precious necklace with her. Mrs. Spaulding handed her the money, and she handed the pearls to Mrs. Spaulding, whereupon the latter gently placed the string of shimmering, iridescent loveliness around the neck of the original owner, saying:

"That is where they belong and where they are to stay."

It was a beautiful act, gracefully done, if the story is true, as I rather think it is. Nobility is not confined to those older countries of Europe, is it?

Among our returning wanderers from foreign shores is Mrs. Bryan Lathrop, who, with Mrs. E. B. McCagg, formerly of Chicago, now of Washington, landed yesterday in New York from the Berengaria. Mrs. Lathrop went directly to her summer home in York Harbor, Me. She brought with her Mr. and Mrs. Algernon Barnaby of England. The latter is her niece and was formerly Miss Minna Field, a daughter of the late Henry Field, of Chicago, brother of the more famous Marshall Field.

Mrs. Arthur Ryerson, who has been junketing about Africa, Italy, Greece, Spain and other remote and picturesque countries, is on the water now, having sailed last week from France on the Rotterdam. She will go immediately on landing to her country place on Lake Otsego. She has there a large farm as well as a charming house and country seat. She is a practical farmer and energetically directs all the many activities of her estate.

The alert and infinite capabilities of American women is something that the average foreigner, especially if he be from one of the Latin races, cannot understand. Two of the leading men from the Argentine were in Chicago a couple of years ago and were especially struck with this quality of vivid intelligence and ceaseless energy of our women. One of the Argentinians, noticing the alert expression that usually accompanies an active mentality, asked what it was that American women put in their eyes to make them so bright. He said that he had never seen such brilliant eyes and was sure that it must come from something put in them. When assured that such was not the case he seemed bewildered. Gentle, large and luminous are the eyes of his country women, but brilliant, alive, and full of expression they are not. Such qualities come from the spirit which looks out of these human windows.

Golf Links Popular.

All the golf links in Lake county [where this col. is now planted] were crowded with players last Wednesday, which was Decoration Day. The weather that day was a gift from heaven and enabled uncounted thousands to enjoy the holiday in the open air. The highways were full of motor cars. People who had country homes as a rule asked their city friends to come out for luncheon or dinner, and everywhere there was an atmosphere of friendly gayety.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Foy of Oak Park announce the marriage of their daughter, Clare Josephine, to Benjamin T. McCanna Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin T. McCanna of Oak Park. The wedding took place at the Ascension church, Oak Park, last Wednesday.

MISS THYRA DAVIDSON.
(Bloom photo.)
Miss Thyra Margaret Davidson, daughter of Mrs. Frederick Davidson of Chicago, will be married to Clark J. W. Colby of Chicago next Saturday at the Hotel La Salle. Miss Amy Gundtofte and Miss Florence Rydeen will be bridesmaids.

MISS GRACE MARY COOK.
(J. D. Toloff photo.)
Mr. and Mrs. Percy I. Cook of 5203 Kenmore avenue have announced the engagement of their daughter, Grace Mary, to Paul Schulze Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Schulze of 2305 Commonwealth avenue. The wedding will take place June 30.

The polo field at the Onwentsia was bright with the lively colors of the various teams which competed there and with the costumes of the good-sized gallery that looked on with that tense, expectant excitement which always accompanies any game so dangerous as polo. John Borden, Prentiss Coonley, William M. Blair, "Bud" Rader and the rest of the members of the polo outfits there won new laurels by their spirited play. The day was an ideal one for so strenuous a sport. A cool, eager east wind made some of the onlookers shiver, but was as nectar to the perspiring players at the end of their rounds.

In the air above a rather frantic airplane performed what looked to the onlookers like fearful stunts, darting in low-swung swoops over the heads of the crowd, taking abrupt spiral dives, nose down, looping the loop in overhead somersaults and generally trying to cut out the dashing plays of the polo teams as far as spectators were concerned. Succeeding, too, sometimes.

In the course of time there will have to be for airplaning traffic routes and laws as strict as any that now govern our streets and highways. There will be increasing peril to the man in the street when the upper air is full of darting machines whose frivolous pilots seek to terrify and put to flight that slow worm, man, as he creeps along on the earth. If the average driver of an automobile has, from the moment he takes the wheel a changed point of view as to the rights of the pedestrian, as many of them do, how much more erratic and dangerous will be the animating force behind the steering levers of an infinitely swifter and more intriguing airplane? I can see whole crowds of heads being swished off as now one's walking stick beheads the flowers in the fields.

This a Dandelion Spring.

By the way, speaking of the flowers of the field, have you noticed the uncommonly large crop of dandelions which May has produced? There has never been anything quite to equal it hereabouts. The most carefully kept lawns have been overwhelmed with them. A visitor from the east, a well known New York woman, looking out on the blazing glory of a once velvety Lake Forest lawn, said:

"How beautiful your dandelions are! Do you plant them?"

There was little sun in May, but one hardly noticed it because of the dazzling splendor of the dandelion crop which cast a glow over the whole landscape. Thousands of gallons of bitter dandelion wine lay latent in those golden carpets. The French believe so firmly in the efficacy of eating dandelions in the spring as an agent for health that the soldiers in the World war used to risk their lives by creeping out over the tops of their noisome trenches to gather these humble and prolific blossoms. I was told by a French officer, the late Maj. Eckenfelder, that many a "poilu" was killed when trying to pick these "dents du lion," [lion's teeth] as the French call them.

Next Thursday the Chicago chapter of the English Speaking union will have its first luncheon since the election of its new president, Laird Bell. It will be given in the Red room of the La Salle hotel. The speaker of the occasion will be Col. David Stone, American member of the interallied high commission, stationed at Coblenz for three years. This commission was the civil body which governed the occupied parts of Germany and the Ruhr. Col. Stone spent five years in Europe working on international matters in various official positions. He fought at Château Thierry and in other minor engagements. He was accorded the Legion of Honor ribbon and has had unusual opportunities to study conditions in that much debated territory which lies between France and Germany.

He is authorized by the state and war departments to go up and down the land giving his views on present day conditions in Europe, and especially those leading up to the present occupation of the Ruhr. What he has to say will be of especial interest and value. A free expression of opinion from the audience is invited and a lively discussion is expected. The English Speaking union extends an invitation to all who are interested in the subject to attend the luncheon. Tickets may be secured through Mrs. W. Case, 108 South La Salle street, telephone Main 4510.

The present officers of the Chicago chapter of the union are: President, Laird Bell; vice presidents, Mrs. Frank H. Scott, Mrs. Silas Strawn, Edward O. Brown, and Frederick T. West; secretary, McPherson Holt; Treasurer, Ernest Reckett; with a board of twenty-one directors including some of the best known people in Chicago.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

world will so conduce to the peace and prosperity of the world today as a widely extended and complete union of the English speaking people inhabiting this round globe of ours. Members of this union have found on visiting England that membership in this body opens many doors to them which add greatly to the interest of their travels.

In Great Britain this union has a more intrenched place than here and it is expected that it will, in the course of time, work great things in the way of establishing friendly relations between the English speaking people in America (which includes, of course, the Canadians), Australia, New Zealand South Africa, and the mother of the English language and ideals, "merrie England."

Women in politics are coming to the fore. The Illinois Republican Women's club is fairly launched. Already a sum has been subscribed towards getting a clubhouse as headquarters for what it is planned to make a permanent and valuable political club, such as already wield much influence in other states. Mrs. Arthur Meeker has taken the chairmanship of the finance committee —the most important committee of the new organization at this stage in its being—and the success of the undertaking is proven by the wide interest taken in it by women in many walks of life. When American women wake up to their possibilities as deciding factors in the future of the country the men who now steer the ship of state will have to be wide awake to keep up with them.

The Easy Washes by Air-Pressure and Suction

The revolving cups move up and down sixty times per minute. They flush the hot, soapy water through the mesh of the garment. There is no dragging, jerking or pulling of the clothes—no wear or tear—simply a gentle forcing of the water through the mesh of the fabric, carrying with it all dirt and foreign substances. In this way the heaviest and dirtiest garments are quickly and thoroughly cleansed, or the finest laces and lingerie washed with perfect safety.

All Mechanism Is Simple and Completely Inclosed

The Easy Washer is the final evolution of the old "stomper on a stick" principle, with which every woman is familiar. Remember the old household adage, "A poke in the boiler is worth two rubs on the board."

No belts—machine can be moved without effort—easiest washer to clean and keep clean. Gas heater keeps water hot while washing.

Club Leaders Aiding "Better Homes" Display

By Kate Webber.

EVERY woman who has to deal with problems concerning home management; who has to spend her husband's income, in the purchase of food, clothing, shelter, and education for one or more individuals; every one, in brief, who would love to see the material and spiritual aspects of this existence improve, will be interested in the "Better Homes in America" demonstration week, to be observed in Chicago and throughout the country for one week, beginning tomorrow.

Club women, teachers, lecturers on household and economic subjects and many others are helping to point out to the public the lessons to be taught. Extreme care was taken in assembling the furniture for this room—the 60-inch dining table, built of genuine walnut with the popular rounded corners, is patterned after the Queen Anne Period. The three side chairs and the artistic arm chair come in walnut and are carefully matched in grain and finish with the table. The chairs have thickly padded slip seats upholstered in a high grade of genuine blue or brown leather. No finer furniture could be assembled.
The Kitchen— You will find the sanitary, crystal white, porcelain top kitchen table will be your most prized possession. It is sturdily built and beautifully finished. The two white enameled chairs are the bow back type, built for service. The Grand Rapids Furniture Co. wants you to see this outfit, because we know it to be the greatest bargain ever offered for cash in Chicago.
Entire 4-Room Outfit, $369
Don't fail to investigate this wonderful bargain offer—we prove here and prove conclusively that it pays and pays big to buy for cash. This entire 4-Room Outfit will be sold complete at $369, or you can buy any room separately at proportionate reductions.

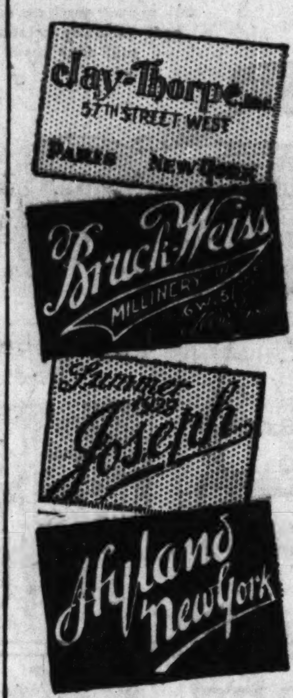
Another Extraordinary Selling of Summer's Most Delightful Hats —the Exquisite Creations of Famed Designers

—Sixth Floor—State Street—



Of course you will want to see the labels in these wonderful hats—and they are there for your inspection—but even were they not, your eye would tell you instantly that these are hats so far above the ordinary that usual comparisons fail. At the country clubs, the horse shows, in smart cafes, at fashionable summer watering places, at the races and on the promenades of society, you will see such hats as are included in this latest and in many respects by far the most beautiful collection we have ever displayed. The premier creations of

Joseph, Bruck-Weiss, Hyland, Jay-Thorpe and Other Noted Milliners

Hats of imported hair braids, softly charming Canton crepe, crisp taffetas, delightfully different fancy straws and fine Milans. Hats for dress occasions beautifully trimmed with pretty lilacs, lilies, roses, and other summer flowers —Soft and graceful ostrich, fancy ribbons, fine laces and velvet.

And there are many strikingly smart sport hats of felt, with eyelet embroidery, taffeta, ribbon—so many, many modes that they beggar description. In black and white, red, sand and the very latest shades of yellow, the color which has but recently achieved first place in Fashion's favor.

We might write and write and write of these irresistible hats, but neither unromantic type nor printed illustrations can in any way tell the story one whit so well as the hats themselves. See them—hold them in your hands—select one and ask the mirror for the truth!

GEOLOGY

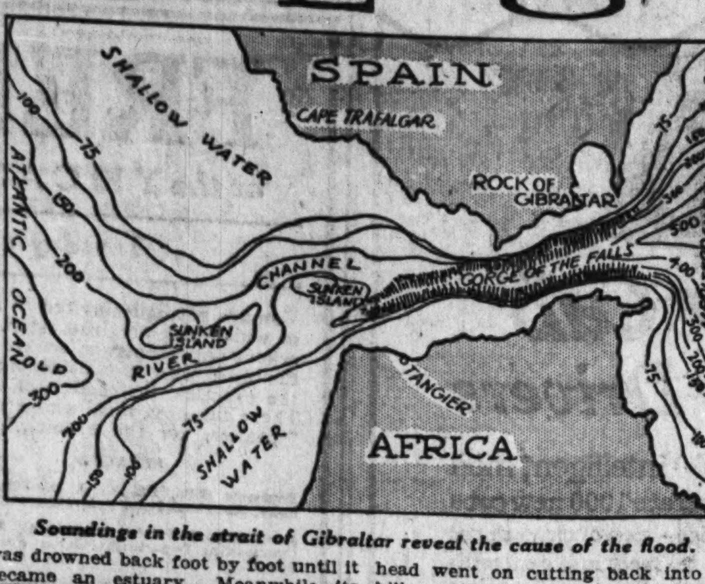
TRUE STORY OF THE FLOOD.

LEGENDS do not just originate out of thin air. They all have a sound basis of fact beneath them. The more many of them are studied the truer their details appear, although fanciful in the extreme in the telling. The facts of some legends, indeed, are stranger than they appear in tradition. In this class lies the account of the flood, as told in Genesis.

The Mediterranean sea was once a string of small lakes. Its bed was several hundred feet below sea level, in the same fashion that the Caspian and Dead Sea basins are still below sea level. This region has been an area of excessive evaporation for the last forty or fifty thousand years, and the waters in it have trouble in maintaining themselves. Not enough rain fell then to keep the Mediterranean basin full, nor does enough fall now to fill it, were the Strait of Gibraltar and the Suez canal closed.

Some ten thousand years ago, or perhaps less, when the inhabitants of this region were just emerging into civilization, a disaster overwhelmed whole nations, comparable only to the flood in China when the Yellow river changed its mouth. In those days the land below sea level supported many people. No one dreamed that it was under the level of the ocean's waters, for no one had ever traveled as far as Spain to see the pillars of Hercules. The Strait of Gibraltar was above water then. A small river flowed there, heading among the hills of which the masive rock of Gibraltar is a remnant. It meandered down to the Atlantic in the usual fashion of rivers, all unconcerned with the fact that the land over the ridge behind it was lower than the slope down which it flowed.

The remains of this river are still there, below the waters between Cadiz and Tangier. Soundings on the bottom reveal it.



Soundings in the strait of Gibraltar reveal the cause of the flood.

The whole Atlantic coast of Europe is sinking, and has been going down for a million years, at least. The river was drowned back foot by foot until it became an estuary. Meanwhile its head went on cutting back into the hills, until they eroded a gap. First it was a wind gap; later the valley was level. A person then could have seen, had he walked up the hill, a level expanse of swamp on top, widening out into the deep Atlantic beyond. But if any one saw, he did not understand, or gave no warning. At length there came a trickle of water down the Mediterranean side. It deepened to a brook, then a creek, then a torrent. Sea soundings reveal a gorge some 400 feet or more deep, five miles or so wide, and thirty-five miles long, cut by a cataract mightier than fifty Niagaras. The sea burst in. It poured over the escapement, and as it raced it cut a deep channel through the rocks.

The loss of life in the Mediterranean could not have been great, for the waters appear to have risen slowly. But whole country sides were covered by the waves, not to appear again.

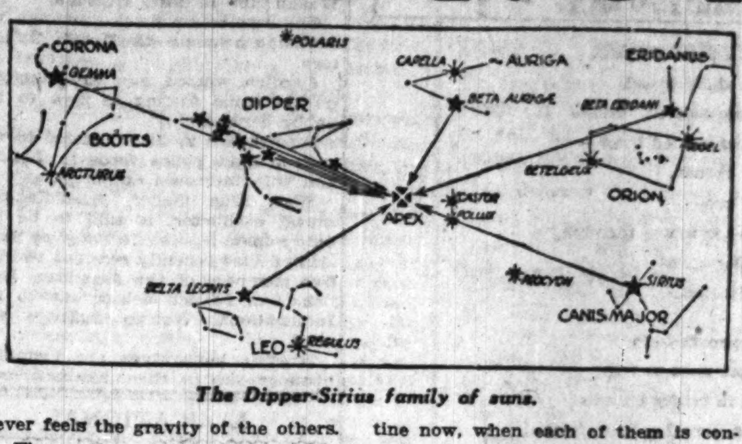
Men remember losses of their inheritance far longer than they do the death of their fathers, so it is not surprising that many legends have come to us about the "Flood."

ASTRONOMY

THE MOTION OF STARS.

THE sun does not stand still. Every day, every hour every second, it goes flying on through space in the direction of Vega, in the northern sky. Its rush seems swift to us, 11 miles per second, but to the globe of the sun, almost a million miles through, it is little more than a brisk walk. It covers the distance of its own diameter in about two hours, dragging the earth and all the solar system with it.

The sun is only one of hundreds of thousands of stars which dot the heavens. All of these other suns are in motion, too, but not at random. They move in two streams, which meet and mingle, and yet the distance between them is so great that no one of them ever feels the gravity of the others.



The Dipper-Sirius family of suns.

The motion of the suns is a part of the plan of the universe. They began to move when the stellar system was a mass of gases, and they continue now, when each of them is condensed into a relatively tiny white-hot sphere.

There are two streams of stars in this part of the sky, one pouring toward Vega, and the other toward Sirius. Astronomers see them apparently converging in their paths, as the lines of masonry in a tunnel appear to converge by perspective.

Each stream of stars contains lesser clusters of suns, and these too have their own motions. We are in the midst of such a cluster, and yet its members are so scattered that they have little influence upon the course of the sun. The cluster is the Dipper-Sirius group.

The Great Dipper, Sirius, Beta Aurigae, Delta Leonis, Beta Eridani and several lesser stars, belong to one system. This cluster lies in a flat sheet, like a plate, inclined about 60 degrees to the plane of the solar system. All the stars in it are moving in parallel paths toward a point in the sky near Castor and Pollux, and the spot itself is drifting toward the "anti-apex."

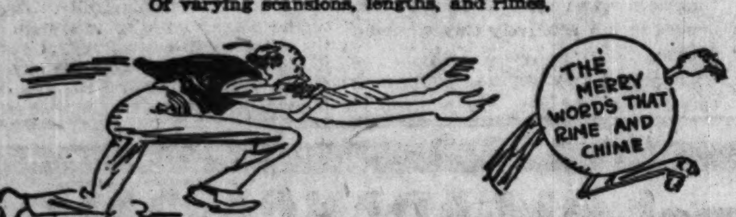
Slams of Life

By J. P. McEVOY

THE WEARY RHYMSTER.

It's hard to earn the daily bread
When through an obfuscated head—
A dazed, bemused, and addled bean—
A flock of idle words careen,
An unrelated flow of goo—
With nary thought to glimmer through,
And titillate with ardor spent
A bored, neuronic filament.

It's hard to catch upon the hip
The merry words that used to trip
And sort themselves in tricky chimes
Of varying scansions, lengths, and rimes,



THE MERRY WORDS THAT RIME AND CHIME

When thoughts of work with fear congeal
The torpid unresponsive keel
And all the cells are steeped for days
In a rosy, soporific haze.

It's tough to lam a languid lyre
And strike a scintilla of fire
With leucocytes all running loose,
And sadly sighing, "What's the use?"
When through the veins there slowly flows
A current calm and comatose,
And giblets to each other call
"O, whathahel and Damitall!"

MAN

This woman is of the race of the Mongols who brought civilization to America.

MONGOLS, CULTURE CARRIERS.

THE American Indian is of Mongolian stock. He is a cousin of the yellow Mongolian and the brown Malay. But in all his era as the owner of the Americas he never was more than a savage, according to finds which are now being made from Mexico to Peru. It was another Mongolian race, Chinese-like people, who carried civilization to this continent, it seems.

The peak of ancient civilization in the Americas lay in the tropical strip between Arizona and Peru, reaching its peaks in central Mexico and Peru. The ruins of civilization in these places are mighty and awe-inspiring and attest a race of people who in their day were the most highly cultured in the world.

In every direction away from the tropical centers the Indians sink in culture. In North America the level of the aborigines decreases as we go north and east. In South America the natives are lower still, the Amazon and Patagonia Indians being said to be little better than animals.

A most remarkable fact appears when the ethnology of the Americas is viewed as a whole.

The Indians were everywhere declining when the white man came. The mound builders were no more. These men had evolved the turning lathe, among other inventions; but, useful invention as it was, the knowledge of it was forgotten by the red men whose corn Anthony Wayne cut down. The Indians of historic times all have the characteristic marks of a people whose civilization had been forced on them. It was beyond their capacity to carry, and they were getting rid of it and into the comfortable degradation that they preferred. The Indian is a savage at heart, and all the trappings of civilization will not take it out of him.

It was Mongols who brought civilization to America. Men from the region of Burma and Indo-China were in Mexico as early as 10,000 years ago, and probably much before that. The capacity for culture of these eastern races is great, and they hold tenaciously to every advance. The buildings, art, beliefs, and modes of thought of prehistoric America appear definitely Chinese. Not only is this so, but much of the culture of the Mayas and Toltecs of Yucatán, peoples in whom there was much Mongol blood, is superior to anything ever evolved in China and rivals Gothic culture in northern Europe. These nations were overthrown about 800 A. D. by the Aztecs, an Apache-like breed of Indians, perhaps the most cruel men who ever made a nation. The Spanish finished the destruction.

What could be the cause of American prehistoric civilization? Biologists think they know. When a higher and a lower race intermarry it is always the higher which suffers extinction, for the lower dominates it in heredity three to one. Anything bred with Indian stock produces an Indian. As soon as the good Mongol blood became enfeebled the Mongol civilization crumbled.

NAPOLEON ONCE SAID

"A Foot-Sore Army Is an Army Half Defeated"

When our Boys went into the war the Government ordered over one million five hundred thousand pounds of Powder for the Feet, to make their shoes comfortable and help them on their long marches.

This was regarded as the "last word" in scientific outfitting, and emphasizes the testimony of millions of people who use Allen's Foot-Ease for the quick relief of Corns, Bunions, and Calluses, and for Tired, Aching, Sweating, Smarting, Tender Feet. It takes the friction from the shoe, rests the feet and makes walking easy.

At Night, after excessive dancing or walking, sprinkle Allen's Foot-Ease in the foot-bath. Those who use Allen's Foot-Ease have solved their foot troubles. Sample package and a Foot-Ease Walking Doll sent FREE. Address ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE, Le Roy, N. Y.

Women's Work the World Over

A recent ruling by the attorney general allows women in the state of Washington to wear trousers.

The Amsterdam Stock exchange has a woman member—the first in its history.

Swedish women now are admitted on the same footing as men to the public service.

Women are to be reinstated in the metropolitan police force in London and with increased authority.

Miss Elda Soller, Scanidinavian music conductor, is said to be the only woman leader of a 100 piece band.

Pope Pius recently received twenty-five members of the American, English, and French delegations to the International Women Suffrage alliance.

English housewives are installing phonographs in their kitchens as a means for keeping cooks in their employ.

Miss Caroline Dormon of Louisiana is claimed to be the only woman actively engaged in forestry in the United States.

In England the women are no longer known as the "weaker sex," for statistics show that women now live longer than men.

Prominent business women throughout the country are formulating plans for the building of a $3,000,000 clubhouse in New York City.

Miss Bessie MacFarlane, deputy county clerk of Bessemer, Mich., has acted in the capacity of bridesmaid no less than 184 times.

Women were first employed in a government office during the term of F. E. Spinner as treasurer of the United States from 1861 to 1875.

Short Course--Good Pay for Every Graduate

We offer you a highly skilled training in the remarkably short time of 5 to 7 weeks, with a position immediately thereafter—a position where you begin at an average of $20 per week, where the work is ideal, where you are permanently independent, and where there are many unusual avenues of advancement.

Become a Specialist in 5 to 7 Weeks

So many new COMPTOMETERS are installed every day, and so many operators are promoted that we receive an average of over 225 requests per month for operators. These positions are permanent, because operators are always in demand. That means steady employment and steady advancement for you—the reward of the specialist.

Business experience is not necessary, but girls with some High School education are preferred. The work is easily learned, the course is short, the tuition fee is very small, and we make no charge for assisting our graduates to positions. Call at the school or phone principal and ask for particulars.

Heathen Humor.

A tramp knocked at the back door of a large Hollywood home, and asked for something to eat.

"You likee fiish?" asked the Chinese cook.

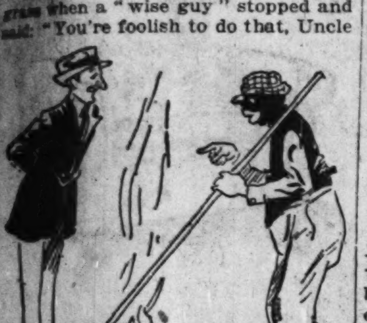
"You bet," answered the tramp.

"Well, come alound Fliday," returned the Chinaman, shutting the door.

A. M. B.

His Comeback.

An old colored man was burning dead grass when a "wise guy" stopped and said: "You're foolish to do that, Uncle Mose. It will make the meadow as black as you are."



"Don't you worry 'bout dat, sah," responded Uncle Mose. "Dat grass will grow out and be as green as you is."

C. E. J.

But Not a Trait.

Several Englishmen and one lone Scotchman were lunching at a certain club in New York. One of the group suddenly asked the Scot:

"James, do you knw why the Scotch have such a wonderful sense of humor?"

"No," replied James, pleased at the tribute. "Why?"

"Because," answered the other, "it is a gift."

Fierce Variety.

Her Contribution.

A wealthy lady was calling on the minister's wife, whom she found busy with the family mending. The wealthy lady remarked that she never did mending, but would gladly help sew on buttons. In the midst of her work she exclaimed, "Why, that's a button off my husband's coat." "Very likely," the minister's wife replied. "We found it in the collection box last Sunday."

RETURNS TO RAVINIA

FLORENCE EASTON.
(Mishkin photo.)

Miss Easton, a noted figure of the Metropolitan opera, formerly of Ravinia and before that of the Chicago opera, will return to Ravinia for the ten weeks of opera this summer. Her first appearance there will be as Elsa in "Lohengrin," for which she is famous in the east.

WAR

VICTORY BY SACRIFICE.

IN the gray mist that hung over Hampton Roads, three old men were standing. The place was a point of land across the peninsula from Norfolk. Far off, through the rain, the dim outlines of Newport News and Fortress Monroe could be seen.

"It was over yonder," said one, "that the Merrimac fought the Monitor. I was on the Merrimac, and went through the fight." The three looked across the gray waters, to the place a mile or so away where the world's first two ironclads strove for mastery on that Sunday morning of March 8, 1862.

The grizzled men were Confederate veterans. "Our timbers gave way," said the old sailor. "That's why we quit." And here is an epic of war. The spirit of armed victory is hidden in the reason why the rebel ironclad's beams gave way.

You remember how the Merrimac came steaming out of Norfolk on Saturday afternoon, to attack the wooden Union fleet lying off Fortress Monroe. She headed straight for the Cumberland, and opened fire when about a mile off. Escape for the doomed ship was impossible. The guns of the Cumberland blazed back and then the crew saw the balls glanced harmlessly off the thick armor of the Merrimac, like pebbles from a roof. The monster drove on and crunched her iron beak through her victim's sides. Leaving the Cumberland a wreck, as she thought, the Merrimac drew off to sink the other Union vessels.

But the Cumberland, although desperately wounded and strewn with mangled victims, kept up her fire. Her men worked their guns as long as there was a deck beneath their feet.

That evening the Union fleet lay a wreck. There was panic in New York. Washington seemed open to the rebel ironclad. But while the fires were still smouldering, the Monitor steamed into Hampton Roads.

The next day when the Merrimac came back she met no helpless wooden ship, but an armored invention before her.

The guns on the Monitor pounded and dented the sides of the Merrimac, even if none of them pierced her. And not the least of that denting was due to the fire from the Cumberland the day before. For the sinking vessel, in the hour of her destruction, had poured such a well directed fire upon the Merrimac that the wooden beams under the armor rails of the latter were splintered, so that the Monitor, coming after, was able to drive her out of the fight. If it had not been for the Cumberland, the Monitor probably never would have won the battle. In war victory is often determined by selfless and sometimes seemingly vain sacrifice.

HIGH GRADE SALESMEN
PLEASE NOTE.

The Williamson Heater Company of Cincinnati, an old, reliable and nationally known manufacturer of heating apparatus, is marketing a gas, gasoline or electric cabinet clothes dryer known as "SNOW WHITE," salable to new houses, professional builders and architects. Judged by merchandising experts to hold the greatest national possibilities of recent times.

It dries clothes in ten minutes. Its installation makes the housewife independent of weather conditions. It eliminates the drudgery of carrying clothes outside. It permits washing and ironing to be done the same morning. In smoky communities it is indispensable. Every woman appreciates its advantages. It appeals to the professional builder, as it enhances the salability of his building. It appeals to the apartment owner in eliminating the back yard problem. To the man erecting or owning a high grade home it sells itself. The price is $99. Every residence and apartment in this city should have one.

Operations are now being extended to this territory. Many cities operating successfully. If you are tired of commonplace living, if you are pushing and immovable product, or if you want the chance that no other product offers, consider this carefully.

We hold forth no golden promises, or get-rich-quick schemes, but for a real salesman with an unimpeachable record, wide sales experience, good personality, and who is capable of visualizing the potential possibilities of the above article, we can offer an interesting proposition on our Chicago sales forces, with a view of becoming manager or other cities that we intend opening. Do not call. Phone for appointment.

Beverly Hills AN Investment

You know Chicago will continue the same remarkable rate of growth, unaffected by business depressions, failures, panics or wars. It has gone on and on until there is now no city in the world with the same possibilities of future development.

In just one year from today, 50,000 more people will live in Chicago. It doesn't require much imagination to picture what the adoption of the rapid transit plan would do. You can't think of any investment more safe or more certain of greater returns than well selected Real Estate at a proper price and directly in the line of Chicago's growth.

In the heart of beautiful Beverly Hills, 35 minutes from the Loop, opportunity is waiting the one who does believe in Chicago, who wants a home with all the convenience of the city but away from noise and dirt, 102 feet above the lake level. Protected by law from the encroachment of undesirable buildings, yet within a short safe walk for the children are playgrounds, churches, schools and stores.

The one who knows that such places are too few for the ever increasing demand, but who has not enough capital to pay all cash, will certainly welcome the chance to buy on convenient monthly payments and only 15% down.

Today or tomorrow, motor out Longwood-dr. to 103d-st., thence 3 blocks west to our office, and let us show you the greatest opportunity you have ever had.

If you have no car phone Beverly 1134 and we will send one without any obligation.

REAL ESTATE—SUBURBAN—WEST.

I HAVE SEARCHED A YEAR

for the ideal location; that is, a spot where I could build my home and rest assured my family and I would be protected against any undesirable element.

I realized that to find this environment I must go to the suburbs. But I found that in most suburbs the transportation was so bad during certain times of the day, that I would have to wait sometimes as long as two hours for a train, so my ideal place must have transportation. I wanted a place where I had improvements, where I could be protected against a foreign element. Where no shacks, flats or apartments could be built. Where every lot was nicely restricted as to cost of home. Where a building line had been established, where all my neighbors wold be of the type with whom I would be proud to have my family associate.

In short, the summing up of my "ideal location" means: First, flawless transportation; second, real environment; and last, but not least, the location and price must be such that if at any time I should want to sell, I would realize a substantial profit.

After searching for more than a year covering every section of Chicago and suburbs, I have found my ideal location. Of course, it is in the suburbs. It is west of Chicago; it has transportation that is unsurpassed. The longest wait any time during the day is less than 15 minutes, ofttimes only 6 or 7 minutes.

This ideal location was formerly owned by Judge Elbert H. Gary. This most beautiful estate has been divided into several choice restricted homesites. These are the finest residential lots ever offered the public. They have improvements, are not in the middle of a prairie, have beautiful homes all around them, and are to be offered to Americans only, who appreciate these ideal locations. You may never have the opportunity again to find a spot so desirable. If you will answer this ad I will be glad to send you further particulars without obligation on your part. Address F C 233, Tribune.

It has much extra equipment and we are able to offer it at a very substantial savings as compared with the price of a new one today. You will have to act quickly if you would avail yourself of this bargain. Price, $1,875.

PEERLESS COUPE, 1922. We have not had a car of this type to offer to the public for about 2 months and feel fortunate in being able to offer this one, because it is in wonderful condition. It is very near new; in fact, it has not quite been driven 5,000 miles. The velour upholstery shows practically no wear. Tires are like new. Mechanically it will carry our standard warranty. An exceptional offering for today's sale in this high grade 4 passenger enclosed car. Price, $2,475.

PEERLESS 8 SUBURBAN COUPE, 1923. This is the very latest 4 or 5 passenger Coupe that we have just taken in trade for one of our new cars of a larger carrying capacity. This automobile has been driven less than 2,000 miles and will carry our standard warranty. In every detail it would be difficult for any one to distinguish it from brand new. It is different from the ordinary coupe, being much more roomy and the lines are much more pleasing. There is not a mar or blemish on it anywhere. It can be purchased at a great savings as compared with the price of a new car of this type and interested parties should see it immediately, because it will undoubtedly be sold to the first person who looks at it at our price of $3,100.

PEERLESS SEDAN, 1923. This latest Series Peerless enclosed car was used by one of our officials. It has been driven only a few thousand miles, has had top-notch care, and its condition, of course, is the best. The upholstery, finish, and tires show practically no wear and it is completely equipped. If you've never driven the Peerless you will find it hard to realize how exceptional it is from every driving and maintenance standpoint. This car will be sold with our standard warranty and is offered to you at a great saving. $3,500.

PEERLESS LIMOUSINE, 1920. This is what is commonly known as the Berline type limousine and is a car that will carry a strong appeal to any one who is looking for a high grade car for either private or livery work. It can be used as a Limousine or Sedan. Mechanically it is exceptionally fine. Has been refinished a Dark Blue and presents the appearance of new. You will have to see and ride in this car to fully appreciate the exceptional value that we are offering in it at our price of $1,900.

DAGMAR
OF Regal Exclusiveness
CUSTOM-BUILT IN AMERICA

"The smartest appearing car in the world," "the last word in class and artistic splendor"—these and many other enthusiastic expressions of approval by real connoisseurs have come to our ears since our first showing of this vivid, exquisitely beautiful "Dagmar."

The "Dagmar" does not look like any other automobile you have ever seen, yet it is pleasing to the eye and leaves an indelible picture. Words are beggars in an effort to paint a portrait for your mind's eye. One must see and study it as they would a fine piece of art work in order to appreciate what a marvelous conception is the "Dagmar."

The general architectural appearance of the car is low and narrow with artistic sweeping lines, depicting style, strength, beauty and fleetness. The body is hand painted in jet black, trimmed in brown mahogany and upholstered in finest red Morocco leather; the radiator, massive custom-built drum type lamps, low rakish one-piece windshield, large hand turned hubs and caps, heavy body rails, etc., are of burnished gold. The instrument board is of burnished gold with polished bronze trimmings. The distinctive shaped fenders that conform to the lines of the car and body are red on the underside and have a grained mahogany finish on the outside, with gold studs. Mounted on the body is a "chic" little victoria top of imported tan English Burbank cloth piped in red Morocco leather, with metal trimmings in gold, and two small, round French beveled plate glasses with a tiny frame of red set in the rear curtains. The two extra Disteel wheels are mounted just "aft" the radiator and set in wells sunk in the fenders. The running boards are of solid rubber trimmed in gold. A large inset luggage space is found on the rear and lends to the smartness of the car. The gas tank frame and springs are in brilliant English coach red. All appointments are of the finest and the car is complete. Verily "Le toute ensemble est tres chic," and no matter how far one may have to come to see this wonderful creation of an artistic genius he will feel well rewarded for a sight of the "Dagmar." Additional equipment consists of 6 custom built Woodbury cord tires, "lion's roar" cutout, gasometer on dash, electric clock and cigar lighter, shock absorbers, cowl ventilator, etc.

Mechanically the car is the "poetry of motion"; it is the final achievement in the motor car artisan's attainment. The engine is a De Luxe Continental 6 cylinder and the other units are of the same high quality standard.

You are invited to come and see the "Dagmar"—the latest motor car creation.

METEOR SPORT
$2,250
A $6,300 Custom Built Car!

If you had the good fortune to visit the Automobile Salon at the Drake Hotel during automobile show week, no doubt you saw the Meteor exhibited with the other fine custom built cars of the motor crafts from both sides of the "water." Possibly you may know some one in the exclusive social circles of New York and Chicago who owns a Meteor. If either or both, then you know that the Meteor car is the ultimate in a smart appearing sport car, in which distinctive style and master craftsmen's handiwork are at once evident.

The Meteor is unlike any other brand of car in appearance, yet is not freakish, and combines great power and speed with fairly light weight. The four speed transmission permits of great flexibility and easy handling through the most congested traffic.

The car that we are offering has been used so little that in its original finish of Meteor blue it presents the appearance of new, and, as one might expect, is quite completely equipped.

One who appreciates a really fine motor car will revel in the ownership of this $6,300 perfect car at about 1-3 of its initial selling price. At $2,250 it is an astonishing value.

Wording a Want Ad to make it pay
Prepared and Published by the Business Survey of The Chicago Tribune

A FULFILLER of human wants and a mighty power in the land is the little Want Ad, rightly used. Whatever your desire is—a home, a car, a business, communication with a lost relative—it is possible through a Tribune Want Ad. The Tribune Want Ad Section brings millions of people to common basis of communication at insignificant expense.

Although the vast majority of Want Ads run in The Tribune do pull results—are wonderfully productive in inquiries, sometimes, through faulty wording a Want Ad does not produce the results of which it is capable. To eliminate even this small percentage of poor Want Ads The Tribune has written this compendium of Want Ad information—"Wording of a Want Ad to Make It Pay." It is free to any one who asks for it, but the edition is limited. Fill out the coupon, mail it in and accept this book with The Tribune's compliments.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

FIELD AND KEEP LAKE BLUFF LAND FOR SUBDIVISIO

"Ravine Forest" to B Name of 90 Acre Tract

What is said to be the last la tract of north shore land east of t Northwestern railroad, available high class residential subdivision p poses, has been purchased by Ben min Lowenmeyer from Stanley Fie and Chauncey Keep for a consider tion reported as in excess of a qua ter of a million. There are abou ninety acres, the land being the mo picturesque part of the tract know as Ferry field and Ferry woods all lies in the corporate limits of Lak Bluff, just north of the Lake Fores northern boundary. F. M. Lowe wa the only broker in the purchase, re resenting all parties.

Mr. Lowenmeyer is having it la out with winding roads and has chri tened it "Ravine Forest." The tract heavily timbered and is traversed wit an unusually attractive three pronge ravine, said to be one of the most bea ful on the north shore.

Must Cost at least $15,000.

A majority of the lots have ravin frontages of over 150 feet, some a much as 500 feet, and the restriction provide that no house shall be erecte in the entire subdivision at a cost o less than $15,000. It is presumed, o course, that there'll be houses erecte that will cost many times the minimu limit. The lots range in price from $3,000 to $45,000.

The property is just west of and across present Sheridan road from the estates of Stanley Field, Albert A. Sprague, Elizabeth Clow, Mrs. C. Morse Ely, and Roy McWilliams. Work is now under way on a new Sheridan road running east and west across the southern end of "Ravine Forest" and connecting with Waukegan road, which will be renamed Sheridan road and continue north.

One-third Already Sold.

This new strip of road from present Sheridan to Waukegan road will be ninety feet wide and is being paved by the state. The curved roads in the subdivision, known as Ravine Forest drive and Oak terrace, will be sixty feet wide. Crescent drive will be thirty feet wide. Practically one-third of the subdivision already has been sold, Mr. Lowe states.

PLAN $600,000 FLATS-SHOPS AT SHERIDAN-CHASE

Wreckers will start shortly to tear down the old two story brick residence at the southeast corner of Sheridan road and Chase avenue, and on this 170x170 site Charles Minov will erect a $600,000 building from plans by Loewenberg & Loewenberg, to contain sixty apartments of three, four, and five rooms and nine shops. It will be completed about Jan. 1.

Leases Upper Floors for New Hotel in Englewood

Englewood is to have a new hotel. Paul D. Kapodistrias, now operating several hostelries, has leased the upper floors of the building at the northeast corner of Halsted and 61st place, from K. R. Beak & Co., for ten years from July 1, at a total rental reported as $71,000. He will call the new hotel "The Unity." Hefter & Wells were brokers.

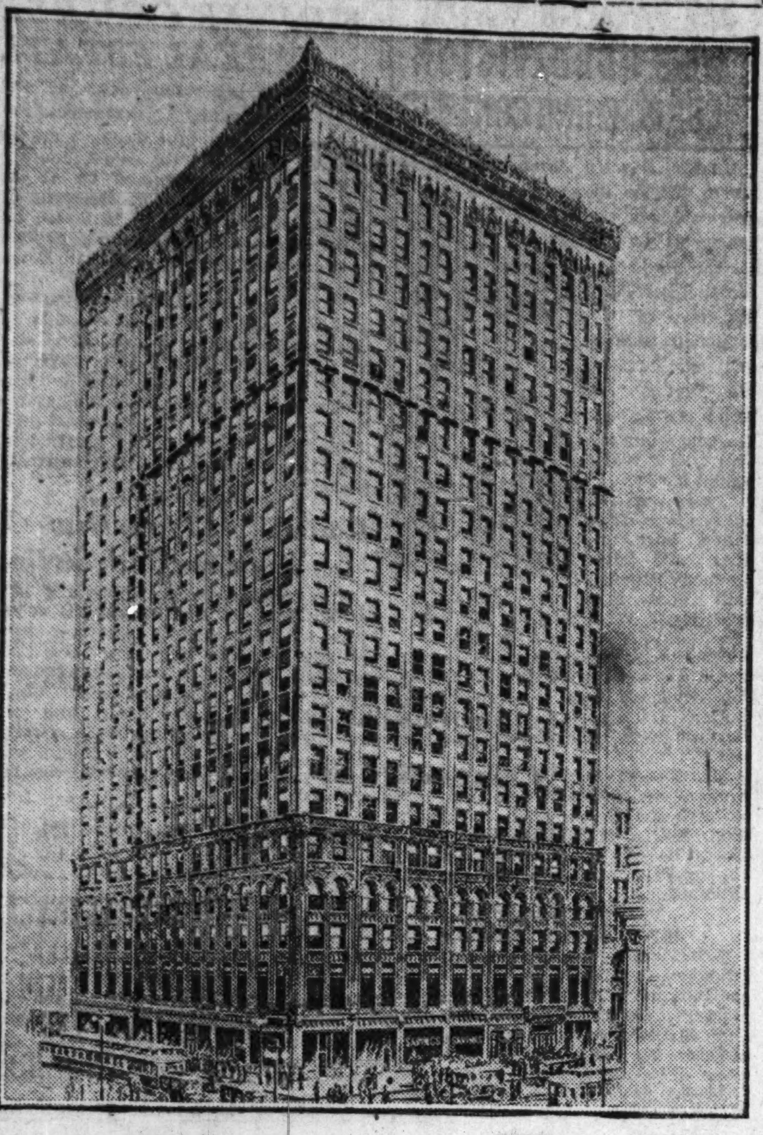
Plans Stores and Offices at Kedzie and 59th Street

William Kaplan has bought the vacant 129x125, at the southeast corner of 59th and Kedzie, from Constantine H. Thanasouras for a reported $45,000, and intends erecting a store and office building. Tutules & Dignan were brokers for both parties.

LATIN QUARTER CORPORATION SELLS.

The Latin Quarter Building corporation has sold the property known as 20-26 Cedar street to Frederick Burton, president of the Burton Coal company, for an undisclosed consideration, through Harold Bradley & Co. This is the site on which Benjamin Marshall of Marshall & Fox at one time contemplated erecting a studio apartment. What the new owner intends doing has not been disclosed.

Making It Higher and Wider



Above is how the Lumber Exchange, at the southeast corner of La Salle and Madison streets, will look when the proposed five story addition on top is completed and a twenty-one story addition to the east, at 125-29 West Madison street. The L. J. McCormick estate is now negotiating through Greenebaum Sons Bank and Trust company, to acquire from Archibald Andrews the long term leasehold on the Stone estate fee, 40x90. This will give a total frontage on Madison of 141½ and on La Salle of 135 feet, making it one of the loop's largest buildings. Work is well under way on the upper five floors, but construction of the twenty-one story annex to the east will not start till building prices come down. The dotted line shows the present fifteen story building. The Greenebaum bank will enlarge its quarters when the annex is built. Holabird & Roche are architects.

News of the Architects

President F. E. Davidson of the Illinois Society of Architects is expected to leave Hahnemann hospital, where he has been for several weeks, some time next week. He probably will be back at his office about July 3.

Architect Lincoln Norcott Hall announces the removal of his office to 7 West Madison street. His new phone number is Dearborn 8341.

John J. Keenan & Co., store fixture service architects and engineers, have moved to suite 1264 Conway building. Their new telephones are Dearborn 8962 and 8963. Architect Harold C. Ferree also has moved from the Cable building to suite 1264 Conway building.

Architect D. J. Schaffner has moved from the City Hall Square building to larger quarters in the Garrick building, Suite 914. His new phone is Central 6654.

Architect Maurice Spitzer has moved from 115 South Dearborn to suite 700 in the Beak building, 111 North Dearborn.

Remodel Magnolia and Wilson Flats Into Shops

Louis I. Simon & Co. designed the changes now being made in the three story apartment building at the southwest corner of Wilson and Magnolia. Six stores are being installed and the number of flats cut from eighteen to fourteen. The changes will cost $70,000, according to the owners, Mr. Simon and Aaron A. Alexander. The new stores and flats will be ready for October occupancy.

WRECKERS TEAR DOWN MICHIGAN AVE. LANDMARK

Wreckers are busy tearing down a North Michigan avenue landmark, the five story structure at the northwest corner of Lake street, owned by the Cyrus McCormick estate. Original plans for a new building have been abandoned and the property will be cleared and left vacant until conditions warrant improvements. The present building has been vacant for some time and long has been considered an eyesore by Judson F. Stone, manager of the estate. It was at one time occupied by John A. Tolman & Co., wholesale coffee dealers.

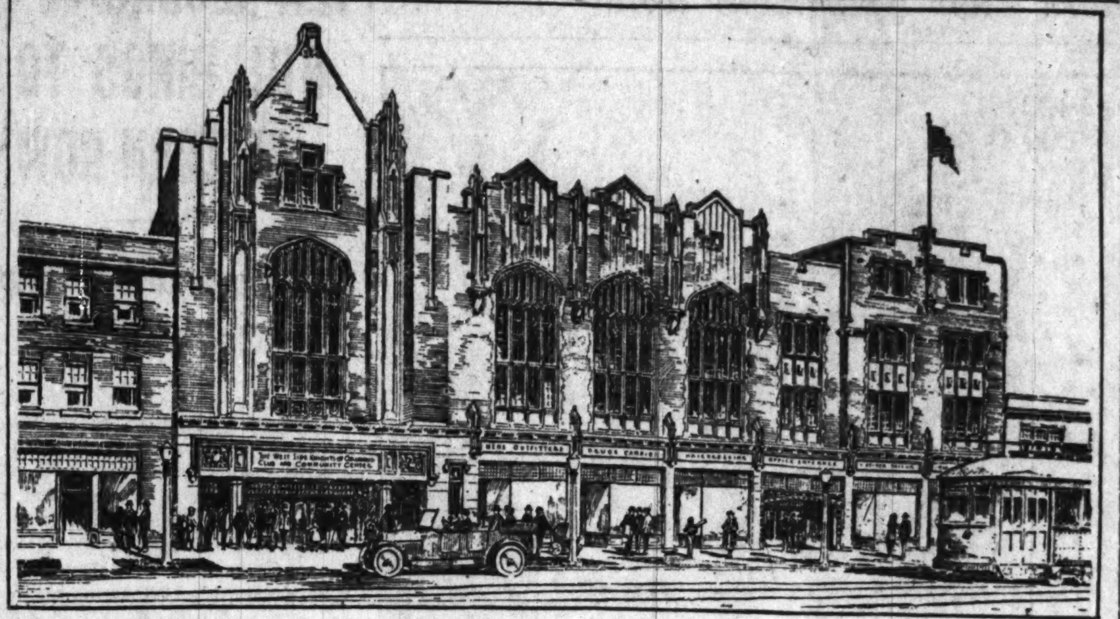
Plans Subdivision West of Harvey of 150 Acres

Jacob Swanson, a contractor, bought 150 acres between 151st and 155th streets, Kedzie and California avenues, extended, west of Harvey, and intends to subdivide it into one, two, and five acre tracts for country homes for officials of south side industries. There'll be winding roads. Part of the tract is wooded and more trees will be set out. The sellers were Thomas S. Krutz and others and the price paid was $30,000. O. W. Jurgens was attorney for Mr. Swanson.

Chinese Restaurateur to Open West Side 'Paradise'

Joe Eng, former owner of the Golden Pheasant inn, has leased the store at 4013 West Madison street, from W. J. Sixeas, president of the West Madison State bank, for ten years, and is remodeling it into "The Paradise inn," a Chinese and American restaurant, at a cost of approximately $20,000. It will open within a month. John J. Keenan & Co., are the architects.

New Home of West Side Knights of Columbus



Shattuck & Layer designed the above $700,000 clubhouse and community center, to be erected by seven councils of the Knights of Columbus on West Madison, between Cicero and Kilpatrick. More is told about the project in another column.

HIGHER RENTS UNLESS BUILDING KEEPS UP: STRAUS

Urges Stabilization of Costs.

Higher rents, still higher building costs, general unemployment and a slowing up of all business are predicted by S. W. Straus, president of S. W. Straus & Co., unless necessary building operations are continued. Mr. Straus, who has just returned from a study of building conditions in England and France, said:

"Above everything else all necessary building operations must be kept going on as extensive a scale as the supply of labor in the building crafts will permit. If building operations generally slacken it will mean a let down in all other lines of business. It will mean the creation of a still more acute building shortage, higher rents, increased costs of living and general unemployment."

Mr. Straus believes stabilization of building costs is a remedy for the present situation and that it can be effected only through an equalization of demand and supply.

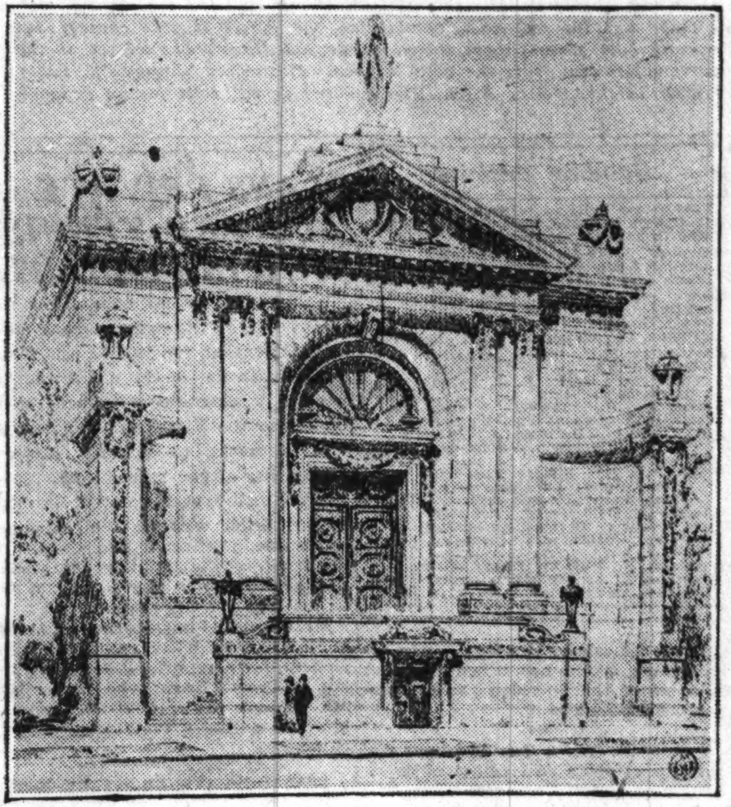
"It is the patriotic duty of labor, finance, contractors, material interests, and all other elements to concentrate their efforts on such types of buildings as are most vitally necessary to the general welfare of the respective communities," he said, "thus giving to the people the buildings now most needed and postponing for the future benefit of the industry the construction of such structures as can be delayed in the interest of public welfare."

"Such a program will, in my opinion, stabilize prices and assure a long period of prosperity not only in the building industry but in all lines of business as well."

Buy Seven Story Building to Get Tower for Big Sign

In order to get control of the tower on the seven story Plamondon building, at the northwest corner of Clinton and Monroe, for advertising purposes, the Twentieth Century Press has bought the entire property, land, and building from the Plamondon estate for an undisclosed consideration through Robert White & Co., who will manage it. It will be renamed the Twentieth Century Press building. The new owners have been tenants for the last four years. They tried repeatedly to make arrangements to place a gigantic electric sign on the tower, but were unsuccessful, so when opportunity offered they bought the building. The property fronts 109 feet on Clinton and 79 on Monroe.

Dr. John B. Murphy Memorial



Above is the accepted design by Marshall & Fox for the $500,000 Dr. John B. Murphy memorial to be erected on the north side of East Erie street, between Cass and Rush, by the Murphy Memorial association and presented to the American College of Surgeons. Practically the entire $500,000 has been subscribed. Wreckers are now busy on the old improvements on the 75x109 foot site. Excavation will start shortly and the corner stone will be laid by Mayor Dever.

The principal feature of the memorial will be the 1,000 seat auditorium and the research library which was started with Dr. Murphy's personal collection given by Mrs. Murphy to the college. The auditorium will be open to all medical societies of Chicago. The American College of Surgeons was founded in 1913 and has 6,290 members in North and South America.

According to Walter E. Carr, secretary of the memorial association, the erection of the Murphy memorial will do much to make Chicago the surgical center of the western hemisphere. The building will be of Bedford stone. Its design is based on a memorial building in Paris.

Women Principals in West Side $150,000 Flat Deal

Ellen B. Collins of Glen Ellyn has sold the eighteen apartments at the southwest corner of Central Park boulevard and Adams street, lot 75x200, to Elsye D. Boehm and Bertha Lurie, for a reported $150,000. Collins & Gauntlett represented the seller and Boehm & Winterson the buyers.

Plan $200,000 Apartments for South Park Avenue

Edward B. Waldron and Goodman Wallem will erect a thirty-six apartment building in Pullman on South Park avenue, across from the Pullman Manual Training school. William A. Morrow & Co., architects, are drawing plans and will finance the project. The cost is esitmated at $200,000. Work will start about June 15th.

K. OF C. TO BUILD $700,000 CLUB ON WEST MADISON

Will Be Largest of Kind Outside New York.

BY AL CHASE.

Chicago is to have the second largest Knights of Columbus clubhouse and recreation center in the United States. It will be on West Madison street, between Cicero and Kilpatrick avenues; will cost $700,000, and will be exceeded in size only by one in New York City. Seven west side councils, with a membership of 7,500, have organized the Knights of Columbus West Side Building corporation, and expect to break ground within a week.

The brick and stone fireproof structure designed by Shattuck & Layer will accommodate 5,000 men and 500 women. There'll be a swimming tank for members and their families which will be the second largest in Chicago.

The plans call for sixteen bowling alleys, fifteen billiard and pool tables, the above mentioned tank, twenty-five showers for men and five for women, lockers for 3,000 men and 500 for women and a refreshment counter, all in the basement.

Ballroom on First Floor.

On the first floor will be five stores, a ballroom 80x95, a gymnasium 80x50, two exercise rooms, a kitchenette, lobby and lounge.

On the next floor above will be the "grand council chamber," 90x50, memorial lobby, ballroom promenade and running track, with smoking and rest rooms.

A smaller council chamber, 50x25; a library and waiting room, administration offices, and three handball courts, with an eighty foot passageway for baseball throwing, quoits, etc., will be on the third floor.

Days and hours for the youngsters are to be set aside each week so they can enjoy the privileges of the building.

Offer Bonds to Public.

The initial fund for the purchase of the site and other expenses was contributed by the seven councils taking part, and the remainder of the cost is being met by a bond issue now being offered members of the big Catholic organization throughout the city and state.

"The purpose of the building is to give lodge room and ballroom accommodations to all the councils of the Knights of Columbus on the west side," said an official, "and to give a community center to the members of the seven councils in the enterprise and their families."

The councils forming the building corporation and their representatives on the board of directors are: Americus council, John J. Powers; Father Setters council, State Deputy and Supreme Director Edward Houlihan; Charles Carroll council, James J. Walsh, secretary of the corporation; Damen council, John Gorman; Hughes council, Dr. Joseph J. Russell; Phil Sheridan council, John J. Collins.

Build Thirty Apartments Opposite Columbus Park

Work is under way on thirty apartments at the southeast corner of Central avenue and Congress, overlooking Columbus park, from plans by A. L. Klewer. The cost of land and building is placed at $250,000. The site is 118x141. The building will be called the Maximilian St. George apartments. The Madison and Kedzie State bank has underwritten a bond issue.

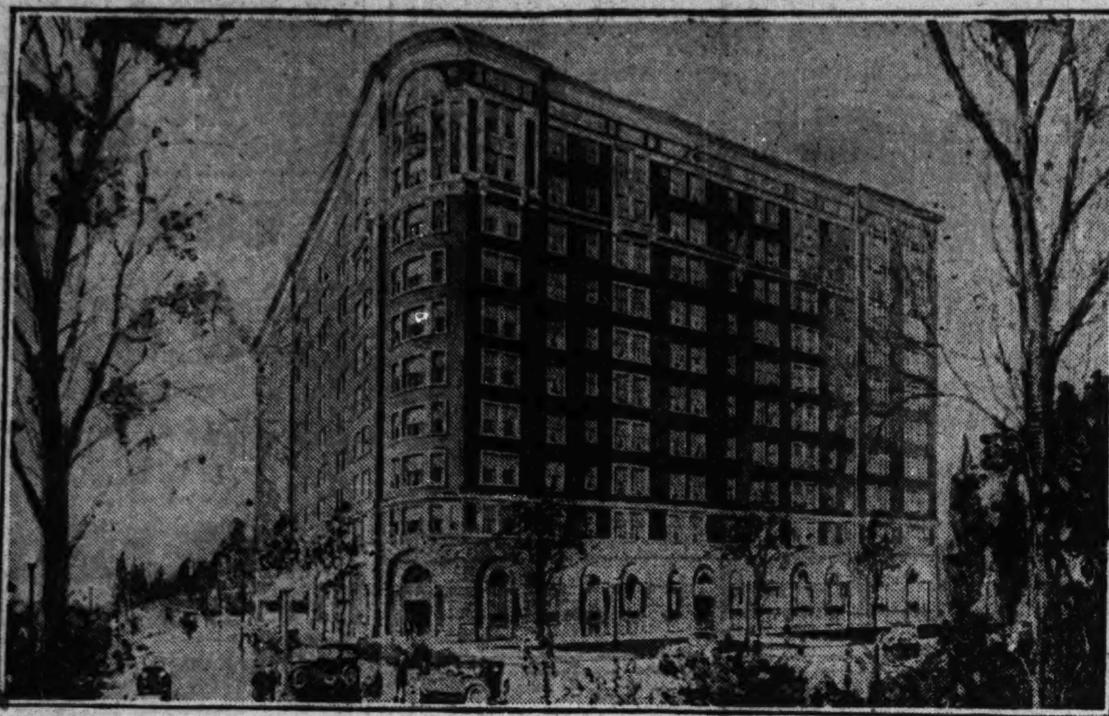
South Shore View Apartment Hotel



Work is now under way on the ten story South Shore View apartment hotel, designed by William P. Doerr, at 7100-08 South Shore drive, told about in this department on April 21. It will front north 166 feet, overlooking the South Shore Country club, and 100 feet east, overlooking the lake. It will contain 144 furnished kitchenette apartments. The main hotel dining room, lobby, lounge, and three shops will be on the first floor. Meals may be served in apartments direct from the hotel kitchen. The owner, Clarence T. Seipp, has negotiated a $1,300,000 bond issue with Leight, Holzer & Co. The building permit calls for an expenditure of $1,500,000.

JACKSON BOULEVARD LEASE.

PLANS PRIVATE BUS AND TENNIS FOR HIS TENANTS

William Walsh has bought the 50x250 at 2718-20 Hampden court, from Kurt Rosenthal, for $40,000, and given Kurt Rosenthal & Co. a contract to erect a kitchenette apartment hotel similar to the Florentine building, at 4864 Magnolia, to contain fifty-one apartments of two rooms each.

Mr. Walsh expects to erect an ornamental brick wall on the Hampden court side, putting a tennis court in the back of the building for guests, and also plans to run a private bus to the loop for his tenants.

Mr. Rosenthal bought the site recently from George Kleine, moving picture pioneer, for a reported $31,000, according to Crowe Bros., who represented Mr. Kleine. Harold T. Peterson of Kurt Rosenthal & Co. represented Mr. Rosenthal.

SPAULDING AVENUE CORNER SOLD.

Anna Kliger and David C. Nidetz have sold the sixteen apartments at the southeast corner of Spaulding and Eastwood, to Geza Menkina for a reported $107,000, subject to $85,000. Harry Z. Perel of Perel, Saltiel & Perel were attorneys for the sellers.

TEN BLOCKS OF BUILDINGS TO BE TORN DOWN

New Boulevard to Wipe Out 204 Structures.

What is claimed to be Chicago's largest wrecking job was started during the week on the south side. The American House Wrecking company began the demolition of ten blocks of houses, flats, factories, breweries, etc., extending along the west side of South Park avenue from 33d street north to 23d street. There are 204 buildings to be torn down.

This is in connection with the widening of South Park avenue between 35th and 23d streets, and its transformation into Grand boulevard, which will be the new name of the widened avenue north from 35th into Grant Park. A few weeks ago we told of the American House Wrecking company starting tearing down the houses and apartments between 35th and 33d.

Pays Park Board $27,550.

For the new contract with the South park commissioners the wrecking concern will pay the park board $27,550, they being highest bidder for the buildings. In this case, of course, highest bidder gets the job, for nowadays there's such keen competition between the wrecking concerns that they pay to do the work, taking the material. Naturally, the firm that'll pay the most gets the job.

The American concern is under $25,000 bond to get the entire 204 buildings wiped off the map inside of ninety days. Among the structures to come down are the old McEvoy brewery buildings, the two big five story McClennan blocks at 31st street, several five story warehouses, a police station, and a fire station.

Will Salvage 20,000,000 Bricks.

Out of the 204 buildings it is figured 20,000,000 bricks will be salvaged and about 8,000,000 feet of lumber, practically all of which will go into Chicago buildings now under construction.

Up till now the wrecking of the N. K. Fairbank company plant, also being done by the American House Wrecking company, was said to be Chicago's largest wrecking job.

Mandarin Inn to Have New Balcony and Dance Floor

Minchin, Spitz & Co. are drawing plans for remodeling the Mandarin Inn café at 426 South Wabash, at a cost estimated at $150,000. A new balcony and dance floor will be installed.

OAK PARK YOUNGSTER WINS SUBDIVISION CHRISTENING CONTEST

Gordon Edward Armbruster of 804 North Taylor avenue, Oak Park, 10 years old, won the $25 prize offered for the best name for the new subdivision of G. Whittier Gale & Co., at Lathrop and Division, in River Forest. Gordon's suggestion was "Woodland View."

"There were 200 suggestions from school boys and girls all over northern Illinois," said Tom Roberts of G. Whittier Gale & Co. "There was every possible combination of the syllables of the words Lathrop, Division, Whittier, Gale and even Roberts and also Rosary and Rose on account of its nearness to Rosary college."

Mr. Roberts has a plan whereby some of the 199 losers may make even more than the young Mr. Armbruster did. He is offering each contestant $50 if he can show that he directed the attention of a lot purchaser to the subdivision.

STATE AND 54TH SOLD.

W. D. Foreman, makers of axle shafts and other automobile equipment, now at Prairie and 16th, has bought the one and two story building at the northeast corner of State and 54th, 99x163, from James J. Harrington, for $60,000. He also bought the 50x163 adjacent on the north and will build an annex to his new quarters. J. J. Harrington & Co. were brokers.

Y. M. C. A. TO HAVE SUMMER COURSE IN REAL ESTATE

Harry G. Atkinson, dean of the Y. M. C. A. school of commerce, announces that an eight weeks' summer term in intensive real estate conveyancing will be conducted by H. L. Reeve, city attorney of Berwyn, at the Central Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle. The opening session will be held next Tuesday evening at 5:45 in Room 721.

"The course is not a lecture course," said Mr. Atkinson, "but consists of the actual handling in a practical way of various real estate deals covering all of that class of work the average broker is ordinarily called on to handle. The members of the class actually draw real estate contracts, mortgages, and other documents relating to realty deals."

North Shore Plans New Highland Park Station

The Chicago, North Shore and Milwauke railroad has bought for a reported $26,000 cash the old two story garage property adjoining the old Highland Park Trust and Savings bank on the north, facing west on St. John's avenue, in Highland Park, and will shortly erect a two story waiting room and ticket office. W. H. McKillip was seller. Murray & Terry represented both parties.

North Side Flats to Be Remodeled Into a Hotel

The five story building at the northwest corner of La Salle and Eugenie, just south of Georgian court, is being remodeled from thirty apartments of seven and eight rooms into a hotel to be known as Lincoln Park Mansions. It'll have 100 single rooms and twenty kitchenettes of two rooms each, and cost about $50,000. Daniel J. Shaffner is architect. It will be completed in sixty days.

$2,500,000 APTS. AT SENECA AND DELAWARE, PLAN

W. J. Rinn Sells Corner at $130,000 Profit.

Big apartment hotels and big profits are getting so commonplace in Streeterville that they don't attract much attention these days. Here is a combination of both. Walter J. Rinn last March bought the southwest corner of Delaware and Seneca, 231x109, from the Ridgecroft Real Estate trust for $170,000. Plans for a huge hotel were announced, but they never materialized.

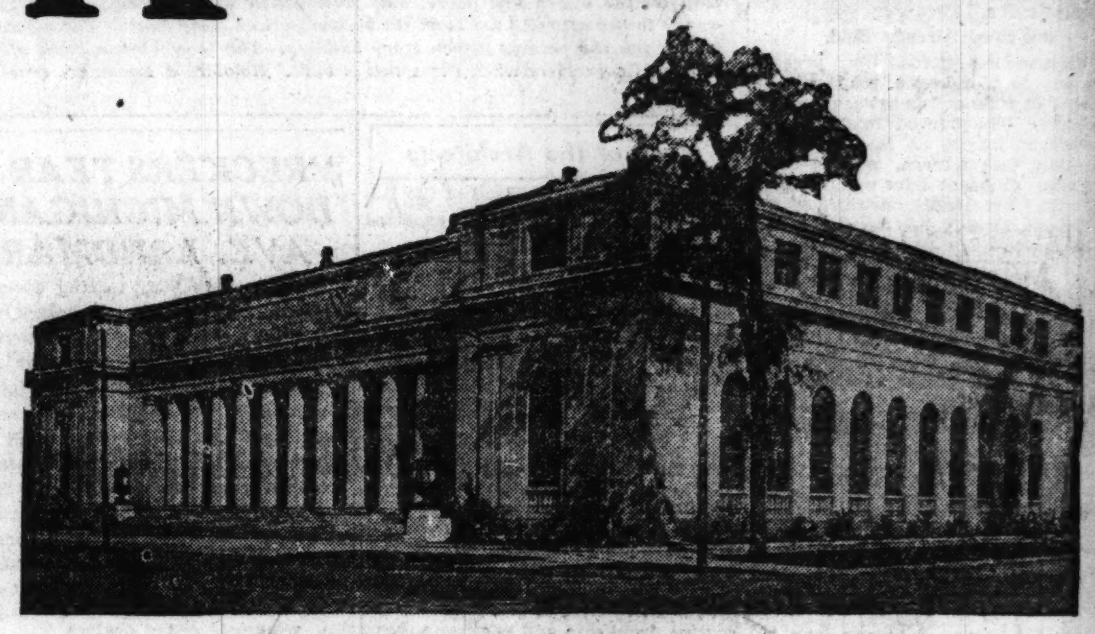
Now he has sold the corner to E. B. Woolf for a reported $300,000—which isn't a bad three months' profit, even for Streeterville. The latter sale was negotiated by Callistus S. Ennis & Co. and Ross & Co.

Mr. Woolf, who has built the Surf and several other hotels and apartments, intends to erect a fourteen story apartment building on his Gold Coast corner, to cost about $2,500,000, and to contain flats of from three to ten rooms. He expects to start work some time this summer. The site is just east of the Casino.

STANDARD OIL BUYS CORNERS.

The Standard Oil company has bought the 370 feet of frontage on the north side of Pershing road, extending from Michigan to Wabash, with a depth of eighty feet, from the William B. Ogden estate, for $82,500. It also bought the southeast corner of Indianapolis and Ewing avenues, 115x153, for $35,000.

KEWANEE



U. S. Postoffice, Columbia, S. C., Two No. 108 Kewanee Boilers

The biggest thing in a modern building

It takes real disaster sometimes to make people see the light. A great theatre burned and destroyed many lives before the public saw the wisdom of handy fire-exits. So, too, in this heating-boiler business. Many building-owners lost thousands of dollars in profits before they realized that the boiler was the thief.

Many building-owners lost thousands in profits, burning high-priced coal, before they learned that the KEWANEE ALL-STEEL FIREBOX BOILER burns any kind of coal, even the cheapest grades, with precisely the same effect. They had to be hit by financial disaster before they even looked for the seat of the disease.

The tendency of the times today is to look into the heating-boiler proposition first. Because it has become plain that the heating-boiler is the foundation of the building's success. In former years the heating-boiler was looked upon as an incident, the same as gas-fixtures and water-faucets. And the more the public learns, the more it investigates, the better the Kewanee Boiler sells. Today the finest and most successful buildings in this country, boast of the Kewanee's presence.

The renting of big buildings today—the sale of big buildings today—prospers far more with the Kewanee Boiler as an argument than with any other renting or sales-talk that can be used. Talk is cheap, but the Kewanee Boiler is an asset—a standing invitation to better prices and more profits. Ask any high-class architect or heating engineer.

And if you want all the details, write to the Old Man Behind the Boiler—at Kewanee. He is a terror for facts and figures

The love story of an Irish poet

By Donn Byrne

Sheerest tulle is pressed as beautifully and easily as your heavier frocks

1 Heating unit will not burn out—guaranteed
No delays waiting for the repair man. Always ready at a moment's notice.

2 Perfect heat distribution
As the Sunbeam is pushed forward, it carries extra heat at the edges, as well as the point, to meet the first shock of dampened cloth.

3 Improved design
Adapts itself to flat or fancy pieces and does nicer ironing on all.

4 Smoother ironing surface
Super-polish is so perfect that starch cannot stick or find a place to char and smudge.

5 Cooler handle
Saves your strength and energy by preventing fatigue. The weekly ironings seem smaller.

6 Reinforced plug guard
Prevents plug from breaking if iron is dropped.

7 New patent Multi-Plug
Regular Sunbeam equipment that can be used on your toaster, waffle iron, percolator, etc., when their cords or plugs give out.

Seven improvements now make ironing easier, quicker, smoother

You can now buy a better iron than you were ever able to buy before. The one perfect iron — with all latest improvements and seven super-features that give absolute assurance of perfect ironing.

See what these improvements mean to you!

The Sunbeam heating unit will not burn out—it's guaranteed. This unit is unlike all others—it spreads from point to heel, and edge to edge! Heat is so perfectly distributed that each stroke leaves a wider path of wonderfully smooth fabric behind it. So with Sunbeam your ironing is done in less time and more easily.

Even the design is new. Tucks, pleats and ruffles are now so simple to iron! Starched pieces come out beautifully because the ironing surface is given a super-polish—starch cannot stick or char! Sunbeam's cooler handle gives you ironing comfort. Your week's ironing will seem so much smaller.

Sunbeam's reinforced plug guard gives full protection against breakage of the plug. And what a convenience to have our patented Multi-plug and cord that you can use with other electric appliances in your home.

It is well to remember that each Sunbeam is actually a bond which represents the reputation of an old established Chicago company that has been making quality products for the past 33 years. Its guarantee is in full force as long as you are a Sunbeam owner! Sunbeam will never fail you.

On your dealer's counter you can tell a Sunbeam immediately by its more attractive appearance, substantial nickel-plated stand, and silk bound blue cord. Look for it—you can buy it where electric appliances are sold.

PADDOCK'S FAMOUS LEAP caught at Paris as the Yankee collegian equaled the world's record of :09 3-5 for 100 yards. This final lunge for the tape is supposed to clip some fraction of a second from a sprinter's time. It also has a psychological effect—in a close finish the eyes of the judges naturally are drawn to the man who leaps at the finish line as Charley is leaping here. Arthur Duffy, the first amateur to do the century in :09 3-5, finished with this jump. So do other famous sprinters today, notably Loren Murchison and Howard Drew. The latter is also a :09 3-5 man.

Now is the time to wash your blankets. A clean blanket is practically moth-proof

To wash your blankets at home without shrinking or matting them~

Laundered this way they last for years

THIS very month, before putting them away is the time to wash your blankets. They must be put away clean, of course, to protect them from moths.

It is the soiled places on wool and wool nap that moths attack. A clean blanket is almost moth-proof.

Try washing your blankets at home this year. Lux makes the laundering of even your big, handsome ones safe.

Blankets will last for years if washed according to the directions given herewith. A single careless washing ruins them, for wool is as sensitive as a baby's skin. Strong soap or rubbing will shrink and felt wool so that it becomes harsh and scratchy.

Lux won't shrink your blankets. It is absolutely pure—there is no free alkali or any other ingredient in it to hurt the delicate wool fibres.

Great blanket manufacturer tells why he recommends Lux

The manufacturer of the finest blankets in America, expert in the care of blankets, says "Extra care must be taken in the choice of soaps used to wash wool. Harsh soaps shrink and mat it, turn it yellow and weaken the fibre.

"The tests and experiments we have made have demonstrated that Lux is an ideal product for washing blankets. It will cleanse the finest woolens with entire safety."

The safe way to wash blankets

A rich, live suds throughout is essential. Use 2 tablespoonfuls of Lux to every gallon of water.

Dissolve Lux in very hot water; whisk to a thick lather. Add cold water until lukewarm. Souse blankets up and down and squeeze suds through. If suds die down, add more Lux. Never rub blankets. Rinse in three or more lukewarm waters of same temperature as suds. Fold evenly and run through loose wringer or fold and hang dripping. Stretch and pull blanket into shape at intervals during the drying process.

Achieved! True distinction in a shingle 50% thicker; 100% stiffer; with absolutely exclusive color effects

ON your street, how many roofs would you look at twice? How many would you pause to admire?

In addition to weather protection, beauty in roofing is coming to be more and more important. To meet this demand, a new slate-surfaced shingle has been created—one of outstanding distinction in its combined serviceability and beauty.

This unique product, the Richardson Super-Giant Shingle, will give you a maximum of permanent satisfaction in your new roof. Note, for example, its serviceability.

First, because it is 37% larger than the ordinary shingle, fewer are needed to cover a given roofing area. Thus the cost of laying is 35% less.

Second, it is 50% thicker than the ordinary shingle and therefore lasts much longer. Incidentally, this greater thickness casts a deeper shadow line that gives life and interest to the roof.

Third, because it is 100% stiffer than the ordinary shingle, it remains rigid in the strongest wind, and makes the whole roof twice as firm.

Beauty hitherto unknown

ON this super-shingle exclusively is used a color in slate hitherto unknown—a rich weathered brown, found only in the Richardson quarries of Georgia.

It is as beautiful as the russet of November fields, and with use it mellows and deepens to a shade like the thatch of an English cottage.

No stained wood shingles can rival this rare color. You can easily see why when you remember that nature has created it as she does her jewels—by pressing it for ages under mountains of earth and rock.

Weathered brown brings new beauty to the modern home, architects say, especially when it is blended with other Richardson shingles of jade green, tile red, or black pearl.

Its inner secrets

BUT, of course, the true measure of roofing service goes beyond the color or size of the shingle to the materials in it. As you know, slate-surfaced shingles are built on a base or core of felt impregnated with asphalt and surfaced under pressure with slate granules.

Exceptional quality in these three materials makes the Richardson Super-Giant the finest slate-surfaced shingle produced.

Take, for instance, the felt upon which depends the very life of your roof. Richardson felt, so architects or roofing dealers will tell you, has for fifty years been recognized and used as the best. The asphalt is refined exclusively by the Richardson process from the highest grade raw materials. And the flakes of slate surfacing, found only in the Richardson quarries, seal the shingle permanently against weather and fire hazards.

Prove the facts yourself

A SUPER-SHINGLE indeed, when you weigh its points one by one! First—unusual dimensions which give you added roofing protection at ⅓ less in cost of laying. Second—absolutely exclusive color effects. And finally—exceptionally high test standards in its three materials; felt, asphalt, and slate surfacing.

Go to your nearest dealer in lumber, hardware or building material, or to your contractor, and ask to see the Richardson Super-Giant Shingle in weathered brown. Feel it, weigh it, measure it, note the rare color. Then compare it with ordinary shingles—the difference will convince you.

Meanwhile, send for our beautiful new color chart showing the exclusive color combinations of Richardson slate surfacing, and containing valuable facts on roofing. Perhaps, too, our booklet, "Roofing on the Farm," can help. Just use the coupon below.

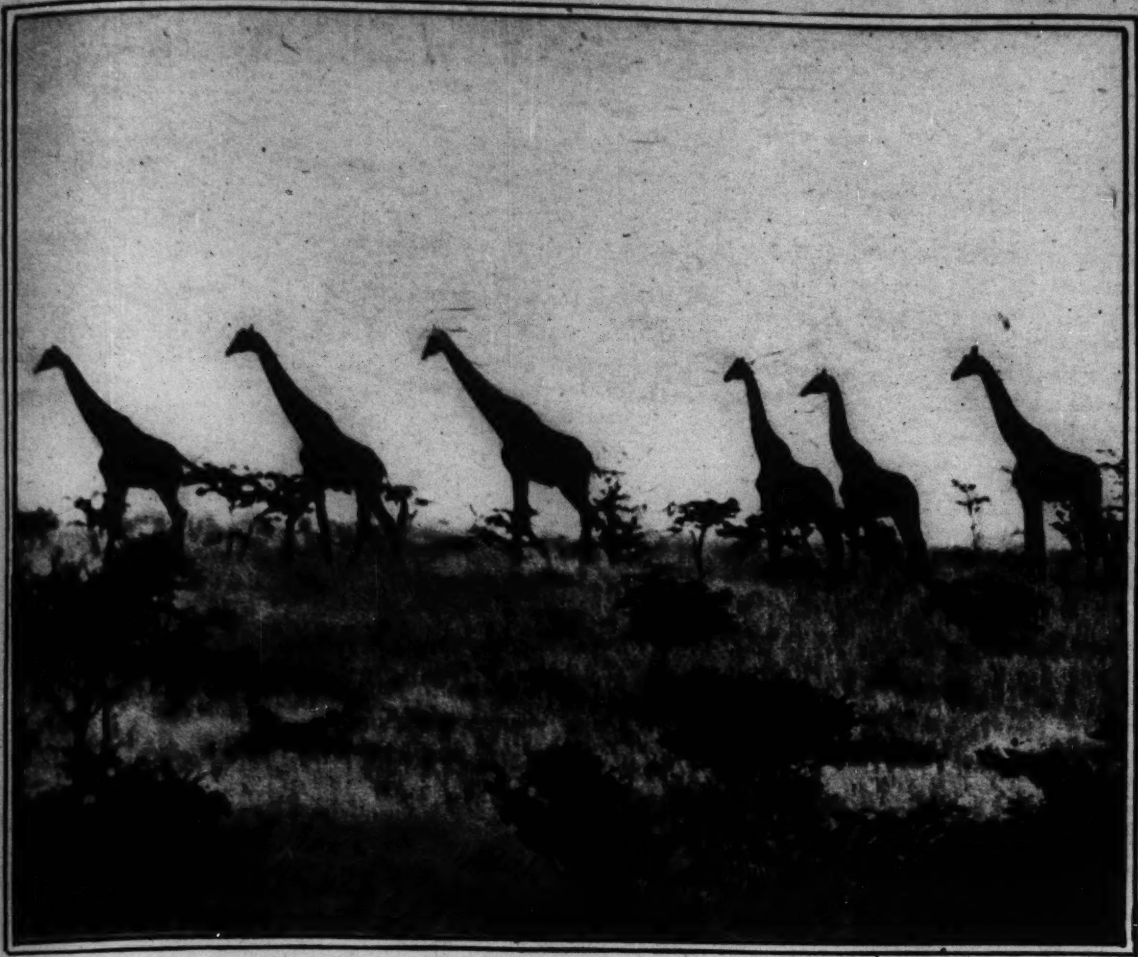
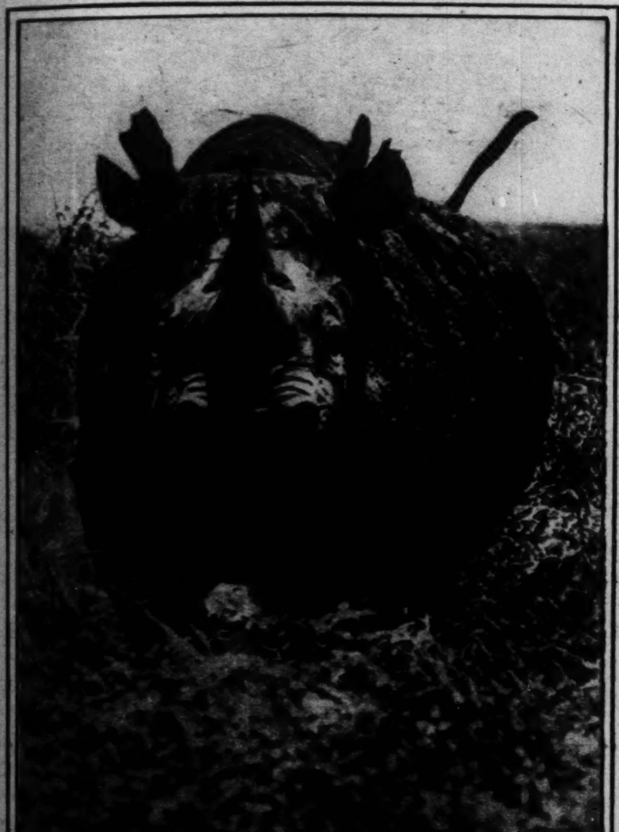
SHOOTING BIG GAME WITH A CAMERA



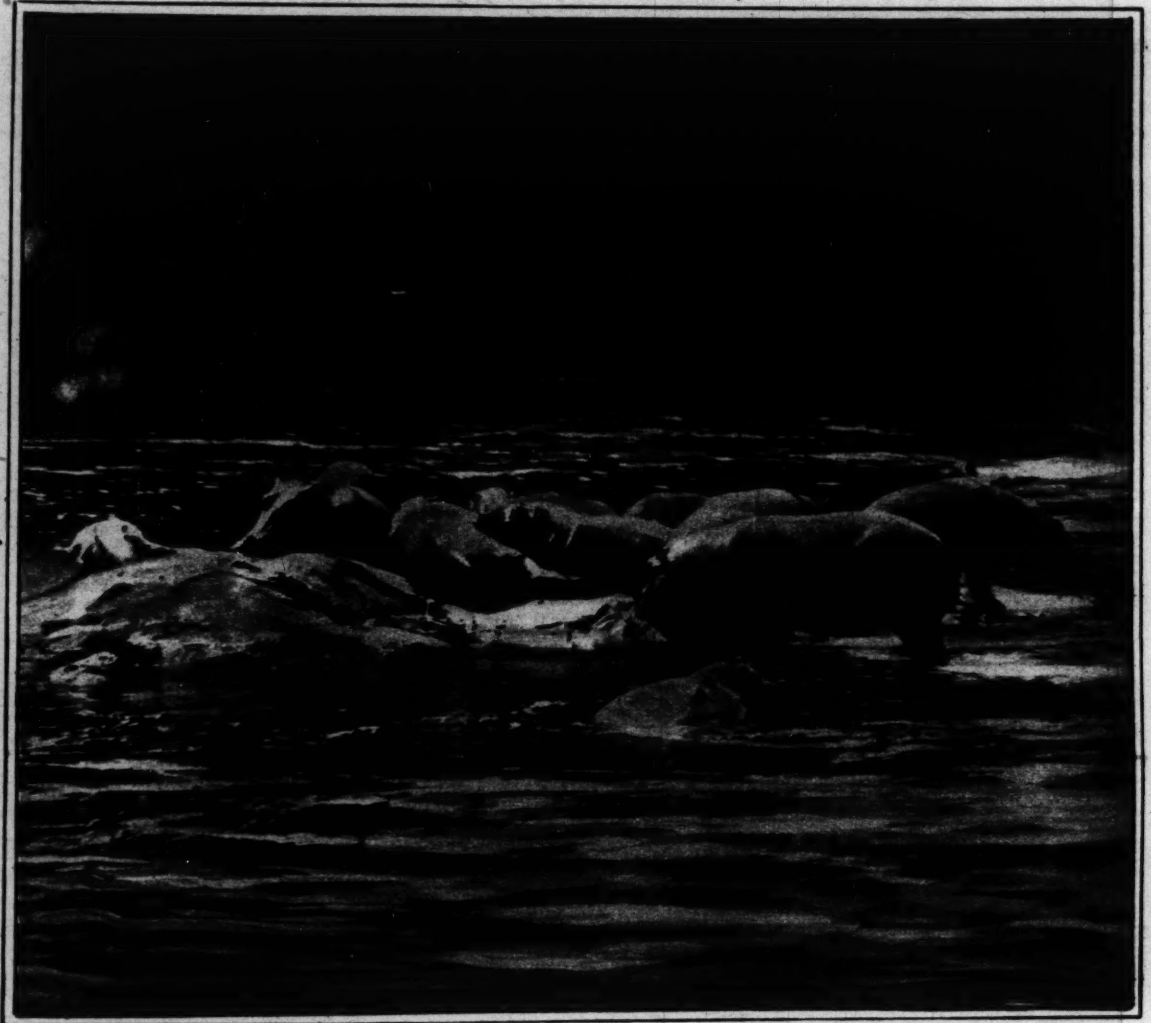
THE GIRAFFE LOOKS DOWN ON the other denizens of the wilds. These are the giants of the animal kingdom, the male sometimes towering eighteen feet high. Note how the trees are dwarfed by the great height of this herd.

A LIONESS' DINNER INTERRUPTED by the photographer's flash. Her cache for her kill was located while she was absent. Three cameras, connected by electricity, boomed out only sixteen yards away and snapped her picture as she returned to eat.



THE DEADLY RHINOCEROS, ONLY 16 YARDS AWAY, prepares to charge as the flashlight roars. Jungle explorers armed with the heaviest of rifles are wary of this huge beast. Its crashing charge is sure death to any living thing it strikes.

(All photographs from International.)



THE HIPPOPOTAMUS FAMILY noses in the waters of the Tana river for aquatic plant, its usual food. The crocodile at the left does not appear sociable.

MAJ. A. RADCLIFFE DUGMORE headed an expedition which spent five months in the African jungles. His "game" was pictures, not the game itself. He never killed a beast, but he returned to London with some of the most remarkable wild animal photographs ever secured. The ones on this page all were taken from a range of only a few yards.

"O, Snowy Breasted Pearl"

By Donn Byrne

The Love Story of an Irish Lad—a Blessed Poet—and the Silver Girl of His Golden Dreams.

IT is one of the minor canons of writing that no story or poem should be written about an author, and I remember examining this once, and finding there were good and urgent reasons for it, but what they were I seem to have forgotten. Moreover, it doesn't matter very much, for when I tell the history of Desmond Fitzjohn I am not writing about the poet and dramatist we have all in our minds, I am writing the love story of a poor young man.

As far as the poet and dramatist goes, let us touch on that now and have it done with. About eight years ago there appeared in the periodicals poems at the end of stories and articles accredited to Desmond Fitzjohn. They were very good poems. They dealt mainly with the glory of ancient chivalric figures or voiced a nostalgia for Ireland.

Where most Irish verse is melodious and facile, following the school of Thomas Moore, these had power and a rugged grandeur. It wasn't merely the playing of a rhymester with a great figure—the poet really admired and felt for Mary, the Queen of Scots, and Cromwell, the Lord Protector. Nor were the nostalgic pieces the usual whine of the professed Irish poet for Ireland and his old mother, bleating in the comfort of a New York hotel for the black bog water and the little roads. This man was hungry for the yellow of the gorse. The dry tinkle of the wind-swept heather was louder in his ear drums than the roar of the elevated train. There was a poet who meant what he said.

And then the director of a review published five pages of "The Old Age of Porfirio Diaz," and there was gladness through the land. A new poet had been born.

Yet we heard nothing of him, who he was, where he lived, what was his nationality. Irish, English, or Pole—English and Poles have a curious and refreshing nostalgia for Ireland—and then came the play "Appassionata," and its conventional Italian background, its figures writhing with drama, and the poor, harassed woman with the vital, throbbing speech. There was one person more surprised by the enormous success than the author, and that was the producer.

"Lis'en, kid, they ain't no credit coming to me," the producer will tell you, and he will roll a cigar from side to side of his wide mouth and rub a chin that has not been shaved for three days. "It's this way. They been putting up a holler about the shows I been putting on, see? They been saying, why don't I put on something good, see? Something highbrow. So I says, I'll give them some highbrow punishment, see? So I feeds them this, see? And they eat it up and holler for more. I thought it would flop in a week. It all comes to this," he adds despondently; "we don't none of us ever know nothing."

WHEN the play was assured of success they excavated the author and found him to be a young Irishman with curling black hair and gray eyes, a face that would have been pretty but for the hard lines of suffering in it. Where the newspaper men expected to find "one of the boys," a reporter who had made a lucky hit, they found a very self-possessed young man who was unquestionably a gentleman, whose name was Desmond Fitzhugh Fitzjohn, with a genealogy extending back to the days of the Conqueror—whose university had been gray Trinity of Dublin. An old Norman-Irish family of Wexford, he confessed smilingly, who had fallen upon evil days. Land purchase, taxation, God knows what had impoverished them. Yes, they had a castle, an old Norman stronghold in the Wexford hills. Did he expect to go back there? Yes, one day, possibly soon. He was very polite, very smiling, but there was a reserve past which they could not go, and they decided it was aristocratic hauteur of the less offensive kind.

But if they got little camaraderie from him they got an immense amount of material, and they wrote of the Norman-Irish side in an extremely flamboyant way. The castle in Wexford, now crumbling with romantic decay, was featured strongly, and in a little while there arose a legend about him of aristocracy coming once more into letters, and mention was made of Sir Walter Raleigh, Sir Philip Sidney, Lord Byron. A middle western journal referred reverently to the author of "Appassionata" as the Earl of Wexford.

All about him was the atmosphere of Irish nobility. His apartment in Madison avenue had in it the flavor of ancient Irish, ancient Norman days, old carved chests, the gold and rose of mass vestments; the prints of the walls, old hunting days, and the assembly of the Irish parliament in the period of Castlereagh. There was a heraldic device, there two old portraits. Out of the squalor of a boarding house he had come to this magnificence. It was very like the restoration of an exiled king. There the old body servant, not Irish but Scotch. There the serried ranks of books. There himself in the morning in turf-smelling tweeds; in the evening in black and white. "Appassionata" had brought him all this.

He had not in himself in any way changed from the days of his poverty. Old friends of boarding houses grudged him nothing. They had always known of his pedigree, and they had always been aware of his innate decency and chivalry. And they will tell stories about him of how he would share his last cent, or rather not share it but give it. Also they will speak of his own peculiarity, of how any story of ill treatment of children made him tremble and all but cry; in point of fact, once or twice actually cry. And he would never go near the meanest parts of the city for the reason that the sight of cold and ill-cared for children affected him so much.

There is a very interesting light on his character that Margot Kennedy, the actress, gives. Margot was, and possibly is still, a fine actress, but she has dropped out of sight, not having been on Broadway for some time. She is a fine woman, she has a big, warm heart, but she has one failing: she is addicted to continual and deplorably thorough love affairs. She claims, as the greatest matter to her credit, that she turned Desmond's genius toward the stage when they were living in the same boarding house off Broadway. "If it weren't for me, I think, there would be no 'Appassionata' and no 'Lafayette.'"

"Was he your sweetie, dearie?" a woman friend might ask, and not without a foundation of probability.

"He was not," Margot would answer with emphasis. "My God, dearie, but you've a rotten mind! Desmond's the nicest kid and decentest gentleman it's ever been my fortune to meet. I'd as soon think of making love to a monk. Not that he isn't a man, every inch of him, but just——" That's that!

HE was liked by his old friends, liked by critics, and in the new circle in which he found himself he was liked, too. Now that he had fame and money his old friends were shy with him, as old friends are. And newer ties were calling him, that New York that has leisure and culture and money. The houses of bankers and great merchants beckoned, hunted, found. The years of walking back streets were made up for by saddle horses in the park. The cold and hungry winters of New York Destiny paid for by the soft Florida airs. And there were dancing and music. This success was not a whit less than Byron's in its way, considering the different age, the different competition.

He was very modest through it all. Success had not turned his head. When they wanted to know about poetic drama he told them of Ireland. He told them of an Ireland they had never suspected before, of an Ireland before Cromwell came, when the Normans were more Irish than the Irish themselves. Of titles beside which the newer earls and barons and dukes were the veriest labels of shops; the Four Knights of Ireland, the Black Knight, the White Knight, the Knight of Kerry, and the Knight of Glyn; and sonorous family titles, the Macgillicuddy of the Reeks, the O'Donoghue of the Glens, the O'Conor Don; bugle calls of a changing chivalry, the Ulster King at Arms, the Athlone Poursuivant. And he told them of a little colony in Wexford, a townland of peasants, where the dialect was half Norman-French. He spoke of his mother's people, the Fitzhughs, each with the strange Christian names, Gillese, Foulke, Bertran, Piers, and of the first of his race in Ireland, Sieur John Fitzjohn, Front de Boeuf, he was called, Bull's Head, and so big was he that only an eighteen hand horse could carry him.

All loved him, advised him, but his old friends were afraid of him a little, thinking that all this adulation, this playing among the rich, would atrophy his genius. And then came Lafayette.

"Because I have dreamed that an ancient deed may yet
Make old men's eyes grow moist, and the blood of the young men dance,
I call to your mind tonight how great Lafayette
Quitted the perfumed corridors of France
For the most frigid, gaunt, American wilderness—"

From the crash of the spoken prologue until the end, the house was spellbound; great pictures and the sweep of verse, the mincing nobles of France and Marie Antoinette, the poor, poor queen; the cloaked grim figure of Washington at Valley Forge; the shrill pipes of Boston—eh, how long ago! how long ago!

IN the midst of all the adulation and all the publicity he decided to return to Ireland. Perhaps he was afraid of this fame. Perhaps he wanted to think. Perhaps some picture remained in his subconscious mind that called him back. Perhaps it was just the terrible homesickness of the mountainy people that spares none, gentle or simple, so that a day comes when they must see the native mountains, or die. Perhaps—at any rate, he decided to go back.

And people painted scenes in their imagination of the return of Desmond Fitzhugh Fitzjohn to his family home, the ivy covered machicolated towers throwing squat black shadows on the green Irish turf. The great wolf hound he spoke of galloping to meet him down the gravelled drive. Old grizzled servants thanking God for the return of the young master over the seven bitter seas. And somewhere a piper piping a little burst of dance music in greeting, horses neighing a welcome from their paddocks. And a mother out of an old aristocratic romance putting out slender partician hands to him: "Desmond, my son!"

And they said: How easy for him to write romance, having been cradled in that sweet setting, how natural for him to see drama from the turrets of the towers around which Irish kerns and Norman nobles fought! What women could he draw, but great, noble women seeing the mother he told us of? How could his men be but gigantic from the stature of his family, and how could his songs not be musical when he has been hush-a-byed to the music of silver Irish pipes and his verse not be proud and swelling with the baying of the wolf hounds in his ears?

And they said: At any rate, who grudges it to him? Is there any on whom success better sits? And they said: Come back to us, Desmond. Don't stay too long dreaming by the Irish rivers and the Irish hills. Come back to us.

II.

THE truth was that his father had been one of the undergardeners at Perottscourt until he had been discharged for habitual drunkenness, while his mother was known the length and breath of the barony for her bitter and evil tongue. His father's name was Johnson, his mother's name MacHugh, and he had been christened Dennis.

Put back his memory as far as it can on its infantile path and the pictures in his mind will be of a wet and dark cabin on the Wexford hills, of heavy footsteps that were dreaded because the feet that could hardly find the doorstep were dreadfully agile at driving a kick at a small boy of seven. Ask him for his first memory of his mother and he will tell you it was a beating he received from her for having let fall an egg. Go further and you will hear of the egregious drunkenness of both, when they fought horrible battles against each other, while the poor child cowered whimpering with terror in a corner.

He was sent to school grudgingly because the law demanded it, and once there he plunged with a passion into books, as being some sort of escape from the life at home. And the old schoolmaster spoke to the older priest of the new marvel and prodigy he had seen in his old age.

"All my life I have dreamed," the old master said, "of having some pupil who could one day be a great man, and I have nearly come to sixty years and disappointment, and I think I have a great poet and I cannot believe it."

"And Sarah said," the old priest murmured, "shall I of a surety bear a child, which am old? Is anything too hard for the Lord?"

"It is Johnson's son, little Denny."

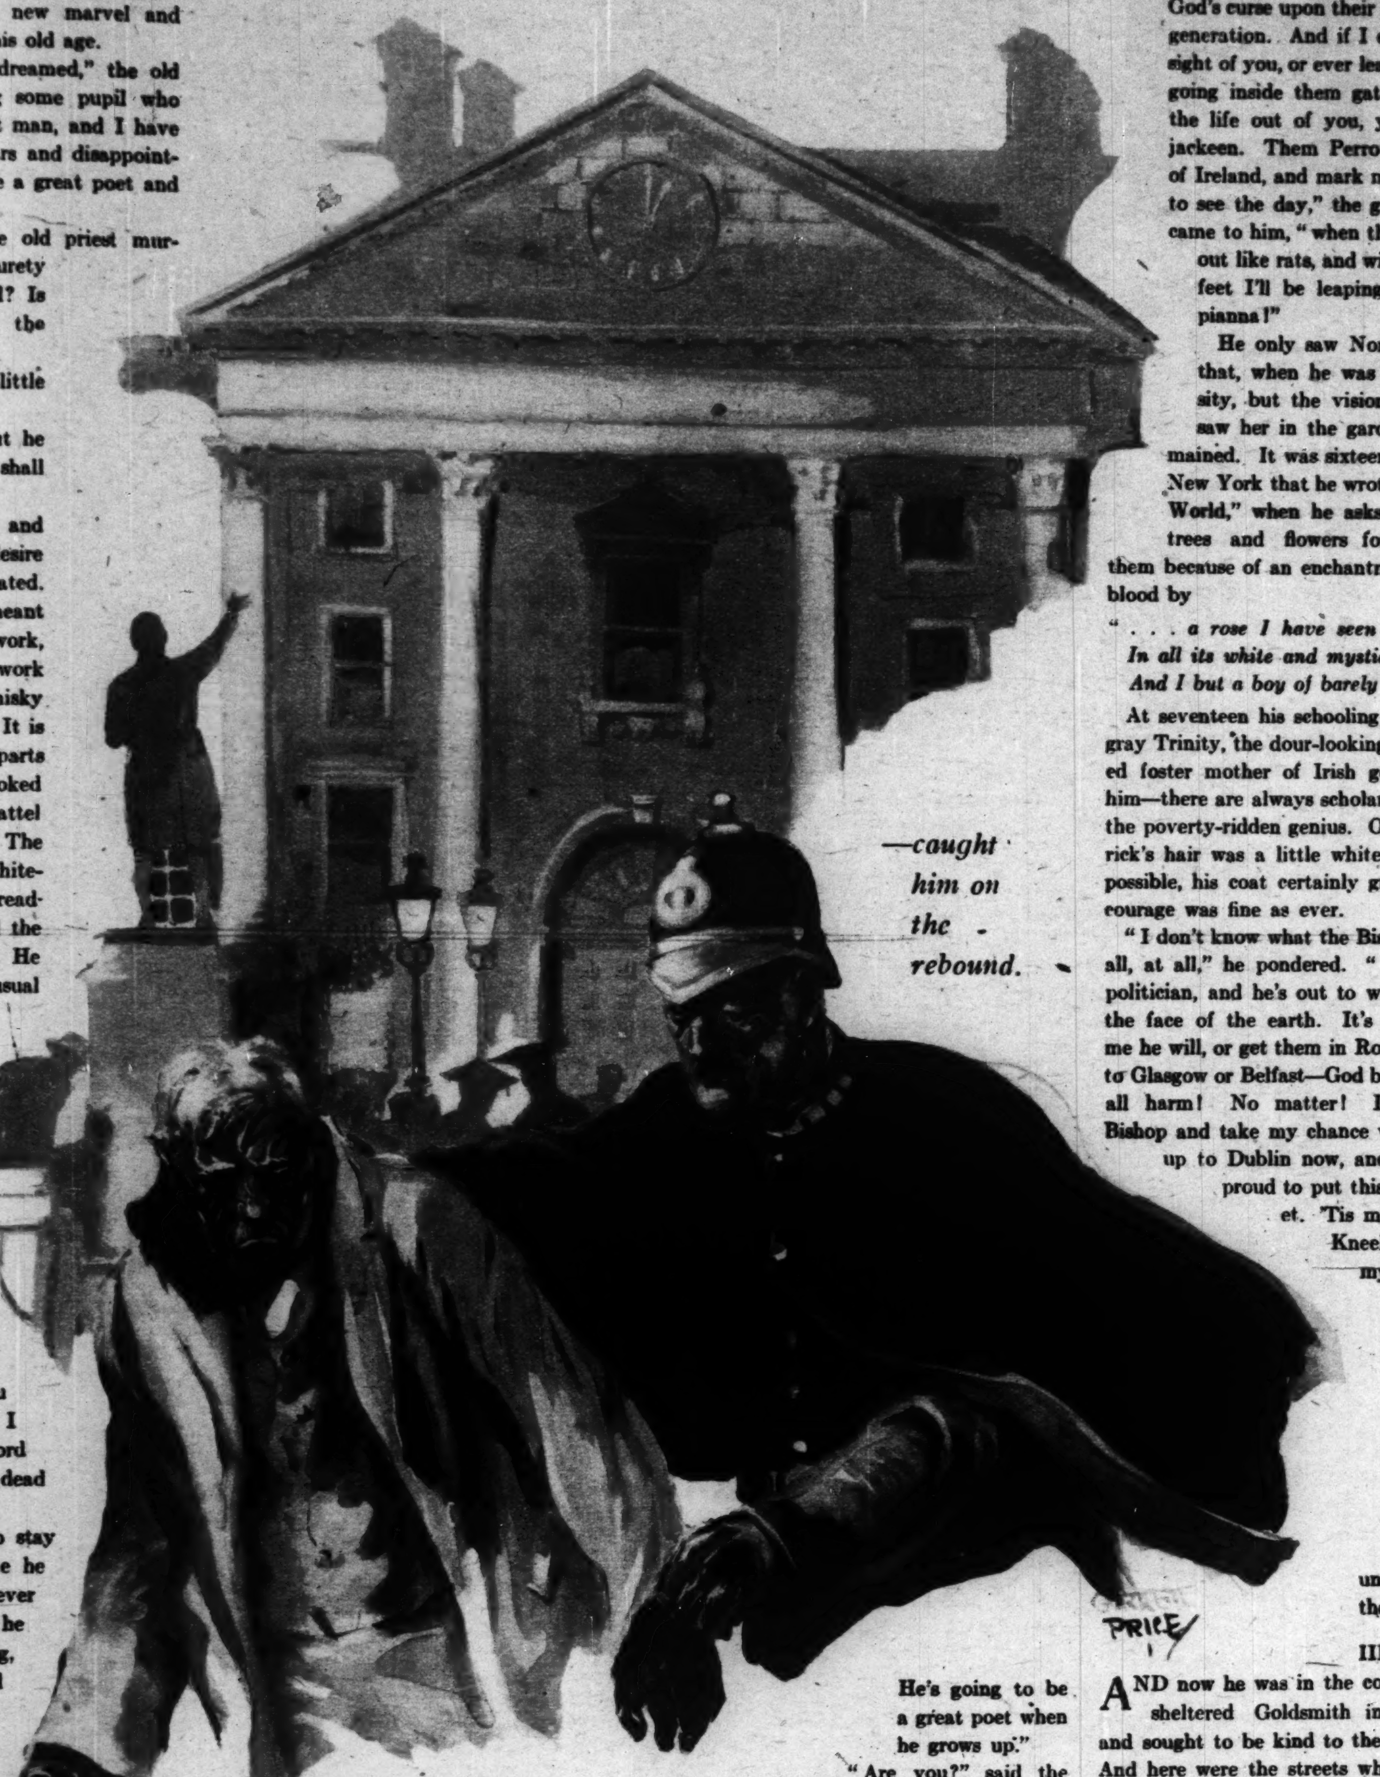
"Ah! That's bad. But he shall have his chance. He shall have his chance."

The drunken gardener and his bitter wife had no desire to see their son educated. Keeping him at school meant only keeping him from work, and keeping him from work meant less money for whisky and porter and idleness. It is a terrible thing, but in parts of Ireland a child is looked upon as no less of a chattel than a calf or donkey. The interference of the old white-headed priest with the threadbare greenish coat roused the drunkard to foaming rage. He vented his anger in the usual manner, which was to deal the boy a buffet that sent him hurtling across the room. The old priest became majestic with anger.

"I have never cursed a man in my life"—he drew himself up to all his gaunt height—"but if you hit this little child again I shall call upon the Lord Jesus Christ to strike you dead where you stand."

So he was permitted to stay at school, though at home he suffered for it. He was never allowed to forget that he should have been working, and every poor mouthful of poor food he ate was given him with the reminder that he was not entitled to it. Clothes he had next to none, nor any shoes, and in winter the Irish rain is very cold and in summer the road is treacherous with sharp gravel and thorns. But still he plodded his two miles to school every day and two miles back.

At home he was made to do all the work of the house that his mother was too lazy to do, and the only respite from it he had was when Father Patrick would call around and take him out on walks and, mounted on his hobby of old history, tell him of the days when the heavy Normans held sway in the land, how with knights and archers and men-at-arms they had penetrated from Waterford to Newry, and he told of Perrottscourt, where the Perrotts still were, and of its founder, Sir John Perrott, illegitimate son of the eighth Henry and brother of Queen Elizabeth, for whom he was viceroy of Ireland, and who later beheaded him. And of the great men of that day, Fiach McHugh O'Byrne, captain of Clan Ronal, and the Brown Geraldine and Fitzsimon, who held Carlow for her majesty.



—caught him on the rebound.

AND one day he took him into the garden of Perrottscourt, out of which his father had been kicked, and there in the rose garden they met a little girl.

"It's little Miss Nora," Father Patrick smiled. "Let you come here now, Nora Noreen."

Even at twelve her eyes and hair were beautiful, bluish, gray smudgy eyes, and long fair hair that was like scutched flax, silky and so silver as to seem nearly colorless, except when the sun caught it in a blaze of wonder.

"Do you know this little lad now? It's a little neighbor of yours, Nora Noreen, and a grand lad entirely."

"A friend of yours, Father Patrick?"

"O, sure, he's nearly the best friend I have. He's going to be a great poet when he grows up."

"Are you?" said the little girl, "I'm glad."

"You might so have him up and talk to him," the old priest urged. "Sure 'tis lonely he is."

"I wish you could come," she said, "you'd like it here. I'd like to show you the peacocks and the swans on the lane. And the Shetland pony, you can ride him. And see if you can find your way in the old maze. You will come, won't you?"

All little Dennis said was to break into tears.

But he was made to shake hands and say he would come. Old Father Patrick watched the sweet little lady and the ragged barefoot boy. There were tears in his faded old eyes.

"Little children," he quoted to himself, "keep yourselves from idols. Amen."

At the Johnson cabin the news of the invitation to visit Noreen at Perrottscourt was received by his father with yells of rage. The idea that a son of his should visit a place he had been thrown out of.

"By the Yerra God!" he swore, "'tis how I'd rather see you dead on this floor than moseying around with them kind. God's curse upon their breed, seed and generation. And if I ever get sign or sight of you, or ever learn word of you going inside them gates, I'll strangle the life out of you, you dirty little jackeen. Them Perrotts is the curse of Ireland, and mark me! but I'll live to see the day," the gift of prophecy came to him, "when they'll be turned out like rats, and with my own two feet I'll be leaping on the grand pianna!"

He only saw Noreen once after that, when he was at the university, but the vision of her as he saw her in the gardens always remained. It was sixteen years later in New York that he wrote "Rose of the World," when he asks pardon of all trees and flowers for not noticing them because of an enchantment put in his blood by

". . . a rose I have seen
In all its white and mystical loveliness
And I but a boy of barely fourteen. . . ."

At seventeen his schooling was over, and gray Trinity, the dour-looking, kindly hearted foster mother of Irish genius, received him—there are always scholarships there for the poverty-ridden genius. Old Father Patrick's hair was a little whiter, if that were possible, his coat certainly greener, but his courage was fine as ever.

"I don't know what the Bishop will say at all, at all," he pondered. "He's a roaring politician, and he's out to wipe Trinity off the face of the earth. It's maybe silence me he will, or get them in Rome to send me to Glasgow or Belfast—God between me and all harm! No matter! I'll offend my Bishop and take my chance with God. Go up to Dublin now, and don't be too proud to put this in your pocket. 'Tis my son you are. Kneel down now for my blessing. My little child, remember, religion is this: To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction and to keep himself unspotted from the world . . . ."

III.

AND now he was in the college that had sheltered Goldsmith in his poverty, and sought to be kind to the savage Swift. And here were the streets where Stern had toddled as a child, none thinking that beneath that curly poll were Tristram Shandy and the Sentimental Journey, and hither had come Shelley on his wedding journey and here were born the beloved Moore and poor tragic Wilde. The winds around the old pillars of the old Parliament house whispered a soft poetry. The horses clopped rhythm.

In his three years there he saw Nora Perrott once. She had come up to see a football match, and recognized him in his sizar's gown.

"Mr. Johnson!" And there was a tall,

The whitening action of these gloves is due to their specially impregnated fabric. Avoid imitations which are merely scented.

Magic Gloves Whiten Hands

Gloves of amazing powers! Worn at night, while you sleep, they work a miraculous transformation in the hands. They turn the hands white—as white as a lily, and as soft and smooth. Your hands may be a raw red or an "old-age" yellow; they may be dark with tan or blotched with freckles or liver spots; they may be deeply lined, rough and coarse—yet they become hands of the whiteness of snow and the softness of velvet under the magic of these gloves.

Results in One Night

The gloves are medicated with a wonderful solution perfected by the famous Dr. S. J. Egan. The medicated fabric (not rubber) when activated by the warmth of the hands has a peculiarly potent whitening and softening effect upon the hands. The hands actually turn white—a charming natural white. They become soft and smooth, exquisitely so. Even hands that look hopelessly old and worn take on a youthful freshness. Just one night's wear will prove a revelation.

Do Your Hands Spoil Your Charm?

What does it profit a woman to have beauty of face or figure or the clothes of a queen if her hands are uncouth? By your hands, more than anything else, does the world estimate you. No need now to put up with hands that you have to hide. Dr. Egan's Magic Gloves give you hands of a beauty to be proud of.

My glove size is...................................

gloriously slim, gloriously sweet girl looking at him with violet eyes.

"You never came to see the swans, why?"

He was embarrassed, awkward.

"I never could quite come."

She must have understood. She turned away an instant.

"Are you happy here?"

"Tremendously happy, sometimes, nearly all the time."

"I'm so very glad. Please believe me, won't you? I'm very glad."

"Yes, miss."

A few words, and a handshake and she went away, but her heart was sore. The "Yes, miss," with its servantish sound hurt her. The poor lad, he was like a bird with crippled wings. They had been so cruel to him, she had heard. There was something haunting about his eyes. As for him, he was dazed by her—a man who had seen a miracle. His heart, his throat seemed bursting. He was so moved he could make no song.

Came also a day when his father, the notable jacobin, arrived. Into the elder Johnson's sodden skull there had seeped the idea that more money than he was getting could be dragged from the son. He pushed past the porter with an oath.

"Hell blast you, you dirty informer, let an honest man by."

The cool cloistered atmosphere for some reason drove the man to fury. The sense of security, the ease, the gravelled walks, the trim lawns, made him feel here was no place for him. And if it was no place for him, by God! it was no place for a son of his. By ill-luck he caught sight of Dennis walking in the distance.

"Come here, you jackeen. Come here, damn you, do you hear me, come here!"

He caught the lad by the arm. Men came running up from all directions.

"Who is this?" they were asking. "What is he doing here? What does he want?"

"You want to know who I am, eh? Well, I'll tell you. I'm this pup's father. Do you know now? And I've got to slave and work, while he lives in luxury, eh? By God, I'll show him."

And with a savage smack on the side of the head he knocked the boy down.

He was pitched out, as he had been pitched out of Perrottscourt, as he had been pitched out of drinking houses innumerable. A large Irish policeman caught him on the rebound in College Green, questioned him, laid forceful hands upon him and he was seen no more that month.

Before the day was over, young Johnson had sold all his books, all his assets, his cap and gown even, and there sailed from the port of Queenstown next day, in the steerage of a slow liner, one Desmond Fitzhugh Fitzjohn, who astonished an usually imperturbable official by giving his occupation as poet. The official was wiser in his generation than the Child of Light. He entered him as "journalist."

IV.

A DOZEN years had changed Dublin about as much as a dozen hours would change another city. There were still the wide streets, the wide squares, the omnipresent trees. Seagulls whining over the chief streets, and matronly Anna Liffey flowing sedately to the sea. People going to races and people going to revolutions. Men playing golf and men playing treason. Surly Trinity frowning at the House of Parliament, and the statue of Thomas Moore with its finger raised in conventional ecstasy, and the statue of William of Orange with his head high in conventional triumph.

Who Desmond Fitzjohn was, Dublin did not know. For Ireland gives only such time to literature as can be spared from politics, with the result that they are usually a little behind the times. They are discovering Longfellow now, and are rather upset at that daring modern novel: "The Scarlet Letter." However, on the mailboat from England he had met people in the smokeroom, and because he looked clean and intelligent and had been in America he was invited to dinner with a broad hospitality. To old Georgian houses in Merrion and Fitzwilliam square, where remained the grandeur of an elder day when Ireland had peers and parliament. Priceless furniture and silver and glass. The conversations were begun with a certain formula by the principal guests.

"In my opinion the country is going to the dogs." To which the answer was:

"The more I live, and the more I see, the more I am convinced that the Irish people have a great destiny before them."

"Behind them, you mean. You've been listening to that old blatherskite, John Redmond."

"I'd rather listen to him than to that dirty murderer, Sir Edward Carson."

"In my opinion, a little more murder and a little less oratory would be a grand thing for the country."

"O, I'm with you there. I'm with you there. Within reason, of course, within reason."

And then turning to Desmond they would ask:

"Tell us now, Mr. Fitzjohn, and tell us the truth, and don't be afraid of hurting our feelings, what does America really think of us?" The only answer to which was a very wide gesture, which might mean a lot or mean nothing, but seemed to satisfy them.

"O, 'tis a great country."

"O, I tell you what, we're a great people."

And one evening at a dinner party he met her. There stepped forward to him a shining presence, hair that was more silver than gold, violet eager eyes, a woman slim and nearly tall as himself.

"You know me," her voice was fine and vital. "I am Nora Perrott."

"Yes," he said, "I know you, Miss Perrott."

"Nora Perrott," she corrected him. "You never came to see the swans."

"I couldn't," he told her. "My father would have beaten me."

"Yes, I know."

Was there a mist in the eyes, he wondered, or was it just warm understanding? O, the sweet, firm face, the little nose, the arched mouth that was like red velvet. The slow, understanding smile, that was like music. All the beauty he sensed in her from head to foot, the perfect woman, the silver woman. He saw her hands—they were so slim, the skin was like rich Chinese silk, and vital, so very vital.

"How do you remember after all these years? I have only spoken to you twice."

"From the first time I saw you with Father Patrick—poor Father Patrick!—I have remembered you. There seemed to be a meaning about you, like a story in a book, and isn't it a story, Desmond—I call you Desmond, because we were children in the same place—the little boy of the Wexford hills who became a great man in a little space."

"A great man, Nora?"

"O, yes, a great man, I know. I know all about you, Desmond, or nearly all. When you went to Dublin you were like setting out on a great journey, and I thought all was well with you. All life was so peaceful, so humdrum, and you were the only person setting out on adventure. I met you in Dublin and you seemed so well. You were happy, too, you said."

"I remember—I couldn't speak well."

"And then you disappeared and everybody said you had died. The little champion from the Wexford hills—it seemed such a pity the adventure ended. Do you know, I cried. Do you mind my telling you this?"

"Do I mind! Good God, do I mind! I always felt none cared a tinker's curse."

"Well, I did. And then one day somewhere I saw a poem, under the name, Desmond Fitzjohn, and the poem was the boy of the Wexford mountains. And I knew you were well."

"I never thought any one knew of me."

"If you had come to see the swans, Desmond, you would have felt it. What a pity we didn't know each other better."

"You are forgetting," he said, "the long way between the houses. And when you have been beaten as a child, the fear is terrible. You were never beaten, Nora."

"You can speak of it now, can you? O, Desmond, you have become a great man."

V.

THEY were like two children who had grown up dumb, and knew each other by warm telepathy, and had received together at one moment the gift of golden musical speech. They were as two people who had lived together with a high wall between them, and knew each other's intimacies, but had never seen the lineaments of the face, and now the high wall had crumbled and they saw each other, fairer than rainbows.

She had come up from Wexford for a few days. It was now Thursday. On Sunday she must go back.

"I am like some one," she said, "who went out to pick a few twigs on the mountainside, and came upon the Burning Bush."

"And where shall I see you, Nora?"

"You will see me all these days, Desmond, if you wish to. We were children together."

The sun now rose on those magical days, dancing in the morning, as though each morning were Easter. Softness of Irish summer, and adventure of meeting her in the morning. In the evenings she was a stately, understanding woman. In the day, hatted and gloved, violet eyes and small eager nose, she was like an elf or some ironical fairy. She bloomed with the day; in the evening, wistful, very beautiful. And when he left her for the morning her violet eyes were like violet stars.

She would hear of everything that had happened to him since he left, of all the struggles in America. When he told her of walking the cold, cruel streets, her eyes filled with tears.

"O, Desmond, my dear!"

And her lips parted and her eyes shone when he told her of Lafayette.

"Little champion from the hills of Wexford!" she said.

And he told her of the women he had met in America. On this she examined him with meticulous detail.

"Tell me of Margot Kennedy," she said.

And he told her of the big hearted woman who was always falling in love, and who had persuaded him to write "Appassionata."

"Did she fall in love with you, Desmond?"

"No, Nora. She was only a very good friend."

She wrinkled her very small nose.

"Still and all, I don't think I'd like her.

"And so you never married, Desmond?"

"No. Nora."

"Nor fell in love over there?"

"No, Nora."

"And then to whom is 'Snowy-Breasted Pearl' written?"

"That?"

"Yes, that!"

"How shall I state your beauty?" (she quoted). "These harsh English words
Are alien to your image. And only the golden bees
Will understand my Gaelic. They and the Irish birds
And the hurt, whimpering waves of the Irish seas.
There comes to my heart the chord of an ancient writer,
Who sang of a silver girl,
In days when the air of the world was lighter,
(When kings' daughters danced upon a green lawn
And there were more apples on the trees)
A Ferla an Vrolle Vaun!
O, Snowy-Bresated Pearl!

"To whom is that, Desmond? To whom is that? And who is your Snowy-Breasted Pearl?"

"Do you really want to know?"

"Yes, Desmond, else I wouldn't ask you. May I know?"

"You said you had always been thinking of me. I have always been thinking about you, Nora."

"Then 'Snowy-Breasted Pearl' is to me? O, Desmond!" A clouding blush came over her sweet face. "You wrote it because we had been children together."

"Yes, Nora. Because," he hesitated, "because we had been children together."

AS suddenly as speech had come, speech departed. They had been as unconscious as children until now, happy as birds. They had been dancing about the Burning Bush, and out of the depths of it had spoken the slow accent of God. There was no cloud, no fear, but only a mystery, a hush. . . . And neither could say anything then, nor all day. And yet each knew the other knew. Through Dublin, they wandered, with the convention between them that nothing had happened, nothing been said. The sun shone on the Liffey, the mountains drowsed, the seagulls breasted the high air. Veils lifted from the face of the ancient city, the veil of fighting, the veil of tragedy, and through the transparency of the third veil there were visible the tenuous figures of old Dublin spirits—Tristram and the Irish princess, Iseult, and savage Swift, and secret Stella; and Sir Edward Fitzgerald, who is sleeping, and Pamela, who fled far from the tragic land . . .

They bade each other good-by clumsily at the station.

"Desmond, I'll write to you. I'll write you when I get home—tomorrow I'll write —no, tonight."

"Yes, Nora."

"Desmond, were you thinking of coming to Wexford?"

"No, Nora, I was not. I was afraid."

"You were right. Don't come, Desmond. You'd be hurt. Desmond, I'll write you tonight."

They looked at each other tragically. They each wanted to kiss the other. They didn't know how. So ignorant, so maladroit. A green flag waved. A whistle blew. The train moved. And then suddenly:

"O, Desmond!"

But it was too late. All he could do was gaze after her. All she could do was gaze through the window. Ignorant, maladroit. And in a minute she was gone.

VI.

HE had said he would not go to Wexford. But Dublin was like a box that had held something and was empty now. It was a lamp that had gone out. It had no more meaning. Useless. So next day he said:

"I'll go down this afternoon."

"And——?"

"I'll go down and come back."

"And what'll you do?"

"I'll look at Perrottscourt from the road and come back."

"And what good will that do you?"

"I don't know."

"It will only make it worse."

"I'll go, all the same."

Past the hills, past the sleeping towns, past the sea the train went, past shoulders of heather and stretches of green turf. And the nearer he came, the more a dread and melancholy came on him.

"Go back," he warned himself. "Get out at the next station and go back."

"I won't," he said, stubbornly.

At Perrottscourt nothing had changed. The same beds of geraniums, the same road, the same dust even. Every tree he knew, every stone. The little sleeping village, the greenish church, the old schoolhouse. The bakeshop, the creeper-covered postoffice. The three places, "licensed to sell whisky, wine and beer for consumption on the premises," each of them hated in his heart, because in the old days out of them, staggering, had come his father with the heavy hand and the ready boot. And here was a thatched cabin; his heart stood still for a minute; there was a gaunt, slatternly woman hanging over the half-door, chatting to a neighbor.

"Well, now, Mrs. Johnson, I'll warrant you told her what she was."

"Indeed, Mrs. Moloney, I did so. I said: 'And who are you, might I ask? Aren't you the woman,' says I, 'that has seven children and never a marriage line? Isn't it "Steal-the-Hens" they call you,' says I. 'Go along,' says I, 'you tinkers' biddy'."

Good God! Good God! His knees were weak, his brow wet. Well, safely past, thank God. Why did he come? Why? Why?

Now a great ivy covered wall, and arose the gates of Perrottscourt, tall wrought iron. He looked at them, stupefied. Queer, he hadn't remembered they were so tall, so high, so strong. And she was back of those gates, and outside of them his mother, and somewhere in the village saloon, his father, spending the money Desmond allowed them in whisky and porter "to be consumed on the premises."

"Desmond, were you going away forever?"

He turned away. He would visit the green graveyard where Father Patrick slept, and slink off.

"Desmond, Desmond!"

Out of the wicket gate by the great high ones she had run, bareheaded.

"O, Desmond, why did you come? I'm so glad you came."

"I saw you from the drive, Desmond, and I couldn't believe my eyes."

"Are you crying, foolish boy!"

"Desmond, come in and see the swans . . ."

VII.

THEY came to the rose garden where they had met sixteen years before. The turf was emerald, the graveled walks yellow as gold, the rose bushes stretched in lines like soldiers. There blew so soft a perfume on the air that one could almost see it take shape like dancing butterflies. And everywhere were the golden bees.

"Do you remember me, Nora?"

"I can only see your head, Desmond, a dark head and gray eyes. Your head was low and sunburned then, and now it is high and there is gray in the dark locks, for all you are so young still, but your eyes, your gray eyes, are the same."

"And you are the little fairy princess become a queen, Nora."

"No, Desmond, I am just an ordinary girl, whom you like very much, perhaps, and see with your poet's eyes. Don't treat me like a queen or a fairy princess, Desmond. Come, Desmond, the swans have been waiting for sixteen years."

Their bills were black, their heads high, their white swelling bodies were like leaves of some gigantic flower. In the water one could see their grotesque black feet. They paddled stately as an armada. Seven white swans on the dark lake.

"They are wild, did you know, Desmond? When autumn comes they go, and they come in the spring. They have never yet missed a year."

"Desmond!"

"Yes, Nora."

"You are not going to stay—in the village?"

"No, Nora."

"Better not, Desmond. Listen, Desmond, I can have you driven over to catch the mail train at Ballynorman. It passes at ten."

"I'd better go now."

"You must stay to dinner. There is nobody but myself and my two uncles—my mother is dead, Desmond, did you know? She died three years ago. I knew she couldn't outlive my father long. So there will be nobody there to bother you. And Desmond!"

"Yes, Nora."

"I started writing you a letter last night, and I finished it this morning. I will give it to you to read on your way home."

"Nora, what does it say? Give it to me now."

"O, no, Desmond, not now." She was blushing. "Come, I want you to see the old maze."

VIII.

AT DINNER the two uncles rather embarrassed him. They had come home from the fair at Gorey, and met him cordially. Nora had introduced him as Desmond Fitzjohn, the great poet, whom she had met in Dublin. One uncle, Robert, was a great red man with a red beard. He had squat, cruel hands. The other, Simon, was short and dark, with gleaming black hair and a gleaming black eye. Simon had been a colonel in the Indian army. He was typically a horseman and a soldier. In the dining room was a painting of Robert in a gray covert coat, and a gray high hat, with his red beard spread like a banner. Simon had a soft purring drawl in speech. The voice of Robert was a booming cruelty. Desmond was afraid of these men.

The great dining room was antique with shadows. An immense fireplace where logs burned even in June. Old malevolent portraits who regarded him ironically, with here and there the face of some sweet smiling woman. He sat on Nora's right hand. In front of him sat the drawling Simon. Opposite Nora great red Robert. They were each splashes of color, broad red beard and sleek black head. White cylinders of wax with golden flames. The round-faced, pippin-faced butler. And Nora, slender as a flower, her happy eyes, her silken hands.

"We had a boy here," Simon drawled, "who went to America and made quite a reputation. Son of a tenant, eh, Robert?"

"Tenant be damned!" the red one exploded. "Son of an undergardener here. I had to kick him off the place. Found him sleeping his liquor off in the maze, begad!"

"Johnson, I think his name was. Do you remember, Robert?"

"Do I remember? Every time I pass him he swears at me, and if he doesn't his wife does. She's going to have me crucified when the revolution comes, she says. Begad, 'twas him we nearly killed in the dogcart."

"The drunk coming out of Conolly's?"

"And that was his wife that ran and threw stones after us, and called me an old red fox."

"Did you ever hear of their lad in America, Mr. Fitzjohn?"

The room was swimming around him. He had an impression of Nora's white, tense face. She couldn't speak. The red Robert looked at him in surprise, looked at him very keenly. Gave a guffaw of laughter.

"Oho!"

The brow of Simon frowned in wonder. The gleaming black eyes went from Robert to Nora, from Nora to Desmond. Came a wry smile.

"Oho!" roared Robert, "Mr. Fitzjohn!"

In an agony of panic Desmond rose, overturning his chair, staggering. He oriented himself for an instant, burst from the room, burst through the hall, burst out into the night. His feet crunched on the drive. He ran out through the gates to the road. The moon was rising. Somewhere a curlew called. And the leaves of the trees soughed with the soughing of summer. But he had no eyes, no ears. He ran on in panic. And as he ran, he gave little cries, like a hurt animal.

The road settled down on its long jog to Ballynorman. The moon rose higher, cleared the hills. There loomed up the dim, blue profile of mountains. The trees whispered. There was the scent of the hawthorn, and not yet had the primroses vanished from the hills. And westward were the minute pale stars. Such a night. Such a heavy heart. And if it had been on any other occasion he would have heard the little pipers in the tinkling heather. And he could easily have believed that the sounds the leaves made were the marching of the leprechaun, the green clad minute pixie of the Irish hills. They were shod with silver, they had green caps. But tonight all the fairies were dead . . . He settled himself for the six more miles of the road.

THERE was the swinging trail of a horse behind him. The light whir of wheels, the lamps of a dog cart. As it came nearer he moved toward the hedge to let it pass. His face was white and strained in the glare of the lamps. He wanted it to go on. He didn't need a lift.

"O Desmond! Is it you, Desmond, my dear?"

The horse was reined in. She sprang from the dog cart to the road. She was different. She was dressed in tweeds. She had a little brown hat with a feather in it.

"Desmond, were you going away forever without ever seeing me again?"

"I'm awfully sorry, Nora, for tonight." His face twisted into a gallant grin. "I'm sorry for letting you in for it. I shouldn't have come down."

"O, Desmond!" she cried, "I'm sorry you were hurt. Those swine—all the awful swine of that place, your swine and my swine! O, Desmond, my dear!"

"Hush, Nora, it's all right." She cried against his shoulder. She trembled as she lay there. She stood back and arranged her hat.

"Listen, Desmond," she said. "Don't look at me, please, for a moment. Do you want to marry me?"

"Nora!"

"Do you mean yes, Desmond? Say yes, if you mean it."

"Yes, Nora."

"Don't look at me yet, Desmond, please. Will you marry me at once, just right away?"

"I can't speak—I just can't speak."

"I think you mean yes, Desmond. Listen, my dear, I'm not going back, either. I've got a bag in the cart, and money with me if we need it. Desmond, we'll go to town tonight, and catch the boat for abroad in the morning, and you can get a special license somewhere—from the Archbishop of Canterbury, I think, or some one. Will you do that, Desmond, please. If you don't like me when we're married, you can send me away."

"Are you sure, Nora, are you sure you want to?"

"Yes, Desmond, very sure. And, Desmond, we'd better get up and drive off now, because we mustn't miss the train. And, Desmond!"

"Yes, Nora, yes?"

"You'd better kiss me, Desmond. You've never kissed me. And we've known each other since we were little children. Maybe you wouldn't like me at all, Desmond. You'd better kiss me."

"Hush!" he warned her. "Listen." Above the tinkle of the heather he had heard the note of a little piper piping and from the moonlit trees came the rustle of the light feet of leprechauns.

THE PRINCIPALS IN THE STORY

MRS. PENDLETON WAYNE, young and beautiful, an author engrossed in her writing, but still fondly in love with her husband,

PENDLETON WAYNE, a successful lawyer, forty and inclined to be fat. He is bored with his wife, Nelly, and enamored of

JULIET WETHERELL ("Jill"), who is characterized as a girl seeking a wealthy marriage by

PERLEY REX, a society philanderer. Rex, resting in his club, unexpectedly comes upon an old friend,

PETER GRANVILLE, who has been adventuring in China and other lands. Granny is an old admirer of Mrs. Wayne.

THE HOLBROOK ANNISONS, Beth and Hal, a shamelessly old fashioned couple, still in love with each other and happy, though married. They are mutual friends of all the other actors in the story.

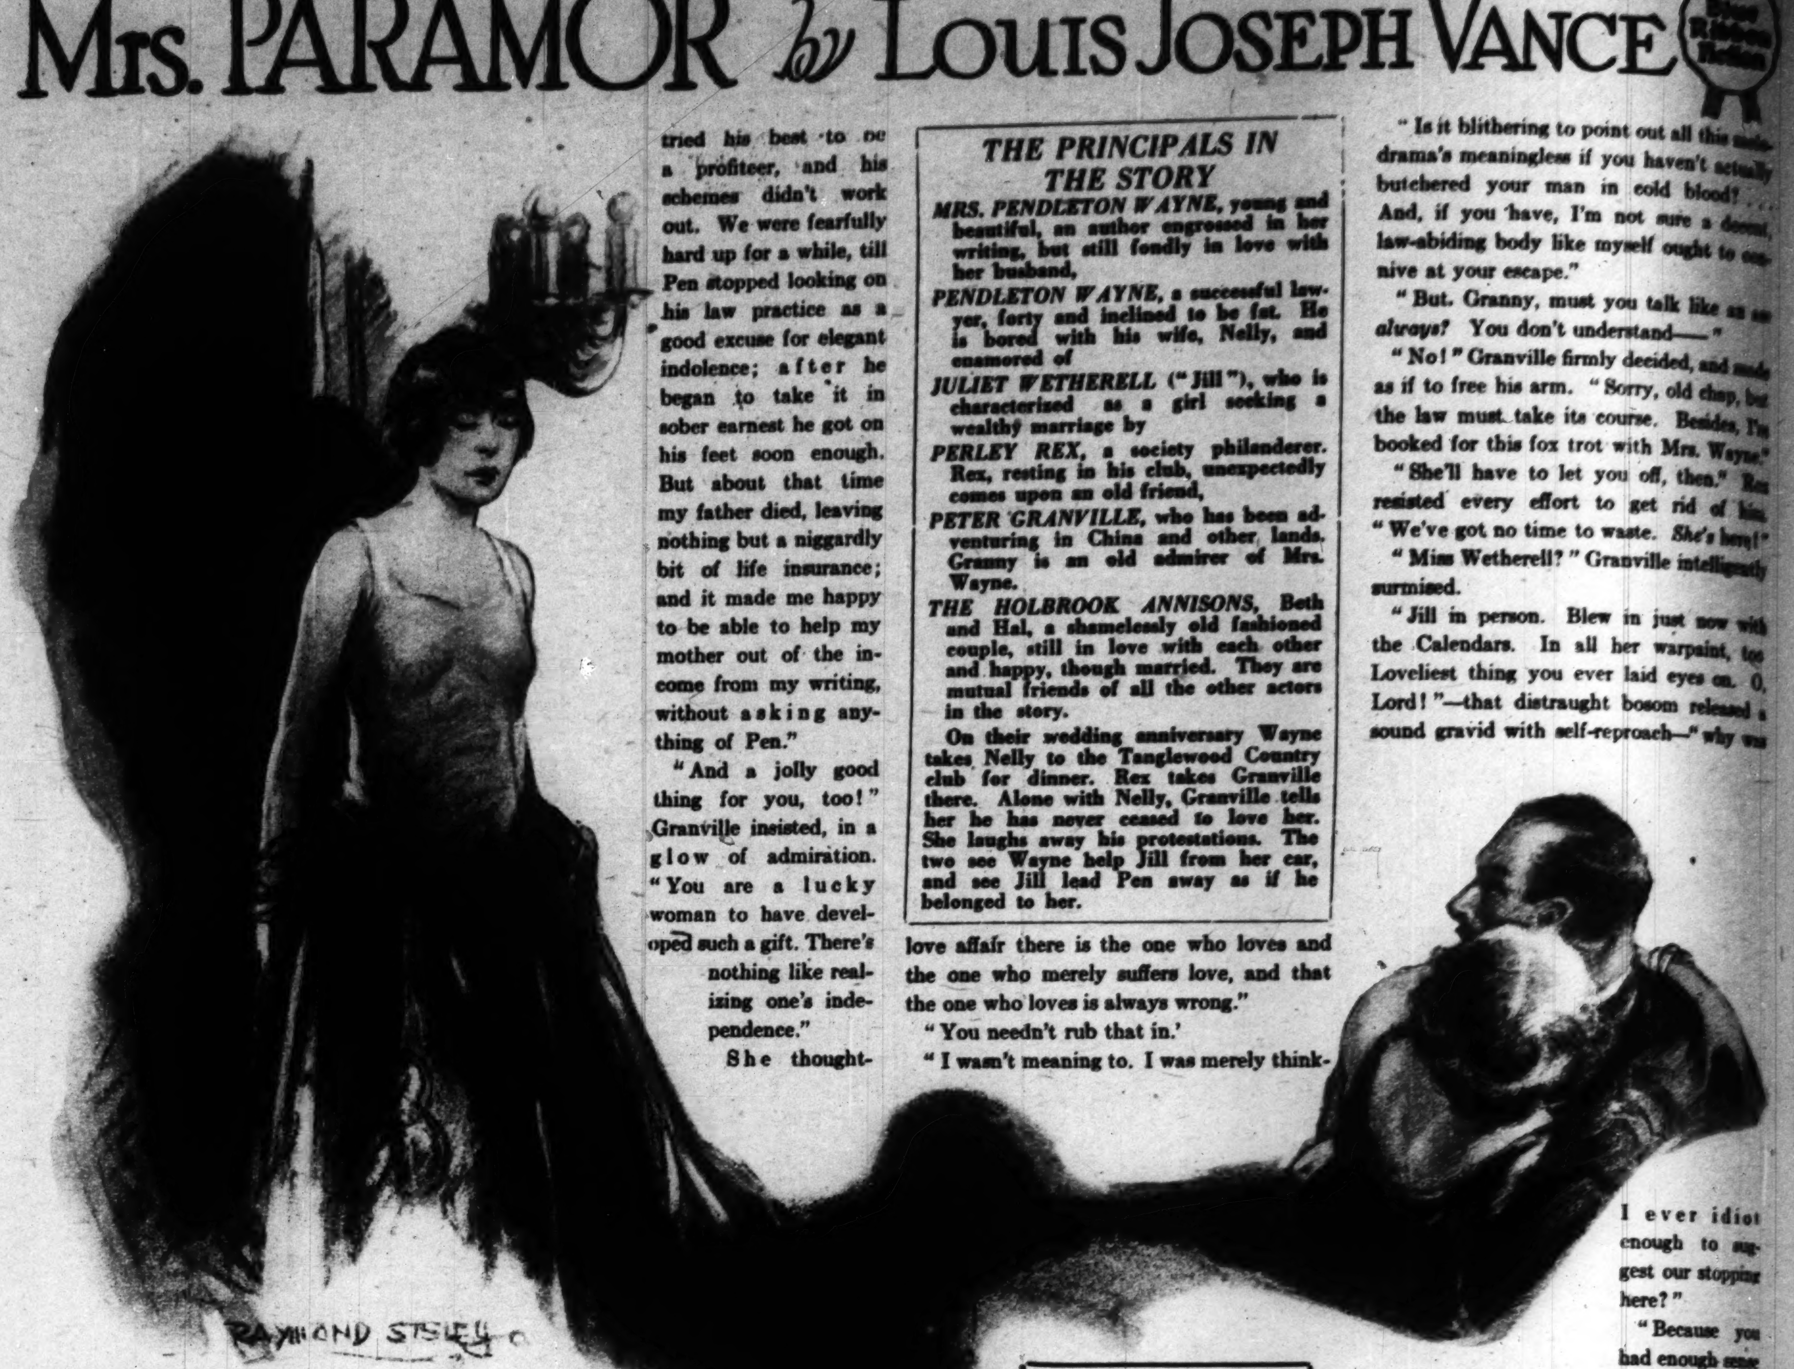
On their wedding anniversary Wayne takes Nelly to the Tanglewood Country club for dinner. Rex takes Granville there. Alone with Nelly, Granville tells her he has never ceased to love her. She laughs away his protestations. The two see Wayne help Jill from her car, and see Jill lead Pen away as if he belonged to her.



Nell found her husband holding Jill in his arms.

FOURTH INSTALLMENT.

Nelly's Eyes Are Opened.

"YOU'D be surprised Nelly, if you knew how intelligently I've followed your fortunes as a writer; I mean your growth as an artist. Not that I haven't liked everything of yours from the very first; but, of late, if my judgment is worth anything at all, you've been making famous strides."

The woman recollected herself by sheer will power. The pride in her, if wounded, still was strong enough swiftly to dissipate the touching confusion that had troubled her eyes: she even found a smile for him.

"Granny," she said, softly, "you're a dear. I always could count on you to say precisely the right thing at precisely the right moment."

"How 'right'?" he densely wondered. "In what way?"

"O, for one, as a restorative of self-esteem."

"Hello!" he cried with an excellent show of skepticism. "Been suffering loss of self-esteem, Nelly?"

She gave a sober little nod, looking down at hands that lay folded in her lap. "Yes; a little."

"How come?"

He heard a murmur hardly articulate: "O, I don't know."

"Surely not with any provocation from your public or your publishers."

"No; not that way." She effected momentary escape from her unhappy preposession. "I have been wonderfully lucky."

"Mind telling how?"

"Many ways. Pen got himself into a desperate hole financially during the war. He tried his best to be a profiteer, and his schemes didn't work out. We were fearfully hard up for a while, till Pen stopped looking on his law practice as a good excuse for elegant indolence; after he began to take it in sober earnest he got on his feet soon enough. But about that time my father died, leaving nothing but a niggardly bit of life insurance; and it made me happy to be able to help my mother out of the income from my writing, without asking anything of Pen."

"And a jolly good thing for you, too!" Granville insisted, in a glow of admiration. "You are a lucky woman to have developed such a gift. There's nothing like realizing one's independence."

She thoughtfully doubted: "Isn't there?"

"Gives one such a sustaining sense of background . . ."

"I suppose so; but I'm afraid I never thought about it that way before."

Nelly's voice fell; unwittingly she lapsed into abstraction; the shadow of pain crept back into those eyes that, unseeingly, studied the hands working together on her knees. Only the most hopeless of dolts could have failed to follow the trend of her thoughts; and he must have been egoist indeed who had remained unaffected. Granville wasn't fairly to be blamed for finding himself all at once out of hand.

"Nelly!" he cried, his heart shaking his voice. "If I've come back to find you any way unhappy—why, I think you know, dear, my one reason for coming back at all. There's nothing you can't ask of me."

"There's nothing I need to, Granny." Neither was it her fault if she failed to show him a countenance convincingly unruffled. "It's beautiful to be told things like that, my friend, but—you know——"

He said in a low tone, looking away, "Forgive me . . ."; but got no response, being what he must have been just then, the veriest shadow upon the borderland of her engrossment. Nevertheless, when presently she shook herself out of that, it was to bind him to her more closely still with bonds of tacit understanding.

"You know, Granny," she mused with a bleak smile, "I'm afraid you and I made our first big mistake when we neglected to be born cynics. The French have a saying—I wonder, do you know it?—that in every love affair there is the one who loves and the one who merely suffers love, and that the one who loves is always wrong."

"You needn't rub that in.'

"I wasn't meaning to. I was merely thinking if you and I had been wiser than we are, if we only had arranged to be born cynics."

Perhaps she perceived, a bit late, she was saying too much. If so, it was, no doubt, the music, which, after a brief rest, now swelled into an encore, that gave Nelly her cue.

"But this is no good!" She jumped up, with a gusty laugh. "Come along, Granny; dance with me! Let's forget you and I belong to the company of the damned, the ones who are always wrong!"

BUT when Granville stood aside at the threshold of the ballroom to let Nelly go ahead chance checked him with a pawn personified by a gentleman who was either hopelessly panic stricken or else a mine of exceptional parts.

"See here, Granny," he stammered, popping up without warning at Granville's elbow and laying hold of it with much business of desperation, "where the dickens 've you been all this time? We've got to clear out of here right away! The loss of a single minute may be fatal——"

"Easy, old son, easy!" Granville kindly counseled, and set his friend a fair pattern. "Plenty of time to make your getaway with dignity and grace—unless, of course, you think somebody may have seen you strike the dastard blow——"

"What in blazes are you blithering about?" Rex blankly demanded. "'Dastard blow'!"

"Is it blithering to point out all this melodrama's meaningless if you haven't actually butchered your man in cold blood? . . . And, if you have, I'm not sure a decent, law-abiding body like myself ought to connive at your escape."

"But, Granny, must you talk like as always? You don't understand——"

"No!" Granville firmly decided, and made as if to free his arm. "Sorry, old chap, but the law must take its course. Besides, I'm booked for this fox trot with Mrs. Wayne."

"She'll have to let you off, then." Rex resisted every effort to get rid of him. "We've got no time to waste. She's here!"

"Miss Wetherell?" Granville intelligently surmised.

"Jill in person. Blew in just now with the Calendars. In all her warpaint, too. Loveliest thing you ever laid eyes on. O, Lord!"—that distraught bosom released a sound gravid with self-reproach—"why was I ever idiot enough to suggest our stopping here?"

"Because you had enough sense to come in out of the rain." Granville shot a helpless grimace aside to the woman who waited, wondering, just beyond the doorway. "Excuse me one more minute, Nell. I've got to humor him a little. The poor soul's quite unhinged."

"Who wouldn't be, with that man-eater off the leash?"

"Come, come! Brace up, be a man Don't be such a lily-livered——"

"You're all wrong, Granny!" Rex wildly protested. "It isn't myself I'm afraid for—it's Jill. But she hasn't seen me yet; so if we look alive and race for it, we can beat the storm home."

"Too late, old son." Granville wheeled the craven toward the windows and made him see their curtains bellying with the first rude breaths of the blast impending. "You'll have to face the music—or hide under something till it's over." Without more trouble he released his arm. "Run along, now, do; I want my dance, and Mrs. Wayne is waiting."

"Well! . . ." The night without grew loud with rain. One of the curtains snapped viciously at the candles and their wavering flames winked out. Withering on his stalk, Rex dropped a head disconsolate. "But remember! Whatever comes of this, I warned you, begged you to be pitiful—and you refused."

"Nonsense. I'm standing by. If Miss Wetherell gets after you, scream, and I'll come running."

"O heavens!" Rex wildly reported to that quarter—"he won't understand!" Haggard eyes swung back to Granville's. "If you hear any screams, they'll be Jill's."

"Then I'll come running to her rescue——"

"No!"—patience blew up at last—"you keep out of this, do you hear? I'm not afraid to run, but I'm too proud not to fight my own battles."

"O, you're hopeless," Granville cheerfully assured him. "Good night till the sky clears."

IN final and frantic if dumb appeal Rex flung after him a pace or two, but the broad of Granville's back was unrelenting, and, discouraged, his stature shrinking visibly, like an accordion newly abandoned, he gave it up, slunk away to the nearest window, and drowned his last vestige of hope in the spectacle of the shower.

Its myriad shining needles obliquely drilled the night, the eaves drooled silver like a ragged curtain, ever and again an eerie glare flooded those drenched vistas of hills and fields, all cowering in fright. No telling how long one might have to wait before it would be feasible to navigate weltering back-country roads of mire.

Rex heaved a heavy sigh, wagged a heavier head—and nervously faced back when the dance music ran out in a blare of jazz. But after an eventless pause, during which he stood ready to dive through the window on the slightest occasion, the orchestra resumed, and he relaxed and, lighting a cigaret, wearily threw himself down upon the settee which Nelly Wayne and Granville had recently vacated. It faced a cold hearth in a fieldstone chimney, its back was high; the man supine upon it, neither seeing nor to be seen from the main body of the room, felt tolerably safe. If only he hadn't been smoking.

That telltale drift of fume was the first thing to rivet the attention of Miss Wetherell when she sauntered in from the foyer, unattended, and practicing the most purposeless and insouciant air in her bag of tricks. Instantly she held up, with a frown of deep vexation. But the steady draft through the room wafted the smoke her way, and lifting her head a trifle she sniffed daintily but with animation, something like a rabbit addressing itself to a lettuce, perhaps more like a charger scenting powder.

Men who pamper their palates with tobacco of a distinctive bled must be prepared tc pay for such self-indulgence with more than money merely.

There was a slight but distinct hint of the panther in her manner of stalking the settee; no panther's pads could have been more soundless than her slender feet in their absurd, delightful gear. At a discreet distance, invisible to Rex and unsuspected, she stopped, unlimbered the vanity case that dangled from her wrist, with the aid of its mirror subjected her makeup to critical review, and drew liberally on her portable layout of colors. Thus employed, standing with face to the light and back to settee, she fluted with thrilling sweetness: "Perley. . . ."

The settee quaked and creaked. She smiled a secret smile and coolly continued repair work with a lip stick. The mirror revealed Rex lifting head and shoulders above the wickerwork shield, saluting her back with a look aghast, and swiftly subsiding from sight. A heartrending groan ground through that bravado of music and rattle of rain. Inquisitive, the girl moved to the end of the settee and, viewing its unhappy tenant, uttered severely: "Why, Perley Rex!" Another groan was all her answer. "Are you ill?" Rex rolled his head. "Then what on earth are you doing there?"

Without moving Rex replied: "Can't you see we are lying flat on our back and affecting a pose of elegant unconcern?"

"'Affecting'?"

"Doing our poor best to be a nobleman and not let on that you give us gooseflesh."

"Do I, really? Poor old dear!" The young woman daintily perched on the arm of the settee, just above her victim's feet, and deftly applied finishing dabs of lip paint. "How awf'ly intriguing!"

The recumbent man was taken by a shudder either genuine or so nearly unaffected as made no difference. "Nearer you come," he moaned, "the worse it gets. Be nice, do—go away."

"Thanks, ever so; but I'd much rather stop. It's so seldom you and I get a chance like this for a good old fashioned talk."

She closed the vanity case and cruelly loosed upon the unfortunate her most devastating smile. He roused up on an elbow and described a sign of exorcism. "Go, woman! go practice your unholy arts on somebody who'd rather be called a gentleman than scrag a woman in self-defense."

"Suppose I won't?"

Rex solemnly mouthed: "God help you then!"

"Whatever can you mean?" she wondered in her innocence, and looking down brushed his ankles with the plumes of her fan. "Move over, Perley, make room for me."

"Quit that!" Rex jerked up his knees, cringing from threatened repetition of that caress; and sinking gratefully into the space vacated—"O!" Jill cooed in kind concern—"are you ticklish, Perley? I didn't know."

He swung his feet down and sat up, with the length of the settee between them, prepared to bound into open flight should she attempt to abbreviate that distance.

"Any way, you deserve punishment for being rude to me. It isn't good manners not to rise when a lady comes into the room."

"Go on," he darkly warned, "but remember, we won't be held to answer for the consequences."

Jill widened her eyes and blinked rapidly. "You do hate me, don't you, Perley?"

"Don't ask that!"

"Why not?"

"You tempt us to tell you the truth."

"And if you should——?"

Still more solemnly he exclaimed: "God help us both!"

"You talk so strangely, Perley." The guileless child pro tem hung her head in charming confusion and toyed with the feathers of her fan. "I wonder whatever you mean. I'm sure I can't make you out at all, unless . . ." She flashed a diffident smile askance: "Unless, of course, you're thinking about what that wicked La Rochefoucauld said—"

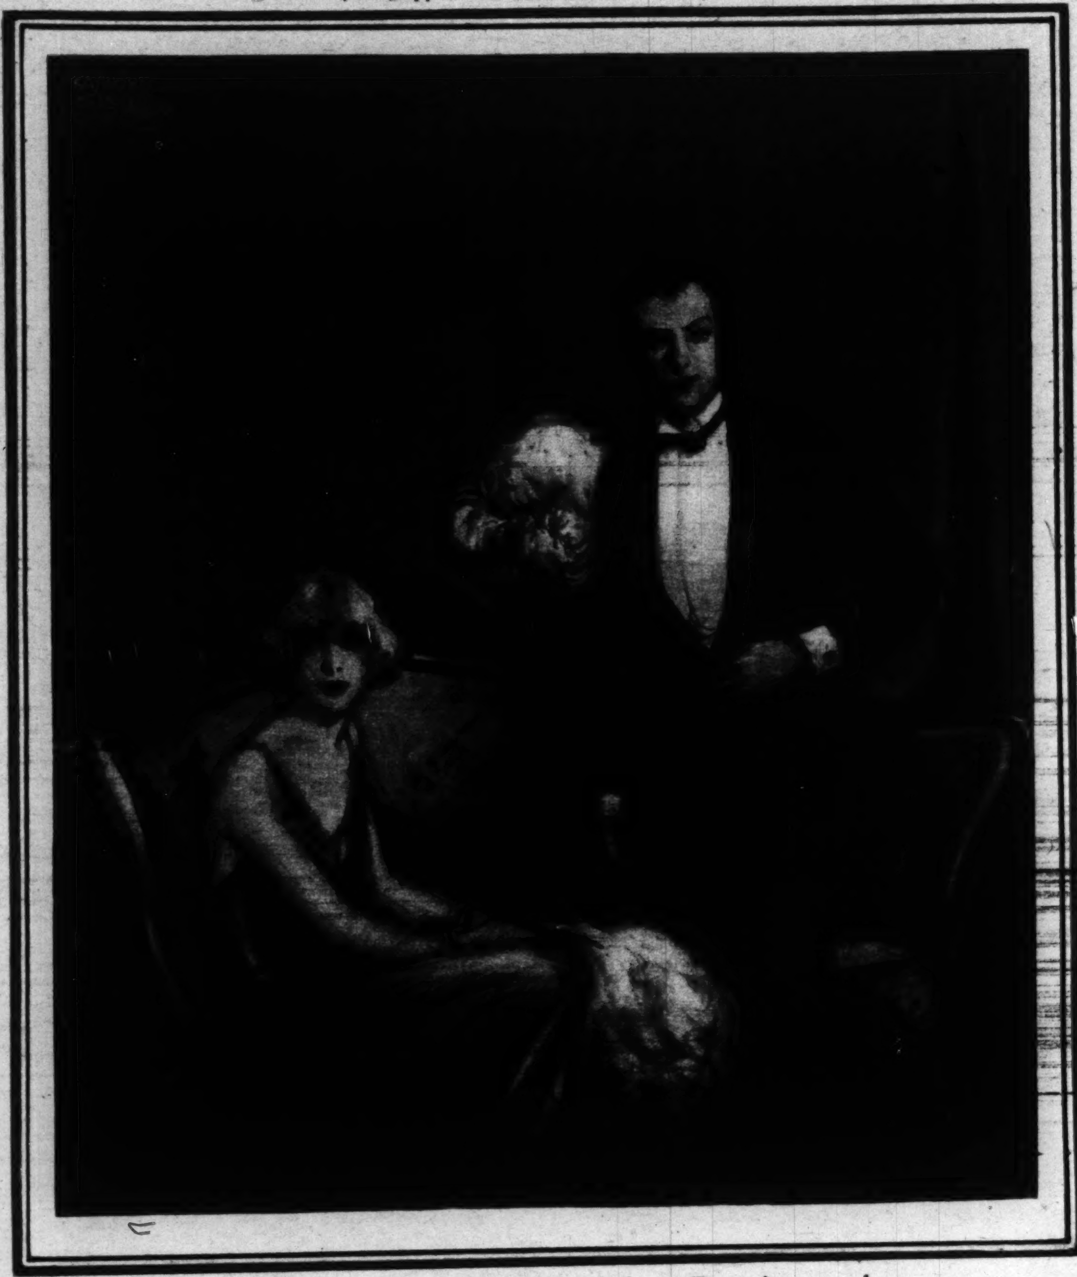
In dire alarm he interrupted: "What the dickens do you know about what he said? But never mind; we don't want to know; we don't want La Rochefoucauld quoted at our devoted head."

She covered him with a look of challenge. "Are you afraid to hear?"

"Frankly, yes."

"O, then you do remember what he says about love and hate," the girl cried in simple pleasure: "'The more one loves, the nearer one is to hating,' and, naturally, vice versa!"

But a word interjected by the tormented man carried so clean an accent of anticipated relief that Jill was wonder stricken: "Saved!" In devout thanksgiving Rex jumped up.



"Saved!" In devout thanksgiving Rex jumped up.

She asked nothing, she gave the least of shrugs, otherwise sat unstirring. Perhaps she needed no enlightenment, perhaps surmised from his expression and the angle of his gaze that Wayne was drawing near.

Rex gave her the best ironic bow in his repertoire. "We hope to be forgiven if we roll along now," he said for her ear only, "in view of the fact that a more willing victim is ambling up to lay his head on the block."

In the same key and with her serenest countenance she pronounced his congé: "Fool!"

"Hush!" Rex cautioned, solicitous—"he'd be so hurt if he heard you."

NOTHING betrayed awareness of Wayne as he drew near. Even when he stood over her, dumbly beetling behind the settee, Jill didn't look up. Lightning smote more near at hand, thunder raved and vied with a more vehement ruffle of rain to din the orchestra down; but its rollicking lilt rode that elemental hubbub like a thread of tinsel bobbing in a grim seaway. By every sign her protean temper had shifted, since Rex had fled she was no more amused; her downcast look was pensive, the set of her mouth petulant, those distracting fingers plucked at rather than played with the plumage of her fan. At the nape of her neck aureate tendrils met firmly rounded flesh as white as milk. Wayne gripped the back of the settee with a force that bleached his knuckles.

He articulated huskily: "Jill. . . ." Her head lifted wearily, she gave somber eyes to his. "That was Perley, wasn't it?" Her slow nod assented. He choked a little on his next words, at length jerked roughly out: "What did he want?"

No change in her expression. . . "Why not ask him?"

"He looked at me so queerly," Wayne muttered—"didn't you notice?"

"No."

"I'd like to know what's the matter with him."

"The matter with Perley," the girl calmly stated, "is simply that he thinks he knows me."

Wayne gave a snort of joyless laughter: "And you think he doesn't?"

"I know he doesn't."

"What you mean is, he—he's in love with you, too."

Her brows contracted slightly "You really think so, Pen?"

"Don't you?"

"Perhaps . . ." That serious countenance fleetingly was colored by an enigmatic smile. "Who knows?"

"You know he is," Wayne accused, his voice shaking.

"Do I?" She thought this over; listlessly concluded: "It doesn't matter."

"It matters to me——"

Her look hardened. "I don't see how."

"Jill!" The name fairly wrenched itself from Wayne's lips. Unmoved, she continued to stare vacantly into distances his perceptions couldn't fathom. His eyes furtively veered this way and that. But they were surely unobserved—the music was holding on. He bent, murmuring her name again; but at the first caress of his hand on her bare shoulder the girl sprang up and away.

"Pen!" she cried, confronting him a-quiver. "Are you out of your mind?"

He stood up; let his hands helplessly fall. "Yes," he admitted, without spirit.

"I should think so! Suppose somebody saw you! Your wife——"

"Don't talk about her."

He might better have not said that. "What do you expect me to talk about, when you brought her here tonight? What insanity!" He had no defense to set up; Jill pursued without mercy: "For that matter, why are you here tonight yourself? After all your promises!"

"What's a promise to a man in love? You never expected me to keep it."

"At least I never dreamed you'd bring her along when you made up your mind to break it."

"All Nell's doing." Wayne lied in the instinctive cowardice of a man seeking to justify himself to the woman whose favor or disfavor is life or death. "It's her party; she got it up—asked our guests. I could hardly refuse—could I?—even if I did guess you might be here."

If sensitive to the prevarication, she must have held it immaterial, for her next words, spoken as she moved aimlessly away, attacked another chink in his armor: "If only you weren't the world's worst actor! Every look you give me is a letter to the Heart Throb Editor."

"I'll watch myself," he pleaded. "I promise to be careful. Besides, you don't have to meet Nell."

Midway across the room the girl paused and, without turning, looked back, speculative. "I almost want to," she admitted. "I've so often wondered what she was like. Which is she, Pen? How is she dressed? One look at her would tell me so much I want to know."

"Come here, then." Wayne moved toward the ballroom doorway. "She's dancing now: I'll point her out as she goes by."

Jill slowly moved her head from side to side. "No thank you; it's too risky. She may be suspicious, only watching for something."

"O, don't worry!" He scouted the idea. "Doubt if she's ever heard your name. Anyway, she's busy tonight; ran into an old sweetheart of hers a little while ago—man she's dancing with. We're safe enough, as long as the music plays, at least."

"Well! . . ." The girl went on to a window; blindly peered out. "You didn't follow me in here for nothing. What is it you want to say? I'm risking my reputation every minute I stop on here with you."

"Jill . . ." Wayne ventured to her side. "For God's sake don't be so hard! We can't go on this way."

"Very true," she indifferently assented. "I thought we agreed on that three days ago."

"Three days without seeing you! Without a line from you! Without once hearing your voice! It's been hell, Jill; simple hell!"

She kept her face averted, but, as if self-pity softened her heart for him as well, replied: "I know, Pen. It's been hard on me, too. But—what else can we do?"

"I don't know!" He ground desperate hands together. "I only know I can't stand this torture—it's intolerable! God in heaven, why did I have to fall in love with you?"

Her retort had a brittle ring of impatience: "As if I knew the answer!"

"If you don't, who does? Jill!" he hopelessly appealed to her spirit of fair play. "What's the good of pretending? We're neither of us children; we both know very well how these things come about: they don't just happen against our wills."

"So!" Jill commented after a moment. She faced him in coldest contempt: "So you want to blame me!"

Stung to bitterness, he cried: "Of course, you're blameless!"

"Because I was weak enough to listen when you made love to me in the beginning—because I hadn't the heart to slap your face and send you home to your wife!"

Wayne had his own temper, one not too ruly, and this was tasking it. "Because," he bluntly corrected it, "the truth is you met me half way."

"O!" Common fury roughed up through her voice. "Was it I who waylaid you wherever you went, kept the telephone busy, and sent flowers, candy, cigarets every day? I suppose it was I who kept begging you to meet me in shabby restaurants, where nobody would see us! I who wormed it out of you that your home life was unhappy; pleaded with you to take pity on me, make my life a little happier, love me! O, when I remember how you rushed me and now hear you claim I led you on——"

She paused for breath; but he was already abject. "Forgive me, Jill!" he implored. "I didn't mean—half-beside myself, thanks to these three damned days—hardly know what I'm saying. Be charitable; remember, I love you so . . ."

Only a little longer she continued to front him with a stormy bosom and eyes coldly agleam; then, as if the compassion excited by his profound self-abnegation struck deeper than the wrath inspired by unjust indictment, she melted toward him, her eyes misted, her mouth grew tremulous, a convulsive grasp used her fan cruelly.

"O, Pen, Pen, it wasn't kind of you to make me love you and then reproach me!"

"You—you do—love me, Jill?"

"Can you doubt it?"

"But you sent me away——"

"Pen, be fair! You went of your own choice. It was that or . . . You knew I wasn't a woman for a hole-and-corner affair; I couldn't go on loving a man I had always to meet by stealth. . . . You were the only one who could decide whether we were to go on together or each a separate way. You chose the way you thought wisest, the way I'd never have been strong enough to choose——"

"The only way you left open to me," Wayne meekly countered. "You hedged the other with impossible conditions——"

"Your word," she gently interpolated; "not mine."

"Yours or mine, 'impossible' is the one right word."

She wearily objected: "I only showed you there was just one way we could go on——"

"Via the divorce courts."

"I promised to marry you the day you set yourself free."

"But how can I? Nell's done nothing——"

"How many times have you told me she bores you to tears?"

"That's no ground for divorce."

"Not here in the east; but out west they're more liberal—in Nevada——"

"It would be infamous of me—break Nell's heart——"

"Of course it doesn't matter if you break mine. You say you love me, but it's always the wife you're tired of you consider first. O, I don't understand you, Pen—I don't; I don't!"

SHE drooped, ill-used, forlorn, and lovely; more than he could hold out against. "I don't understand myself," he thickly admitted. "I only know I can't live without you."

"O, you say that——"

"Jill," he broke in, wildly, "have pity—come away with me!"

"When?" Her head was bowed so low above the tortured fan he couldn't search her face for a clew to the mind that spoke in that toneless whisper: "Where?"

"Now," he recklessly proposed. "Tonight—wherever you wish, it doesn't matter, so you come with me—Europe, if you like, anywhere—till Nell divorces me and we can marry."

"What if she shouldn't?" The objection fell from lips still hidden, he could only guess. . . . "What becomes of me then?"

"At worst you'd be with the man who loves you, the man you love."

"O, no, thank you!" She threw back her head with a hard, light laugh. "Fix up your divorce first, Pen—if you want me as much as you say, give me that insurance against accidents. We can't know what may happen."

"Very well." Now it was Wayne's head that was hanging, so that he couldn't know the way she took this gesture of defeat. "As you will."

She flew to him—"You mean it, Pen?"—caught his arms with both hands, searched his hangdog face. Thunder, a frightful clap, broke out, in effect directly overhead. The clubhouse quivered to the very foundations of its fabric. But these two paid no heed; the uproar had made his response inaudible; she couldn't rest without the reassurance of those unheard words. "You will, Pen? You will!"

He pledged her with the eyes of a man committing himself to do a crime.

In that breath the electric lamps dimmed down into blackness, relieved only by the fitful play of lightning and a dull shine of candles in the glazed doors to the ballroom. Wayne caught the girl to him, she yielded their half stifled murmurs filled the lulls between thunder shocks.

"You'll wait for me, Jill, dear?"

"Yes, Pen, yes!"

She began to struggle in his arms, gave a breathless noise of dismay; but he seemed insensible to that malign freak of chance through which the electricity had come on again. The lights were all ablaze, they stood bathed in an unsparing illumination. Only when, almost by main strength, Jill wrenched her mouth from his, her body from his embrace, did his dazed perceptions rally to grapple with that débâcle.

A sound scarcely human, a stricken wail, drew his attention to the far side of the room, where Nell stood, in a stare of consternation and anguish, one hand on Granville's arm, the other fumbling at her bosom.

A very little care will give you the charm of an attractive skin. No well groomed woman neglects this care. No matter what your features, a good complexion creates the illusion of beauty.

Here are the preparations indispensable for your daily treatment and protection:

Rose Leaf Cleansing Cream; cleanses the skin thoroughly and leaves it with the fragrance of fresh rose leaves. $1, $2, $3.50.

A MATTER OF NERVE

by Herbert Louis McNary

Saving an Old Woman's Life Cost Fireman Joe His Nerve; He Needed the Smile of the Girl in the Window to Make Him Himself Again.

> "Have you found out her name yet?"

THE firehouse was immaculate; but if you have ever stepped into a building that houses the big fire trucks in their periods of inactivity you will insist that this was not unusual, for the fire laddies make war on dirt and dust with a seal that would put any housewife to shame. You would need to arm yourself with a magnifying glass, after the fashion of an entomologist, to discover a speck of dust on any of the four red and brass trucks now on the floor, especially on the big high pressure engine—the special pride of Joe Lennon.

Joe was not at the truck at the present moment. He was near one of the big green doors now swung closed, and through the door window he was glancing, apparently casually, up at the office building on the other side of the street. The only other occupant of the floor at the time was the desk man, the gray haired veteran Connors. And Connors was watching Lennon speculatively, a twinkle in the small blue eyes set like shining bits of glass in the seamed, grizzled skin of the old fire fighter.

"Have you found out her name yet, Joe?"

Lennon wheeled, flushing as he did so, for his dark, almost Latin features readily reflected his emotions.

"Found out whose name?" he stalled.

"Cut out the innocent stuff, boy. Do you think it's blind I am? Sure, there's not a time we go out that your eyes aren't raised to those second story windows. Not that I blame you, Joe, for she's a swell looker, and it's seldom you're disappointed in seeing her. And it's watching for you she is, too. I'm surprised you haven't made her acquaintance yet."

"I haven't got the nerve." That was an honest confession. For weeks countless messages had been exchanged between Joe and the pretty brown haired, bright eyed girl who came to the office window summoned by the noise of the department engines; but they were messages delivered by the eye wireless system, and as yet no other means of communication had been resorted to. It was up to Joe, and he "didn't have the nerve."

"Nerve?" repeated the veteran. "You're the boy that's got plenty of it. Don't it take nerve to drive that big boat the way you do? Besides, there's one or two stunts that you've pulled off that's reached the big chief."

Joe flushed. "O, that's different nerve."

The veteran reflected. "I guess there is different kinds of nerve at that, Joe. And I've seen fellows lose it—good fellows—in this business after something happened."

THE veteran was interrupted by the tapper. It was one of their boxes, and Joe sprang to the wheel of the big truck as the men above came shooting down the poles as if fleeing from a falling building.

"Give her a wave this time, Joe," yelled Connors as he leaped to the side of the truck as with a roar the car rolled out of the house. Joe looked up as he turned the car into the narrow street. The girl was there and he waved. He was sure——

"She waved back," exclaimed Connors exultingly. "Maybe the boy don't fit there, Frank," he added, speaking to Joe's cronie on the seat beside him.

The engine house was situated on a small side street in the center of the big city's business section. A quick, sharp turn, followed immediately by another, would bring the truck out on to the main thoroughfare, a traffic-congested artery; but despite the precariousness of the slippery streets Joe was able to give part of his thoughts to the girl. He would arrange to meet her.

On the avenue was a series of big red boxes, and at the same time the alarm was ringing in the firehouse duplicate alarms rang in these boxes. Immediately the tireless traffic policemen sprang into concerted action; their whistles shrieked, and traffic pulled up short and was crowded to the curbs, so that when the roaring red monsters with their crescendo sirens and clanging bells reached the avenue they could dash down a cleared lane without slackening speed.

Joe knew this from countless experiences. That is why he hardly had to look where he was going and why he could see himself in a vision walking by that big office building about noon and, just by accident, it would be when the girl was coming out, and they would see each other and a look of recognition and surprise would come into their eyes; then he would tip his hat, full of nerve and confidence, and she would smile, and——

"Joe! For God's sake, look out!"

Before his eyes perceived the danger Joe's foot was on the brake—and then he saw her standing there, a terrified, bewildered old lady, seeking to flee and unable to move as the speeding truck bore down upon her. In a flash Joe took in the situation and sought for an avenue of escape. It was impossible to stop the car in time; on the left was a packed line of cars and, beyond, a pedestrian-congested sidewalk. He looked quickly to the right. In the line of cars against the curb there was a gap a few yards ahead, as though one auto had been picked bodily out of the procession, and before he even considered what was beyond Joe swung the wheel in this direction.

"Jump, Frank, when I hit the sidewalk!" Joe had no time to know whether his instruction was obeyed. He heard the rip as a protruding ladder tore the top from one of the cars he barely squeezed past; he felt the bump as the wheels took the curb; he dimly saw people scatter on the wide esplanade of the common, and then, like an apparition, he saw the big, gray hulk of the subway entrance loom before him. It seemed as though the car and the structure were folded together and he was squeezed from between, much as you squeeze the seeds from a lemon.

He had no idea how long afterwards it was when he seemed to land. There was a strange quiet and softness and—and smell. Why, it was like a hospital! Everything was dark. He raised his hand and groaned at the pain it gave him; there was a bandage over his eyes.

"Doctor, I think he is awake." The voice sounded away off in the distance, and was followed by a brief whispered conversation.

"Awake?"

"I guess so. What's the matter with me? Anything broken?"

"Nothing except a ninety-five hundred dollar fire engine and a subway entrance," and Joe could tell the doctor was smiling.

"But my eyes," persisted Joe. "Everything's dark——"

"Only some cuts. I'll have the bandage off in the morning. Don't talk now. Rest is all you need," and as he had no one to talk with all Joe could do was to try to obey the doctor's orders, but until he fell asleep again he passed the time by identifying his numerous sore spots. If there was nothing broken he would soon be back on the truck again; and then he thought of the girl.

She would read of the accident. Would she know that he had been the driver injured? Would she feel concerned the way he would want her to feel concerned? And Joe felt certain that these questions could be answered in the affirmative, because he was confident that the many brief exchanges of glances had carried with them an understanding.

The next morning the genial old doctor lived up to his promise and removed the bandage from over Joe's eyes.

"Well, can you see all right?"

Joe blinked and put his hand to his left eye, but the doctor restrained him.

"I have some court plaster on a cut over that eye. It probably feels funny, but never mind that. I'll have the nurse dress your cuts again," and he departed down the lane of white cots. A few minutes later a young nurse appeared with a basin of water, which she laid on a table beside some flowers that Joe noted for the first time..

"Did you see the flowers?" and the nurse's pleasant smile belied the severity and stiffness of her starched white uniform. "The big bunch is from your engine house and here is one from somebody else. There was just this small newspaper account about you," and she placed the little florist's envelope in Joe's nervous fingers. It was just a little clipping headed by his picture in uniform. The article described his service and was evidently supplementary to the main article on the accident; but at the end of the article was written in ink: "You'll understand." After some hesitation and also with some confusion, Joe handed the article to the nurse."

"Is that a girl's handwriting, nurse?" he asked.

"I'd say that it is," smiled the nurse, and Joe smiled, too, and closed his eyes. He understood, all right. Then the nurse started to bathe and dress his cuts.

"Has anyone been here to see me?" asked Joe as the nurse worked over him.

"Your mother and sister were here last night, but we didn't want to disturb you, and when they learned that you were not seriously hurt they left and said they would come this evening. There are two firemen downstairs now, and they may come up as soon as I am through with you."

IN a short time the nurse had washed and dressed the superficial wounds, and after making Joe as comfortable as she could she picked up the basin and left the ward, to return again in a few minutes followed by Connors, the gray haired hoseman, and Frank Sherdell.

"Well, how's the old cripple?" greeted Connors.

"Not so tough," replied Joe, smiling as much as the court plaster and bandages would let him.

"I guess we're all lucky to have jumped and landed as safe as we did," Connors added. "Powers sprained his ankle, but no one else was hurt. It's lucky for you, too, that you only hit the corner of the subway entrance. Believe me, Joe, you had your nerve, and you did some clever driving. I can see that old woman now, and us tearing down on her, and that little hole in the line of cars, and——"

"Don't, don't, please!" and Joe's face was white and distorted.

"Don't remind him of it," said Frank solicitously, but the older man was watching Joe closely as though searching for some sign he was not anxious to discover, and eventually he shook his head. For the rest of their stay Connors and Sherdell talked of everything but the accident.

"Well, Joe is going to get out of it pretty easy," remarked Frank as they left the hospital.

"Frank," replied Connors, seriously, "I've seen it before, and Joe's an emotional boy, anyway. I think his nerve is gone."

"Joe lose his nerve? Nonsense! A guy that slipped the truck off the street like he did yesterday lose his nerve? You're wrong there, Connors."

"I hope so, Frank, but I think not. It isn't a question of a guy being yellow; it's nerves, the same as shell shock. It may wear off in time, but I don't expect to see Joe driving again soon—maybe never."

When the wise old Connors, with his years of experience behind him, made prophecies, they were worth considering. Before the two weeks were up, Joe Lennon was back at the firehouse, and as he had recovered sooner than his pet had, his work for the first few days was anything but strenuous. Joe was anxious; whenever they took a run he would glance up at the window with a sort of an apology in his glance, as if to tell the girl that he was on probation and that he could not make the advances he had intended to make until he should be at the wheel of the big high pressure truck instead of clinging to one of the smaller pumps.

Then the day came when the long, red high pressure truck was backed into its old position. Joe approached with an eagerness and also a trembling that disturbed because it perplexed him. He hovered about the big car all morning with fond touches, polishing the already gleaming fixtures, waiting for the inevitable alarm that would be the signal to jump to the wheel once more, to slide out to the street, to glance up once again to the window with a look that would say more than words ever could.

* * * * * * * *

Brrr, wrang, wrang! Brrr, wrang, wrang! Joe was in the seat before the first buzz had subsided, his hand on the brake release, waiting for the signal. The doors swung open, and Joe felt a tremble pass through him; cold beads of perspiration stood out on his forehead; his throat seemed parched. Connors looked down at the captain, who stood on the concrete floor beside the truck. The captain looked up at Connors.

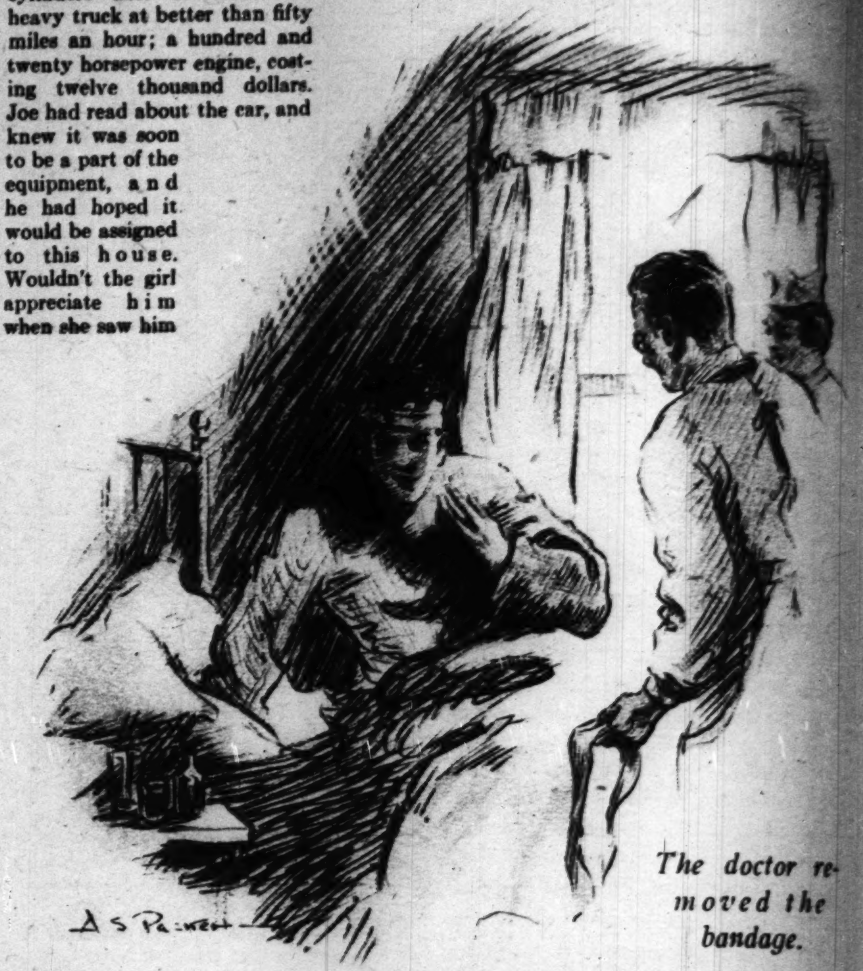
"McCarthy," barked the captain to the man at the desk, "take the wheel. Lennon, take the desk." No explanation was made to the men as the heavy red trucks rolled out to the street; none was needed—Lennon had lost his nerve.

For several days Joe was assigned to trivial tasks, tending the desk or remaining inside when the others made the runs. He knew it was only a question of time before he would be transferred to one of the "hospitals," the smaller stations in outlying districts where fires were rare and seldom serious. His nerve was gone, the girl was gone, for the one had come to depend on the other. And then one day, to further add to his disappointment, one of the smaller pumps was driven away and the latest addition to the service took its place.

The giant red truck, resplendent in its fresh paint and its gleaming brass and nickel, was a new pump, guaranteed to deliver one thousand gallons a minute; its six cylinders able to drive the heavy truck at better than fifty miles an hour; a hundred and twenty horsepower engine, costing twelve thousand dollars. Joe had read about the car, and knew it was soon to be a part of the equipment, and he had hoped it would be assigned to this house. Wouldn't the girl appreciate him when she saw him behind the wheel of this beauty? had been his thought.



The doctor removed the bandage.

ONE sleety, cold morning in January a call came about nine-thirty, and the high pressure engine and one of small pumps answered it, leaving behind in the house the other small pump and the new big one to be used in case of emergency. Joe, as usual, remained behind with the men spared for the other two engines. Some time had passed since the first two engines had gone, but as no second alarm came in one or two men scheduled to go to breakfast left the house, and one of these was McCarthy, the only man left who was rated as a driver, with the exception of Lennon. McCarthy had just left when the chief stepped in from headquarters next door.

"There's a general fire raging in Tilton. We're going to send the big boy. It's about forty miles, but I promised it within an hour. Who you got to drive, lieutenant?"

"Why—er——" But the chief saved him an explanation.

"Here's Lennon," he said as he saw Joe. "I thought you drove the high pressure. Take this one, now. Remember, it's a new machine, terrible riding, and you've got to hit a fast clip all the way through Northshire county. Go to it," and he turned away as the men instinctively sprang to the car. Joe hesitated for an instant, and then climbed to the wheel. Only by an extreme effort of will did he start the engine and release the brakes, and as the car rolled towards the open door he trembled as with the ague, and beads of cold perspiration dotted his fevered brow. As the car reached the threshold he glanced up at the building opposite. The girl was there; she waved her hand, while her smile and those large bright eyes sent him a message of courage and understanding that permeated his whole system like a tingling stimulant. His hands beneath the long woolen gloves clutched the wheel with a grip of steel, his body crouched rigidly over the wheel as, with a roar of engine and shrieking of siren, the big new car turned into the street on its maiden trip. He was the old Joe once more.

They wanted a record, did they? He'd show them. What did he care for the biting cold and the cutting sleet flung against him with machine gun force as the giant truck rocked under its terrific speed? Through the traffic-congested streets of the city he shot, the screaming siren scattering them before him. Over the bridge, through the suburbs, and out into the country; never once did those eyes leave the road ahead or those strong hands lose for an instant the control of the wheel.

People ran from their houses aroused by an ever-increasing roar and a rumble that shook the ground, and a shriek that rose until it seemed as though it would break—as a singer trying for an impossible range. One vast roar, they saw a flash of red, black coats flapping, an ice covered huddled figure leaning over the wheel, and it was gone, the shriek dying into a moan.

Mile after mile of this, and the heavy truck held the road and never slackened its pace. Finally the houses became more numerous again and the unmistakable signs of the city commenced to supplant those of the country, and then a shout from one of the men on the car announced the discovery of the pall of smoke barely distinguishable through the gray sleet. Tilton had been reached in record time. Pedestrians signed directions, and finally a rubber coated chief stepped out and the car slowed up while he hopped on and directed them to a hydrant.

Ice covered firemen sprang from the truck and were immediately coupling and attaching hose, pumping water to local men who were fighting the conflagration; but Joe still remained huddled over the wheel. They had to cut his gloves from the steering wheel and lift him from the car in his cramped position, cold and sore and stiff.

"Say, that was some drive!" exclaimed the Tilton chief, admiration gleaming in his eyes. "A man who can do what you've done, boy, has nerve enough for anything."

Joe smiled as they helped him into a restaurant for some hot coffee. He knew one thing he was going to have nerve enough for—just as soon as he got back again.

"It improved the condition of every one who was constipated"

Recent experiments explain action of Fleischmann's Yeast in relieving this common complaint

In three great scientific laboratories and hospitals, recent experiments were made on over 100 persons—to test the effects of Fleischmann's Yeast on constipation.

It was found that the yeast mixes with the highly nutritious concentrated foods which form our modern diet, softening them and increasing their bulk. This greater bulk gently encourages the intestinal muscles to act, and at the same time strengthens them by offering just the resistance they need.

That is why, according to the recently issued report of these tests, Fleischmann's Yeast "improved the condition of every one who had any degree of constipation." It simply assists Nature to restore normal, healthy conditions.

Hundreds of thousands of men and women are eating Fleischmann's Yeast today. Physicians and hospitals are prescribing it in place of the dangerous drugs and cathartics which weaken the intestinal muscles and so actually increase the trouble.

Be sure you get Fleischmann's Yeast—yeast in its natural fresh form. These same experiments showed that yeast corrects constipation only when its cells are alive and active—that it loses its laxative effect when these cells are "killed" and dried.

Eat at least 2 or 3 cakes a day—plain or dissolved in water, milk, or fruit juices—preferably half an hour before a meal, or the last thing at night. Get several cakes at a time—they will keep in a cool, dry place for several days. Be sure you get Fleischmann's Yeast. All grocers have it.

Send for free booklet, "The New Found Value of Fleischmann's Yeast in Building Health." The Fleischmann Company, 701 Washington St., New York.

"Though 58 I am feeling like a boy of 20"

"For the last four years I had been suffering constantly with indigestion," writes a broker from Havana. "I could not go to the club at night. I had to give up all my pleasures. But since a friend of mine recommended to me to try Fleischmann's Yeast, I am back again on the same old footing. Though 58 years old I am feeling as if I were only 20—thanks to Fleischmann's Yeast."

BY AN ENGLISHMAN

I HAVE been to Europe and the Orient—have climbed the Alps in Switzerland and Italy, and the Chinese Himalayas. I've seen the famous island of Capri. I've ridden camels on the great Sahara Desert at sunrise. Enjoyed, in fact most of the beauties and the grandeurs that mark different portions of the earth.

And yet I've visited no one spot on the globe that combines "so many trips abroad in one" as one section of your own country provides.

But the most extraordinary thing about your Southern California, is that year-'round perfect climate, which I had heard about but never quite believed could be so delightful.

English golf courses are famous, but you have many of the world's best there. Then there's fishing, hunting, yachting and sea-bathing of the finest kind. You ride your horses in the mountains, motor to your desert, enjoy the peaceful beauty of the rare old missions.

I hear that a hundred thousand new visitors went there last summer. My only wonder is that they had not been there before.

Above is a tribute to a portion of your country that perhaps you've never seen—the All-Year Playground of America, the one place of its kind.

Come this summer—come at any season—and enjoy its complete change. Bring the family. Put your children in fine schools.

No More Gray Hair or Dandruff

No longer is it necessary to use dyes to restore the original color to the hair

THOUSANDS of men and women have restored the original color of their hair NATURALLY with a genuine tonic which feeds and nourishes the hair, restores its luster and life, promotes its growth, cleanses the scalp and banishes dandruff.

Because of universal dissatisfaction with hair dyes an American chemist sought to develop a genuine tonic which would restore the original color of the hair by reproducing Nature's process and WHICH SHOULD NOT BE A DYE. After thirty years of patient experimentation he successfully produced a tonic which restored the color to all hair, whether it be black, brown or blond, by feeding and nourishing it with the coloring elements the body had ceased to furnish. He aptly named this tonic NOURISHINE.

NOURISHINE is wonderfully beneficial—so much so that many who do not have gray hair use it regularly to keep the hair healthy and the scalp clean and free from dandruff. NOURISHINE CANNOT cause the hair to become brittle, deaden or split. On the contrary, it revitalizes the hair. It restores the original color evenly, naturally—no streaks. Does not stain scalp or hands. NOURISHINE is not applied like a dye, does not operate like a dye—BECAUSE it is NOT A DYE. It is pleasant to use and can be applied by anyone at home. One bottle is usually effective. The one liquid restores for all colors, whether black, brown or blond.

If NOURISHINE did nothing else but remove dandruff it would remain a remarkable testimonial to scientific accomplishment. We have many cases where one-half of a bottle, used, has banished dandruff. The average case requires one bottle. It stops itching, cleanses, invigorates. Act today, for your hair health and regeneration. For dandruff alone it is worth many times the price asked. Whether you have gray hair or not use it as a tonic and to banish dandruff.

No matter what you have tried—try NOURISHINE. Sincerely we tell you it is different. Price $1.25 per bottle, all drug and department stores.

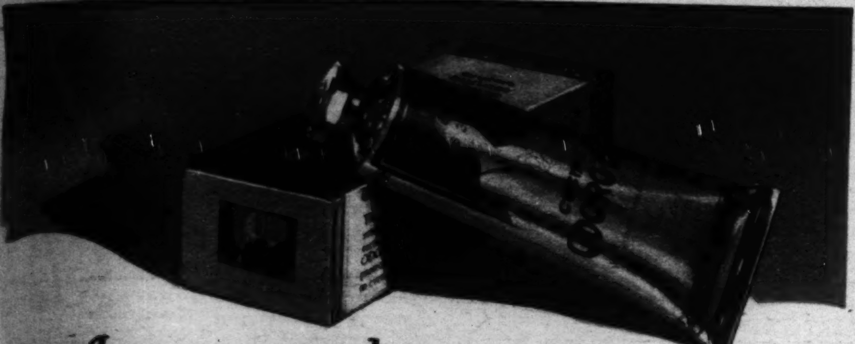
DO YOU REMEMBER 'WAY BACK WHEN—

GERALDINE FARRAR was just beginning her climb to the top rung of grand opera fame? Early in this century all the American papers featured her on page one when her singing in Berlin won the heart of the kaiser—or the crown prince. Some say of both.

ANNETTE KELLERMAN first dived into fame and fortune? She appeared here in the early days of White City, back in 1906. Since then we have seen her often on the theater stage and in the films, always featuring her diving.



A new vanishing cream deodorant—scientifically correct!

There are two chief types of perspiration trouble. In one, excessive moisture is the great difficulty. In the other, moisture may be very slight and yet there is the usual unpleasant odor against which everyone must be on guard. Soap and water cannot prevent it.

Especially for this latter class the makers of Odorono have perfected Creme Odorono. This fragrant cream deodorant is correctly compounded on a new scientific principle and is entirely different from any other deodorant.

For perspiration odor Creme Odorono is the perfect every day underarm toilette. Used every morning, it is immediately effective and gives complete allday protection.

And it vanishes at once from the skin and is non-greasy! You may use it without fear of staining or spotting your clothing. Then, too, it is so soft and smooth; will never harden or dry up.

A wonderful convenience to use every day or for quick special use, as when dressing for an affair where one's personal daintiness must be above reproach; or in traveling. Men like its convenience. And it is economical, too; a tube lasts a month or six weeks with daily use. Try Creme Odorono; you can obtain it at any toilet counter, large tube, 25c.

What ten million motor cars have taught women about their skin

The method they have learned to depend on

Two unbroken lines of cars wind along the popular motor roads. Everyone is motoring—week-ending at the beach, or the country club, or just driving for the pleasure of it. Fine dust settles in their skin and the wind brings a dry tightness.

Yet many women's complexions are younger and lovelier than ever before!

The severe exposure of motoring has taught them how important it is to find the right way to care for their skin. No woman can be satisfied until she has found a method that keeps her skin beautiful and supple in spite of all exposure.

Today millions of women have found a method that agrees in every way with their skin—so wonderful in results that in all the world it is used more than any other—Pond's Two Creams. Together they impart a marvelous freshness and leave your skin softer, more supple than you could have dreamed. They give just that finishing touch of loveliness you have always wanted and never before have really known.

Today millions insist on this kind of cleansing

A fine light cleansing that never leaves your face heavy with cream—gives just the beautiful suppleness you want and then wipes entirely off! This is why millions of women prefer to cleanse with Pond's Cold Cream. So exquisitely soft and supple and young does it keep women's skin that the number who use it actually doubles every two years!

Their enthusiasm is told in hundreds of letters like this one:

> "Pond's Cold Cream takes out the dirt that clogs the pores. Also by gentle massaging with the cold cream I find there is no place for wrinkles to come in my face. I have been a constant user of both Pond's Cold Cream and Pond's Vanishing Cream for over ten years. Although I am thirty years old my face looks twenty and I think I owe it to the use of Pond's Two Creams."

For that finishing touch—this other cream is the most wanted in the world

So unfailingly does the other cream, Pond's Vanishing Cream, protect from every kind of exposure, so perfectly does it add just that touch of finishing freshness, that it is more sought than any other in the world! The women of the United States alone use several millions of jars and tubes every year! A wonderful softening ingredient it contains relaxes your face, smooths out the fine lines of tiredness. And women tell us, too, that it holds the powder better than any other preparation they have tried.

One woman writes:

> "It has been just three months since I started to use your Vanishing Cream and I want to say I have at last found the way to give my face a clear and refreshing appearance. Your cream agrees with my skin perfectly and my friends are all telling me how wonderful my skin looks."

TRY THIS FAMOUS METHOD

See the improvement in your skin in one day

Do this tonight. With the finger tips apply Pond's Gold Cream freely. The very fine oil in it penetrates every pore of your skin. Let it stay a minute—now wipe it off with a soft cloth. The black on the cloth shows you how carefully this cream cleanses. Your skin looks fresh and is beautifully supple.

Then, in the morning, smooth on Pond's Vanishing Cream lightly over your whole face. If you wish, rouge—powder. How smooth and velvety your face feels to your hand! How new and charming the reflection in your mirror! The powder is even, not in patches, because it clings evenly to the delicate film of cream. The appearance of your skin for the whole day will prove to you how wonderful for your skin these two creams are.

Always after a motor or railroad trip, cleanse with Pond's Cold Cream and then finish with the Vanishing Cream and powder. No matter how often you motor or how vigorously you indulge in outdoor sports, you can keep your complexion charmingly fresh and delightfully supple with this method.

Florence Nash, the very popular star in "Merton of the Movies" says:

> "I like Pond's Cold Cream because it leaves my face feeling so refreshed—not heavy and oily. And Pond's Vanishing Cream really keeps my skin wonderfully smooth and fresh all day. It keeps the powder on beautifully."

To see how these two creams will actually improve your skin use this method regularly. Begin now by buying a jar or tube of each cream.

You will get them in any drug store or department store. Neither can possibly clog the pores or cause the growth of hair. The Pond's Extract Company, New York.

Beautiful Betty Blythe says: "Pond's Cold Cream relaxes my skin when I am tired after a difficult performance and makes me feel fresh and rested again. It takes all the dust from the pores and keeps the skin clear, smooth and young Pond's Vanishing Cream is so freshening and fragrant that I always enjoy using it to prevent any damage from the weather."

Exposure starts these troubles or makes them worse. This famous method shows you how to avoid them

Sunburn, Windburn, Chapping

The daily repetition of weather damage does more to age your skin than any other single factor. But the process is so gradual that except on specially severe occasions you do not notice it until your skin has definitely coarsened. Do not let this happen. For the insidious every day exposure use the same method that saves your skin from the excessive damage of a long motor ride or a day on the beach. Keep your skin regularly clean and soft and properly oiled by a nightly cleansing with Pond's Cold Cream. Then always in the morning, smooth on Pond's Vanishing Cream. It forms a delicate but sure protection against any weather conditions and every trying change in temperature. This method will keep your skin smooth and young years longer than would otherwise be possible.

Premature Wrinkles, Scaling, Peeling

These are especially the troubles of a dry skin. To avoid them you must be especially careful to protect yourself from all exposure and keep your skin soft day and night. Cleanse with plenty of Pond's Cold Cream nightly and leave some on over night. This will give your skin the oil it needs so badly and keep it from scaling and peeling. Then it will not develop little lines that grow into wrinkles.

But do not let the exposure of the day undo the results of this nightly oiling. Every morning smooth on Pond's Vanishing Cream liberally. It contains a wonderful daytime softening ingredient and prevents your skin from drying out again. Always carry a tube of this cream with you on motor trips or outings of any kind to counteract their drying, aging influence.

That Distressing Shine

Sometimes shine is due to a dry, tight skin, and motoring or even the slightest daily exposure aggravates the condition. You must apply an extra amount of Pond's Cold Cream at night after the cleansing and let it stay on. See how gladly your skin will absorb the fine light oil of this cream, how it will soften and relax and the shine disappear. Put on the Vanishing Cream in the morning to keep this suppleness through the day and be sure to carry it with you and use it frequently on any occasion of unusual exposure.

K. OF C. TO BUILD $700,000 CLUB ON WEST MADISON

Will Be Largest of Kind Outside New York.

BY AL CHASE.

Chicago is to have the second largest Knights of Columbus clubhouse and recreation center in the United States. It will be on West Madison street, between Cicero and Kilpatrick avenues; will cost $700,000, and will be exceeded in size only by one in New York City. Seven west side councils, with a membership of 7,500, have organized the Knights of Columbus West Side Building corporation, and expect to break ground within a week.

The brick and stone fireproof structure designed by Shattuck & Layer will accommodate 5,000 men and 500 women. There'll be a swimming tank for members and their families which will be the second largest in Chicago.

The plans call for sixteen bowling alleys, fifteen billiard and pool tables, the above mentioned tank, twenty-five showers for men and five for women, lockers for 3,000 men and 500 for women and a refreshment counter, all in the basement.

Ballroom on First Floor.

On the first floor will be five stores, a ballroom 80x95, a gymnasium 80x50, two exercise rooms, a kitchenette, lobby and lounge.

On the next floor above will be the "grand council chamber," 90x50, memorial lobby, ballroom promenade and running track, with smoking and rest [illegible] for [illegible] quoits, etc., will be on the third floor.

Days and hours for the youngsters are to be set aside each week so they can enjoy the privileges of the building.

Offer Bonds to Public.

The initial fund for the purchase of the site and other expenses was contributed by the seven councils taking part, and the remainder of the cost is being met by a bond issue now being offered members of the big Catholic organization throughout the city and state.

"The purpose of the building is to give lodge room and ballroom accommodations to all the councils of the Knights of Columbus on the west side," said an official, "and to give a community center to the members of the seven councils in the enterprise and their families."

The councils forming the building corporation and their representatives on the board of directors are: Americus council, John J. Powers; Father Setters council, State Deputy and Supreme Director Edward Houlihan; Charles Carroll council, James J. Walsh, secretary of the corporation; Damen council, John Gorman; Hughes council, Dr. Joseph J. Russell; Phil Sheridan council, John J. Collins.

K. OF C. TO BUILD $700,000 CLUB ON WEST MADISON

Will Be Largest of Kind Outside New York.

BY AL CHASE.

Chicago is to have the second largest Knights of Columbus clubhouse and recreation center in the United States. It will be on West Madison street, between Cicero and Kilpatrick avenues; will cost $700,000, and will be exceeded in size only by one in New York City. Seven west side councils, with a membership of 7,500, have organized the Knights of Columbus West Side Building corporation, and expect to break ground within a week.

The brick and stone fireproof structure designed by Shattuck & Layer will accommodate 5,000 men and 500 women. There'll be a swimming tank for members and their families which will be the second largest in Chicago.

The plans call for sixteen bowling alleys, fifteen billiard and pool tables, the above mentioned tank, twenty-five showers for men and five for women, lockers for 3,000 men and 500 for women and a refreshment counter, all in the basement.

Ballroom on First Floor.

On the first floor will be five stores, a ballroom 80x95, a gymnasium 80x50, two exercise rooms, a kitchenette, lobby and lounge.

On the next floor above will be the "grand council chamber," 90x50, memorial lobby, ballroom promenade and running track, with smoking and rest rooms.

A smaller council chamber, 50x25; a [illegible] for the youngsters are to be set aside each week so they can enjoy the privileges of the building.

Offer Bonds to Public.

The initial fund for the purchase of the site and other expenses was contributed by the seven councils taking part, and the remainder of the cost is being met by a bond issue now being offered members of the big Catholic organization throughout the city and state.
